THEY'RE GETTING BIGGER— Pan American Airways today ordered 25 new 490-seat Boeing 747 airliners at a cost of $525 million. The new jets will feature eight staterooms and control cabins for the crew in the two-deck aircraft. Officials in Seattle say the larger plane will reduce costs per passenger mile by as much as 35 per cent. Delivery starts in September, 1969. (AP Wirephoto.)

3 KILLED, 10 INJURED

Liner Smashed By Giant Wave

Force Twists Steel Decking

NEW YORK (UPI)—A giant wave that crashed across the bow of the Italian luxury liner Michelangelo with such force it twisted the steel superstructure claimed its third life today.

Disiderio Ferrari, a crew member from Genoa, died of injuries as the New York-bound liner steered out of a violent North Atlantic storm which also injured 10 persons.

Capt. Guiseppi Soletti, contacted aboard the Michelangelo today via radiotelephone, said there was no panic when the wave struck.

"There was no panic and the ship was never in danger," he said. "We pitched somewhat but not a great deal."

"But it was one of the worst storms I have ever been in," said Soletti, a veteran of more than 40 years at sea.

He confirmed that there had been some damage to the upper superstructure of the liner but added the vessel was experiencing no difficulty today.

"Everything aboard is secure," he said.

30 Feet High, 100 Yards Wide

An Italian Lines director in Genoa said the giant mass of water, 30 feet high and 100 yards wide, caught the Michelangelo Tuesday in the first-class upper deck cabins as it swept across the bow, smashing windows and twisting the superstructure.

The force of the huge wave knocked many of the 775 passengers off their feet. Two of them suffered fatal skull fractures: John J. Steinbach, 58, a Chicago insurance executive, and Dr. Werner Berndt, 56, of Hamburg, Germany, both first class passengers.

Umberto Nordio, co-director general of Italian Lines, said even with advance warning the Michelangelo could not have gotten out of the way of the vicious storm. He said such storms move so fast that even turning around couldn't have prevented heavy damage.

"If man had invented a system to dodge misfortune," Nordio said in Genoa, "we would not have so many ships with smashed prows every year."

The wave struck at 10:20 a.m. about 400 miles west of the Azores, when the 43,000-ton liner was two days out of New York on a run from Naples and Genoa.

Freighters Plowing Out of Area

Two merchant ships also were plowing out of the area after being battered by the storm. One reported five crewmen had been washed overboard.

The 411-foot British refrigerator ship Chuscal reported five crewmen had been washed overboard in mountainous seas 400 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

The Coast Guard cutter Barataria and 15 merchant ships in the area were scouring the area, hoping the men might have been able to cling to debris in the 57-degree seas which were running 30 to 45 feet. Coast Guard planes also circled the area.

Buddhists Call Off Boycott

SAIGON (UPI) — The Saigon government radio announced tonight that Buddhist leaders would end their two-day boycott and take seats Thursday at the national political congress which is trying to devise a constitution for the country.

Informed sources said the decision by leaders of the main Vien Hoa Dao pagoda does not mean the Buddhists are calling off their anti-government tirades and demonstrations.

The sources said the Buddhist representatives may well be planning to use the congress as a platform for denouncing the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

DENOUNCED CONGRESS

The Buddhists earlier denounced the congress as an effort by the "American CIA" to divert them from their avowed aim of toppling the military junta and forcing immediate election of a civilian government.

Ky's government called the conference to write a new constitution and pick its delegates. The delegates marked time today while a special seven-man delegation visited the Buddhist and Catholic leaders to plead with them to take their seats.

Chief of state Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu said his government was anxious to hand over authority to a civilian government as soon as possible and pleaded with delegates for help in accomplishing this.

But the Buddhists have demanded immediate elections.

France Scores Russian Link

'Pullout From NATO Will Serve Best Interests Of Alliance'

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle has no intention of switching alliances and linking up with Russia and China in place of the United States, Premier Georges Pompidou said today.

He said France believes its NATO pullout will serve the best interests of the Atlantic Alliance.

Pompidou's statements on NATO and France came in a government statement he read to the National Assembly opening a three-day debate on government foreign and economic policy. The debate may end with a confidence vote demanded by the government.

His speech followed the disclosure de Gaulle had said he would not wait "forever" for the United States to decide when it will pull its troops and bases out of France.

REMAIN LOYAL

Pompidou said France will remain a loyal friend of the United States and is ready to discuss with both Washington and Bonn details of the evacuation of U.S. bases in France and withdrawal of French forces in Germany from NATO command.

The statement was approved by a cabinet meeting this morning presided over by de Gaulle.

In his National Assembly statement, Pompidou said: "By our action we believe we are serving peace and defending the true interests of the alliance just as we served them during the Cuban crisis when we informed the president of the United States that France would be at his side in a possible conflict, although Cuba was not covered by the North Atlantic Alliance."

Pompidou said France is not returning to "worn-out nationalism" but simply seeks full control over everything that belongs to it.

"Do not let anyone imagine this means a change of camps," he said. "We are hostile to any kind of hegemony. We do not intend to support a Soviet hegemony any more than our position in the Viet Nam war is aimed at favoring a Chinese hegemony in that part of the world.

"There is no change in our feelings towards the American people nor towards the importance of the interests that link us to the United States," Pompidou said.

'UNDERSTAND US'

"I am convinced the day will come when America will understand us and will do justice to Gen. de Gaulle as the far-seeing leader of her oldest and most constant ally."

Turning to Germany, Pompidou said France is convinced Germany's present leaders want peace. He said any fears of a revival of German nationalism have been touched off by suggestions that Germany should be given direct or indirect access to nuclear arms—something for which France has no responsibility, he added.

He said the situation of French troops in Germany can and will be solved if the West German government wishes to do so.

Flood Crest Passes Border Town

WINNIPEG (CP)—The flooding Red River crested on schedule in southern Manitoba today and provincial forecasters knocked another foot off their peak prediction for Winnipeg.

Agriculture Minister George Hutton said the Red should reach its high-water mark in Winnipeg Saturday at 26.5 feet above winter average ice level, well within the capacity of the diking system.

The crest passed through the border town of Emerson Tuesday and reached Letellier, about 10 miles north, today at 4.3 feet above bank level.

At Winnipeg the river stood at 25.5 feet, only one foot under the forecast peak, after a rise of eight-tenths of a foot in 24 hours.

Despite the optimistic turn of events, scattered evacuations continued in the southern valley where the Red has spilled over miles of rich farm land and forced more than 4,000 from their homes. Emerson, Morris, St. Jean Baptiste, Rosenort and Dominion City have been cleared of almost all but those needed to man dikes and maintain essential services.

Oil Tanker 'Disowned' By 2 Nations

BEIRA, Mozambique (Reuters)—The tanker Ioanna V, disowned in turn by Greece and Panama, today continued to keep alive the mystery of what it will do with its cargo of oil.

Shipping sources here said Tuesday night the tanker, moored at a quay here while Britain keeps up diplomatic pressure to prevent its 18,000 tons of oil reaching breakaway Rhodesia, would begin discharging half its cargo today.

But there was no immediate sign of the operation starting. Flexible pipe used to link tankers with the Rhodesia pipeline intakes remained piled on the dockside. Armed Portuguese police guarded the oil wharf.

The Ioanna V became a ship without a country Tuesday night when Panama followed Greece in revoking the tanker's registration only a few hours after the ship exchanged the Greek for the Panamanian flag.

The Ioanna docked here Monday after riding at anchor in the harbor for a week. The Greek government cancelled its registration because the tanker came to this Portuguese African port despite international sanctions aimed at keeping Rhodesia from getting oil.

The sanctions were ordered after the white - ruled British colony seized independence Nov. 11.

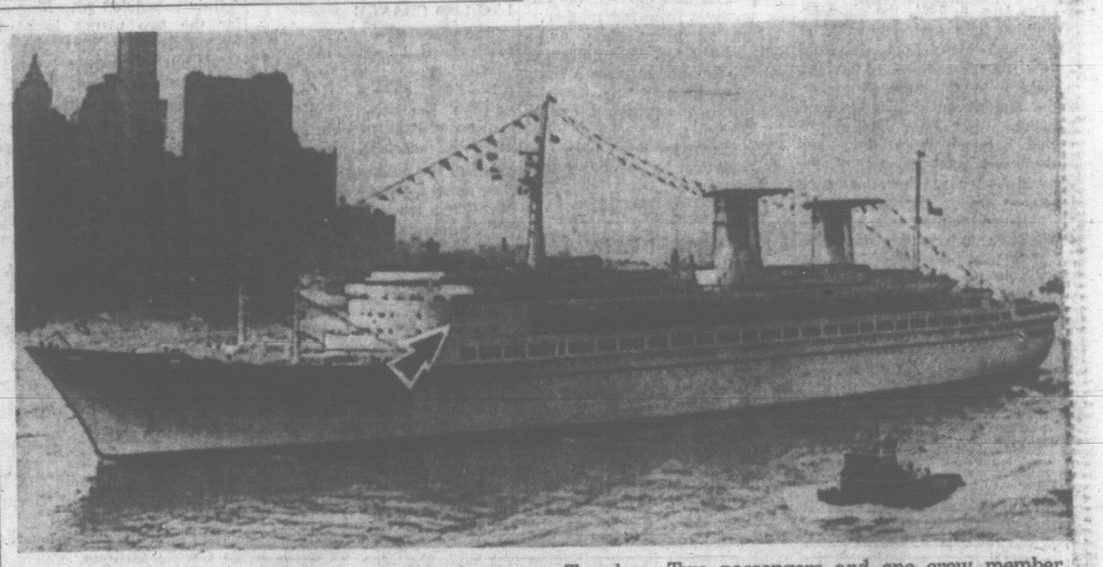

A few hours after the tanker pulled down the Greek colors Tuesday and ran up the flag of Panama, the Panama foreign ministry announced it was revoking the vessel's registration.

PUMP INTO STORAGE

Shipping sources said today the Ioanna intended to pump part of its oil into storage tanks and not directly into the 189-mile pipeline leading from Beira to Rhodesia's Umtali refinery.

In Panama, a foreign ministry spokesman said Panama always will abide by the decisions of the United Nations, which has specifically authorized Britain to bar oil from entering Rhodesia, and that Panama will co-operate in any way possible to ensure that no vessel under the Panamanian flag transports oil to Rhodesia.

The Greek tanker Manuela, carrying 15,000 tons of oil which may also be destined for Rhodesia, arrived at Durban, South Africa, Tuesday after being turned away from Beira by a British navy boarding party.

British Leave Door Open For Further Negotiations

LONDON (AP) Britain today left the door open for negotiations of new military cooperation between France and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In a note delivered in Paris the British, however, rejected President de Gaulle's claim that it would have been impossible for France and the 14 Atlantic allies to modify NATO by agreement.

The British government said it "would have been ready at any time to discuss the form of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

Britain's communication followed a U.S. statement to France Tuesday informing de Gaulle that U.S. tactical nuclear weapons will not be available for French forces in West Germany after these French troops have been withdrawn from NATO command July 1.

The Americans also indicated they are not prepared to accept the timetable laid down by de Gaulle for withdrawal of NATO headquarters from French territory.

BACKS UP U.S.

Implicitly, the British note gave support to the American position. On the subject of the proposed timetable of withdrawal, the British said:

"These proposals affect all parties to the North Atlantic Treaty.

"Her Majesty's government will, therefore, find it necessary to discuss them with their other allies in order to consider the practical implications of these proposals before entering into discussion of them with the French government."

The French had suggested that April 1, 1967, would be an appropriate date for completing the withdrawal.

On France's suggestion that new arrangements be made for co-operation between French forces and NATO forces, the British said:

"This is also a matter on which Her Majesty's government will first wish to have discussion with their other allies."

MEET FRIDAY

As an initial move U.S., British and West German envoys have arranged a meeting in Bonn Friday to consider the implications of the withdrawal of France's contingents in West Germany from NATO command.

This study is likely to provide the key to further effective military co-operation between the French and the other Atlantic allies.

Britain, the United States and France in 1954 joined with West Germany in signing a convention that changed the status of Allied troops from occupation forces to NATO forces. The convention also cleared the way for German rearmament and for a German military role in NATO. France's withdrawal from the NATO military network has had the effect of undermining the entire legal basis of that convention.

HALF BILLION IN INDIA

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's population will exceed the half-billion mark by Sept. 1. The last census in 1961 showed India had 439,000,000 then. A projection of those figures released by the registrar-general estimates the population at 495,000,000 April 1 and increasing at a rate of just under 1,000,000 persons a month.

Schools Picketed

MONTREAL (CP) — A strike by 2,000 teachers employed by the Quebec government in 100 technical, trade and normal schools all over the province went into its second day today.

The strike follows an impasse in negotiations with the provincial government over higher pay, the status of the teachers' union and time off for its officers to carry out union business.

Claude Sabourin, president of the teachers' syndicate, said the strike will continue "until the government is more reasonable."

He said picket lines have been established in front of a number of strike-bound schools in Montreal. There were no signs of an early settlement in the dispute.

IT COOKS, LOOKS LIKE RICE BUT DOES IT TASTE LIKE IT?

NEW YORK (AP)—A process which developers say could make wheat palatable to Asia's rice-eating millions — and thus be a partial answer to famine—will be tested in a pilot project beginning this week in Hong Kong.

Wheat kernels are peeled by a lye process that makes them look like rice and cook like rice. The purpose of the project is to see whether Asians decide that it tastes like rice.

One of the biggest roadblocks to easing world famine, experts say, is that some people would rather die than change their eating habits.

Millions of rice-eating people in India's Kerala State live on the verge of starvation rather than eat the wheat flowing into their country. Rioting mobs shouted at police: "Give us rice or shoot us!"

USE WURLD WHEAT

Breaking down "food prejudices" is necessary so that people can be fed the food that is available, says Melvin Myers, director of the material resources program of the Church World Service, sponsors of the pilot project.

To make wheat more acceptable to the rice-eating Keralites, the U.S. department of agriculture has come up with the new proces to make a rice-like grain from regular wheat, called "wurld wheat."

The husk is peeled from the kernel by the lye process, leaving a white grain much like rice. It can be produced for about five to six cents a pound, and on an operational basis, one company estimates that it could produce 25 tons an hour.

The process was developed at the Western Regional Research Labratory of the department of agriculture at Albany, Calif. Dr. James Pence, who heads the cereals laboratory, was in New York today to confer with Myers.

"The process also works with rice, producing a higher yield and a grain with more nutritional value," Pence said. "But more wheat is available and it is easier to increase the production of wheat than of rice."

Lawyers to Question Witnesses at Hearing

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Wishart Spence said today that at all future hearings of the Gerda Munsinger inquiry interested persons will be represented by their lawyers who will be allowed to question witnesses.

The Supreme Court of Canada justice said in an interview that he expects to decide in the next few days about further commission hearings.

The commission opened in secret session a week ago and immediately ran into criticism from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and former justice minister Fulton that they were not notified of the hearing nor permitted to have counsel present.

"The order-in-council appointing me a one-man commission of inquiry says I may adopt any procedure I deem fit; I have done that and I'm not answerable to the press for it," he said.

SPENCER WROTE:

'Top B.C. Communist' Only One Who Helped

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Victor Spencer believed nobody ever helped him except a man —and his son—he identified as an executive of the Communist Party of Canada.

Spencer felt his life was a nightmare of bureaucratic red tape. And aside from the man and his son "I cannot remember anyone giving me a helping hand," he wrote shortly before his death.

Spencer's handwritten notes were disclosed Tuesday by E. Jervis Bloomfield, a postal employee here who was collaborating with Spencer to produce a booklet.

Spencer, 61, an accused spy, was found dead in his house Saturday night only four days before a judicial inquiry was to open into his dismissal from the post office here.

SPENCER

20-YEAR BATTLE

The booklet was to be a document of what Spencer called his 20-year battle with government red tape, and was to be distributed through labor unions and on newsstands, said Bloomfield.

The only time Spencer said he ever got help was during the Second World War, when the son of a union leader described as a top B.C. Communist helped Spencer in his efforts to get a discharge from the army on compassionate grounds.

Spencer, assigned to a tank repair depot with the Canadian Army in England, wrote that his mother was ill and unable to care for herself, his father had died, and that he had tried unsuccessfully for months to get compassionate leave.

A young recruit, Craig Pritchett, "suggested that when I return to Vancouver, to speak to his father, a well-known unionist who was closely connected with the war effort.

"His father, Mr. Harold Pritchett of the IWA (International Woodworkers of America), was, as I eventually discovered, also a member of the Labor Progressive Party, which later changed its name to the Communist Party of Canada.

". . . Soon after returning home (I) had talks with Harold Pritchett.

"He prepared a letter and sent it to Gen. (F.F.) Worthington, who was in command of District 11 with headquarters in Vancouver.

"The general had a thorough investigation conducted into my case, and a few days after I was discharged on compassionate grounds."

Spencer said in the notes that he later discovered compassionate leave had been granted but had been lost in the mass of red tape in London.

"Outside of Mr. Pritchett and his son, I cannot name anyone else who came to my help, and this includes many from all walks of life who also knew the situation, who knew at first hand the plight of my mother, but from indifference or ignorance never lifted a voice.

"Even after discharge, when I was totally broke, and faced with the job of, not only taking care of my mother . . . but also getting back into civilian life, I cannot remember anyone giving me a helping hand.

"Many knew, but practically all said words such as 'well, Vic, that's life.'"

Meanwhile, medical examiners today were still examining Spencer's body.

An inquest is due to open Thursday but is expected to be adjourned after medical evidence, not as yet complete.

Deputy Police Chief John Fisk, questioned about the continuing police investigation of what was originally described as a "routine death," said considerable pains were being taken because of the national notoriety of Spencer.

He said there was no indication there was anything amiss, but no chances were being taken. He added that the RCMP, which had been under order to keep watch on Spencer, had nothing to do with the death investigation as such.

NOT A SPY

Meanwhile, Harry Rankin, lawyer for the spy-ring suspect, said he did not think Spencer was a spy.

"I suppose he has done something in some field, but it seems to me that if it had been very serious he would have been charged," the lawyer said. "He may have given something to the Russians — a picture or something else—but this doesn't make him a spy."

He said there was no mystery about Bill Ranta, previously described as Spencer's companion-bodyguard who had dropped from sight after the suspect's death. He said Ranta had been to see him twice since and was a 70-year-old violin-loving friend of the dead man and nothing else.

But Mr. Rankin said nothing about a black notebook which newspapers said police took from Spencer's home and which contained "a series of numbers and letters arranged in code form." A tape recorder and tape recording had also been taken by police, the newspapers said.

Rokos V, with a crew of 43 aboard, apparently weathered the storm after radioing early Tuesday it was being flooded and was in danger of sinking. A Coast Guard cutter today was escorting the Rokos V to Saint John, N.B., where it had been bound with a cargo of crude oil.

Capt. Soletti shifted course early today to avoid the centre of the furious storm. He said he expected to arrive in New York Friday, 24 hours behind schedule. The vessel sailed from Italy April 6.

Injured passengers were identified as Mrs. Geltlud Berndt, wife of one of the victims, and Mrs. Silvia Borini of Naples.

The injured crew members were Staff Capt. Claudio Cosulich, second in command of the Michelangelo, two stewardesses and three stewards.

The Italian Line said preliminary repairs would be made to the Michelangelo while it was in New York, and other less urgent repairs made on its return to Italy.

'U.S. Won't Open N-arm Umbrella'

PARIS (Reuters)—A leading French general, defending his country's decision to withdraw its forces from NATO, said today he believes the United States and Russia already have agreed not to attack each other with nuclear weapons if a nuclear war erupts in Europe.

Gen. Pierre Gallois, a former staff member of S.H.A.P.E. (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe), gave his views in an interview in the weekly magazine Paris-Match.

He declared that in his opinion the Americans would never open their protective nuclear umbrella over Europe if war came.

The same issue of Paris-Match presented a divergent viewpoint from French Gen. Paul Stehlin, a NATO commander for the last six years, who said the Atlantic alliance might well lose its effectiveness as a result of the planned French withdrawal from NATO.

Hovercraft Shipment

THORNEY ISLAND, England (CP)—The first of two RAF planes transporting a British-built hovercraft for Canadian arctic trials took off from this south coast Hampshire airfield Wednesday bound for Tuktoyaktuk in the Northwest Territories.

The big C-130 plane carried the hovercraft's centre section. A second aircraft will take off Thursday carrying the side sections, propeller and radar.

Only scheduled refuelling stop for the two planes is at the United States military base at Thule on the northwest coast of Greenland.

The hovercraft will be reassembled at Tuktoyaktuk, on the mouth of the MacKenzie River, and tested for all-season use as a general transport vehicle in arctic coastal areas and river basins.

Arts Student Wins Award

A fourth-year arts student at the University of Victoria has won a scholarship to study in Germany this summer.

Dafeny Horne, 2088 Brighton, will spend July and August at the Goethe Institute in the Bavarian Alps, studying German language and culture.

The scholarship, offered by the Goethe Institute, covers the cost of two months study.

Miss Horne will spend most of her time in the German town of Kochel, but will also visit Frankfurt, Berlin and Munich.

A graduate of Oak Bay Senior High School, she has specialized in modern languages, majoring in German and French.

Red Jet A Major Prize

BERLIN (UPI) — A Soviet mystery jet plane that crashed into a lake in West Berlin last week was identified today as the new Yak 28 which never before had been examined by western experts.

It was considered a major prize.

Parts of the plane salvaged from the lake were turned over to the Russians today after British experts photographed and studied them.

The aircraft was identified by Royal Air Force experts flown here from Britain to study it. Informed sources disclosed their findings.

The Yak 28, an improved version of the Yak 25, is a two-engine, all-purpose, all-weather jet fighter with a crew of two.

The jet was said to have unusual equipment not seen before in the west and new electronic navigational aids.

One report said it had a new anti-radar device to allow it to evade detection while in flight.

PREMIER KY TELLS STUDENTS

U.S. Must Attack China

SAIGON (UPI) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky believes the U.S. must attack China if the Viet Nam war is to be won.

It was learned that Premier Ky, fighting to save his government in a Buddhist-inspired political crisis, told the Saigon student council during a recent two-hour conference that he believed the war must be pushed to the Chinese mainland.

"Why doesn't the United States bomb Red China and destroy the root of the war?" the student council spokesman asked. "And why is it that many U.S. military operations are launched without consulting the Vietnamese high command?

"I disagree about one point," Ky was quoted as answering. "Every U.S. operation has been agreed upon by the armed forces of the republic of Viet Nam, but I agree that Red China is the root of the war, and I have told the Americans that some day soon they will have to have a face-to-face confrontation with Red China, and to solve the war in Viet Nam they will have to attack Red China."

Record . . . Of Human Tragedy; Girl in Coma for 25 Years

By IRENE ALBERT

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Thirty-one-year-old Elaine Esposito has set a world record—one of human tragedy.

For the last 25 years she has been in a coma—the longest period of human unconsciousness known to medical science.

On Aug. 6, 1941, the six-year-old daughter and only child of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Esposito was given anesthesia during surgery for a ruptured appendix. She never regained consciousness, and since has alternated between deep sleep and open-eyed unawareness of the world about her, knowing neither her mother nor father.

Medical opinion has been divided as to whether the child had incipient encephalitis at the time of the appendectomy or whether oxygen to the brain was insufficient while she was on the operating table.

Surgeons were closing the incision when their patient went into convulsions and her temperature soared to 107.6.

'MOMMY . . . DON'T WORRY'

"At first the doctors told us Elaine wouldn't live through the night. I waited for her to open her eyes and speak to me . . . but she never did," Mrs. Esposito recalled as she adjusted the coverlet around the shoulders of her dark-haired, dark-eyed daughter whose last words had been, "Mommy, I'm not afraid. Don't worry."

The tenacity with which the young woman has clung to life has baffled medical science. Attending physicians attributed the fact that she is still alive to the meticulous and devoted nursing she receives from her mother.

Kept as immaculate as a baby, she is fed eight ounces of special formula through a nazal tube four times a day. Medication also is administered through the tube.

The Espositos have been told over and over by specialists that there is no hope for Elaine, that she can never recover from such extensive brain damage and can never be normal.

"But I always hoped they were wrong," said the mother, who has also nursed her daughter through other serious illnesses.

1-TO-1,000 CHANCE

Two years after the appendectomy she had further major abdominal surgery and was given a 1-to-1,000 chance of pulling through. She has survived several bouts of pneumonia and an attack of measles.

About 16 years ago the girl's right lung colapsed and doctors said that a lower rib growing to the hip bone is causing her body to curve as she grows. Although she has gained a few pounds and added a few inches since childhood—she now weighs 85—her hands and feet are still those of a six-year-old.

When the Espositos realized that medical science could offer them no hope, they made a last desperate effort to rescue their daughter from her living death.

In 1956 they took her to the grotto at Lourdes in southern France in search of a miracle. Today, their lives absorbed by the unstirring figure in a pink bed with the blue bows, they are still waiting for the miracle.

Public Viewing Of New Ferry Next Wednesday

The public will be given a chance to view the new government ferry, Queen of Prince Rupert, next Wednesday.

The showing will follow official acceptance of the $6 million vessel by Premier W. A. C. Bennett at the Black Ball ferry wharf at 1:30 p.m.

After the three-hour viewing period she will return to Victoria Machinery Depot where she will remain until her maiden voyage between Kelsey Bay and Prince Rupert, May 20.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Cold air still dominated the province this morning but is now showing signs of moderating. Skies were mainly clear over the interior Tuesday night and below freezing temperatures were quite general with frost warnings still in effect in parts of southern B.C. Along the coast skies were mostly cloudy with snow showers in the north coast area and rain showers along the west coast of Vancouver Island.

With high pressure building into the province, lower mainland skies will clear and allow temperatures to reach near the 55 range. A Pacific disturbance now approaching the coast will spread cloud, milder air and gale force winds into coast areas tonight with rain expected Thursday morning.

Pro-English Party Eyes Next Election

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

MONTREAL—A new political party will speak in the name of Quebec's English-speaking minority.

The new Provincial Party, also dedicated to free enterprise, the monarchy and strong central government, hopes to win some support from "moderate" French-speaking Canadians but will run candidates mainly in ridings where the majority is English-speaking.

Montreal insurance dealer John P. Boyle, provisional president, said the party would contest "perhaps a dozen to 15 ridings, perhaps more," in Montreal and the Eastern Townships and would also "like to have a voice in Three Rivers."

The party is to be called the Quebec Conservative Party. But, Mr. Boyle said in an interview, it would have no connection with the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada, although he is himself a Conservative.

Mr. Boule once ran against Eric Kierans, provincial minister of health, in a by-election in the Montreal riding of Notre Dame de Grace. Although a Conservative, he ran as an independent.

Begin Campaign For Members

Mr. Boyle said the party is now in the stage of organizing its executive committees to prepare for a campaign to recruit a mass membership. Its present membership is about 100.

Mr. Boyle said the party was being formed because at present there appeared to be no one to speak up in defence of the non-French-speaking minority, of some 1,500,000 persons, in Quebec.

He said that such English-speaking members of Premier Jean Lesage's Liberal government as Health Minister Kierans might be making some such contribution privately.

"But there is nothing to indicate publicly that they have done anything," he charged.

Mr. Boyle accused Premier Lesage, Union Nationale leader Daniel Johnson, and such ministers as Rene Levesque, Pierre Laporte and Paul Gerin-Lajoie, of making "ridiculous, asinine statements" that gave the non-French minority reason to worry and stirred up hostility among the French-speaking majority.

Middle-Of-Road Aim For Party

Mr. Boyle emphasized that the party was to be a "middle-of-the-road" group, opposed to discrimination, favoring a "let's all work together" spirit.

French-speaking members would be welcomed.

He was asked if he thought there was a danger that the party would attract anti-French bigots.

"I haven't met one yet," he said. He added that if any such people did turn up they would be "politely asked to leave."

The Quebec Conservative party is to be flatly opposed to any expansion of public ownership.

Mr. Boyle rejected the view, held by many Quebec economists, that only through increased public ownership could French-speaking Canadians achieve a measure of control of their economy.

"For anyone with initiative," he said, "the world is open."

He favored bilingualism, but felt it should come naturally. Business should not rush to promote French-speaking persons simply because they were French-speaking.

In the public service he felt that "any man who speaks two languages is worth more than one who speaks only one." But to set a premium on French-English bilingualism only amounted to discrimination against the person who might speak, say, English and Italian, or French and German.

As a Montreal businessman himself he had never found it necessary to be able to speak French although, growing up in the province, he had learned a little French.

Sixth Party To Seek Vote

The new party is the sixth to announce its intention to contest the provincial elections expected this year.

The three other new groups that have arisen to challenge the established Liberals and Union Nationale are all strongly nationalist and either separatist or inclined toward separatism.

There is nothing in the recent history of Quebec politics to guarantee the new movement wide support.

The odd candidate who has run, in an English-speaking riding, as an independent "spokesman for the English Quebecker" has made a poor showing.

To many English-speaking Quebeckers the idea of an English party has seemed to betray a ghetto mentality.

Some observers fear that, whatever the good intentions of the party's founders, such a group would be bound to attract the most radical anti-French elements in the population.

There remains the fact, however, that many people have been upset by unilingually French traffic signs on some new roads, public statements like that in which Rene Levesque compared some English Quebeckers to white Rhodesians, and what has been interpreted as a slightly tougher attitude, on the part of Premier Lesage, towards the linguistic minority.

Youth Admits Stealing Tools During Errand

A youth who stole $465 worth of tools pleaded guilty in central court Tuesday to theft over $50.

Court was told Richard Cool of 893 Swan took the tools from Heaney's warehouse, 3300 Douglas.

He was on a delivery errand for his employer at the time, testified Detective John Stone of Saanich police.

The tools were the property of Snap-On Tools Ltd., of Vancouver.

Court was told he removed about $150 worth of the tools from the box they were in and tossed the remainder into Elk Lake Jan. 19.

Det. Stone said full recovery of the stolen goods was made.

S.A. TYCOON PAYS RANSOM FOR FAMILY

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—The wife of Johannesburg millionaire and their 20-month-old child were kidnapped and released after the husband paid ransom of 140,000 rand ($211,000), police disclosed today.

Police Commissioner Gen. Johannes Keevy said the kidnappers were later arrested, but one of them plunged to his death from a 12-storey apartment house in Johannesburg after breaking away from the police.

KLAN MEMBERS JOLTED BY EVIDENCE

Death 'Ordered' at Secret Meeting

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI) — The FBI Tuesday wove a story of a secret night meeting in a swamp in which the leader of the America's most militant Ku Klux Klan group ordered the death of Vernon Dahmer, called the "big NAACP nigger."

Thirteen of 14 suspects sat in the jury box watching quietly, intently as a series of FBI agents testified that six of their number had given statements implicating the others in a plot to kill Dahmer.

The testimony at the preliminary hearing led U.S. commissioner Jack H. Pittman, a crewcut young attorney, to bind the men over to the federal grand jury in two civil rights charges connected with Dahmer's death.

All were allowed to remain free on bond pending grand jury action. The 14th suspect picked up in an FBI raid at dawn in the Laurel area north of here waived the hearing, and his case was to also be considered by the grand jury.

The suspects received a jolt when FBI special agent J. L. Martin testified that Cecil Sessum, 30, of Ellisville, told agents of driving to a swampland north of Laurel, and being led to a highly secret Klan meeting.

"He stated that he (Sessum) opened the meeting with prayer," Martin related. "Following the prayer, Sam Bowers took over and stated that something had to be done with that Dahmer nigger in Forrest County.

"He said he had to be stopped," Martin quoted Sessum as saying. "Apparently, the Forrest County Klan is not going to do anything about it and we have to take matters into our own hands."

Bowers, 41, operator of a vending machine service at Laurel, was identified as imperial wizard of the white knights of the Ku Klux Klan, regarded by FBI agents as the nation's most secret and militant Klan group.

Sessum told of driving to the meeting place, and being met by hooded men in cars who led him deep into the swamps where Bowers, Deavours Nix, Melvin S. Martin, Charles Lowe, Clifton Lowe, E. B. Moss and Lawrence Byrd were gathered.

Martin said the meeting occurred two or three weeks before the Jan. 10 firebomb assault on the home of Dahmer, a Negro businessman active in a voter registration drive. Dahmer died as a result of the blaze, and several other members of his family were injured.

The New Challenge

THE FUNDAMENTAL NATURE of the new job-training plans that will be implemented by the proposed federal Department of Manpower have perhaps not yet been grasped by the public. They amount to nothing less than a sudden step into the age of automation, with a radically new approach to the idea of state responsibility for the training of workers.

In a recent Toronto address, Mr. Jean Marchand, the minister of citizenship and immigration, outlined some of the implications of the Manpower portfolio: they go far beyond any policies yet undertaken in regard to unemployment assistance or regular adult education.

There is, for instance, a new view of some of the community services which we have taken for granted. Due for a major change in this regard, says Mr. Marchand, is "the concept that education is only for the young, and that training is only for those who have failed at a job. We must convince people that the education process is essential for adults as well as children, and that training and retraining are a normal part of the working life of our people in our changing economic life."

In other words, the old idea that a man learned a job when young and worked at it for the rest of his career must be abandoned in this age. A worker may have several quite different jobs during his productive years, and be trained separately for each of them. This, indeed, may become the rule rather than the exception.

It is neither fair nor nationally feasible, says Mr. Marchand, that many Canadians cannot be a part of the prosperity that has come to the country as a whole. "What we are trying to do," he says, "is to make sure that nobody, by lacking training, education or other opportunity, is without a chance to share the high standard of living we have developed. . . ."

This will require a new approach to training. An unemployed man who goes on a training course in future will not be considered as unemployed. He will cease drawing unemployment insurance and his rights to receive benefits will not be depleted. Instead, he will be paid while training for new work, and Mr. Marchand hopes that with provincial agreements these payments may be as high as $90 a week for a family man.

Coupled with re-training will be assistance to get the worker to where the work is. "It is one of the most important jobs ever undertaken by government," says Mr. Marchand. Certainly it opens up a whole new vista of government participation in the economic life of the individual.

There would appear to be no alternative to this or a similar plan. If the country's productivity is to remain high and on a competitive basis with that of other nations, the working force must be able to cope with changing techniques, new processes, vanishing occupations and newly created skills. Few persons will be able to meet these crises on their own. It will become a recognized part of the state's function to keep its people in a condition of readiness for the demands of our era—an era that is dominated by an ever-accelerating pace of change, scientific and technical advance, developing needs and means of meeting them.

The next likely step after this will be apparent to many a worker: it will be training not only for new jobs but for the new abundance of leisure that will be provided by the growth of automation. Learning—the development of mental and physical faculties—will become an end in itself, a method of enjoyment and occupation, rather than a means to an economic end: a way of meeting the demands presented by mass freedom from the necessity of paying for one's livelihood with one's labor. Few greater challenges, or dangers, will ever have faced civilization.

Careful! It's Loaded

SENATOR WARREN G. MAGnuson of Washington has every right to urge hard bargaining by Americans now negotiating with Canadians on the share of salmon each should be allowed to catch on this coast.

The Canadians, he feels, are seeking a larger slice, and he points to American contributions toward re-establishment of the Fraser runs over a period of years.

The senator says "it would be a tragic blot on the co-operative conservation history of the U.S.-Canada salmon harvest if our neighbors should take a position that present conditions and economic contributions are supreme and discard the long-standing historic participation which our co-operative success has established."

Should such a "one-sided consideration" as he calls it, creep into negotiations, then the United States "would certainly re-analyze the present historic markets which Canadian fishery products now enjoy in this country, and examine the situation in light of present-day fishery interests."

This would be, in the senator's view, a "tragic development, not only in developing American foreign policy but in the very excellent relations we have enjoyed with Canada."

Senator Magnuson is not pointing a gun at Canada's head by suggesting re-examination of Canadian fish exports to the United States. But he is tapping his holster to indicate that there is a gun in it. This is an unfortunate gesture, particularly at present.

American imports of Canadian fisheries products are important to Canadians. But Canada, it might be pointed out to the senator, does not sell only to the United States, which is its best customer in total trade. It also buys from the United States and in such volume that Canada is the Americans' best customer. And last year Canada bought $1.056 billion more in goods from the United States than it sold to that country.

When Senator Magnuson taps his holster to draw attention to the import gun, he might be reminded that it is loaded. Accidents have occurred to gun handlers who ignored that fact.

The Legends Dim

IT IS MELANCHOLY TO READ of the hunger strike launched last weekend by Erse-speaking Irishmen to protest the alleged betrayal of ideals in support of which the Easter uprising of 1916 took place.

Half a century after the event, those fired with the old-time zeal lament the apparent cooling of ardor toward concepts they held dear. They regret the acceptance of Northern Ireland. They are moved by the dwindling importance attached to the use of the Irish language.

Yet surely these are developments that could not be forestalled. Modern communciations and interdependence have shrunk the world to a point at which the traditional Irish hostilities have become anachronisms. And the spread of the English language through commerce was unavoidable.

Presumably the people who have undertaken the hunger strike will survive their ordeal—and, surviving, find a certain satisfaction in being alive even though many of the cherished aspirations of their forebears have died.

"... on the other hand ... if the Buddhists fight Ky while Ky is fighting the Viet Cong and the Viet Cong are fighting against us, then if we help the Buddhists, who are against Ky, we'd be against Ky really, but if we fight the Buddhists we'd be helping the Viet Cong, and so harming Ky, however ..."

A TORY PLAN

By MAURICE WESTERN

To Solve Today's Problems Tomorrow

ALTHOUGH the budget debate has been obscured and left dangling by other business, enough has been said in Ottawa to indicate the basic positions of the various parties. Any budget is based upon the government's analysis of the economic situation and the trends which are likely to develop over the next 12 months. It is a challenge to the opposition to make its own reading of the signs and portents and on this basis to criticize the measures proposed by the minister of finance.

Western

Mr. Sharp's budget is avowedly intended to contain the boom and thus to protect the economy against the successive shocks of surging inflation and wrenching deflation. Does the Conservative opposition agree that the situation calls for anti-inflationary policies and, if so, does it consider the government's proposals adequate for the maintenance of stability?

The general impression is that Mr. Monteith has met his problem in the fashion of many of his predecessors by coming down on both sides of the question. Inflation is a bad word and he is against it; expansion is good and we should have more of it. The government should have shown more determination in meeting the threat but it ought not to have involked anti-inflationary measures which are deservedly unpopular. The budge is "innocuous" but full of dangers and, of course, inept. Mr. Sharp should have taken a "hard line" in curtailing expenditures while spending more on everything in sight.

All Contingencies

It appears, in other words, that Mr. Monteith has prepared himself against all contingencies. If the boom gets out of hand, he will, no doubt, recall his warning that "this budget does little to control inflation." If there should be any slump in demand, he can point to an appropriate passage warning the minister against putting on the brakes. Practically anyone who feels the need of sympathy will be able to find it in Mr. Monteith's speech.

The criticism is, however, a bit superficial. For all the political insurance with which the Conservative financial critic protected himself, a careful reading shows that he did in fact make a choice. The weight of his attack was against the anti-inflationary measures of the Sharp budget. Instead of urging restraint on the government, Mr. Monteith tells us in effect that his watchword, if he stood in Mr. Sharp's place, would be: "Damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead."

We are suffering the highest taxes in history and nothing is being done about it. This is a prime Conservative complaint. Mr. Monteith is against the new taxes and critical of the government's failure to remove the 11 per cent tax on building materials and the sales tax on drugs. But he would go much farther by allowing a $500 municipal tax reduction for income tax purposes, as advocated by the Conservatives in the recent election.

With all these tax cuts, it is small wonder that Mr. Monteith favors a "hard line" on government expenditures. But does he? If so, why does he taunt the government with its failure to spend $1 million on a Vancouver skating rink, another $1 million on Digby harbor, another $25 million for Cape Breton coal, another $100 million for roads in the Yukon?

Protests Tax, Wants More

These, however, are minor items. Mr. Monteith refers bitterly to tax increases consequent on the Canada Pension Plan but in the same speech repeats his call for $100 old age pensions, and castigates the government for leaving many injustices uncorrected.

At the very least this is a prescription for a heavily unbalanced budget suitable perhaps for a time of recession but as helpful in an inflationary situation as gasoline on a fire. This, however, is not all. Mr. Monteith also opposes the non-budgetary refundable tax on corporations, which is intended to siphon off until a later period some of the pressure now forcing up construction and modernization costs. He calls it a partial confiscation of capital and argues that it will not, in any event, act as a restraint on expansion plans.

To these various objections, Mr. Monteith has an answer which was also developed—and more persuasively—by Mr. Hamilton. It is that the government should act against inflation not by dampening demand but by increasing supply. This is also, in general, the argument of the NDP, which is even less disposed than the Conservatives to support fiscal and monetary anti-inflationary policies.

It is possible to base such an argument, as Mr. Hamilton did, on selected passages from reports of the economic council. But the council takes a longer perspective than is possible for a minister of finance. What Mr. Sharp has to recognize is that inflation is acting now and with increasing force. The resources which Mr. Monteith would use against it can be brought into play only over time. In other words the Conservative answer to a "procrastination budget" is systematic procrastination. It seems to be almost a fool-proof method of missing the bus.

One of the most serious difficulties at many points in the economy now is a skilled labor shortage. It is perfectly true that there is unemployment, especially in Quebec and the Maritimes. But not all of those out of work are employable; not all of the unskilled are capable of acquiring skills and those who are cannot be converted into skilled workers overnight. Mr. Monteith, quite properly, argues for higher productivity, but the effect of inflation anywhere is to draw into skilled positions the semi-skilled, with an unavoidable loss in productivity.

We should, of course, draw on the resources of other countries through immigation, and there is nothing in the Sharp budget to prevent this. But the skills we want most are everywhere in short supply. We can find the unskilled and should welcome more of them but they can be trained only over a longer period of time.

The trouble is that inflation will not wait, either for the training of skilled manpower or for the investment over time which may ultimately make good some now critical shortages. Mr. Monteith has a policy for tomorrow to meet a situation crucial today. For the rest he would meet inflation by stoking inflation while warning of inflation. It does not seem an adequate alternative to Mr. Sharp's budget.

Battle Gains Offset by Politics

THE political crisis in Viet Nam has inevitably pushed into the background the trend of the fighting there. Yet this trend is so encouraging that one needs to know about it, in order to make a balanced judgment. Briefly, both the South Vietnamese and American troops have continued their operations against the Viet Cong without the smallest relaxation of pressure, in the whole period since the crisis began with the dismissal of the First Corps commander, General Nguyen Chanh Thi.

Alsop

In the first month of the tumultuous crisis—the four weeks ending April 9—more was achieved than in any comparable period to date. In major and minor engagements all over Viet Nam, the Viet Cong left on the field of battle a counted total of 4,360 men who had been killed in action; and in the same period, 521 VC were taken prisoner in combat.

This almost certainly means, in turn, that the Vietnamese and American forces are now inflicting a rate of loss on the Viet Cong which the ememy cannot indefinitely withstand. The most pessimistic American intelligence estimates give the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese a combined capability of putting 8,000 new men per month in the ranks in South Viet Nam. But the gaps in the ranks quite clearly exceeded 8,000 by a rather wide margin during the month in question.

One can get a rough idea of the nature of the margin by the intelligence that has now been obtained, from captured documents and in other ways, concerning the results of the bloody battle in the Ia Drang valley last October. In that engagement, the body count of enemy dead left on the battlefield reached 1,285.

Initially, this figure was rather heavily discounted, since the count obviously included a good many porters and the like, as well as enemy soldiers. Subsequently, however, the North Vietnamese general in command, who has the pseudonym of Bai Quan, gave an interview to a Cambodian newspaper containing the admission that the Ia Drang fighting had cost 3,000 casualties among his men.

As might be expected, moreover, Bai Quan's admitted loss-figure was almost surely an understatement. On the basis of the other intelligence above-mentioned, it is reliably calculated that the enemy's real loss in the Ia Drang fighting was close to 5,000 men, either killed or disablingly wounded.

Enemy Casualties

If the same ratios are applied to the body count of enemy dead for the month ending April 9, it would appear that the true total of enemy casualties in this period may well have reached 18,000 men. This is 10,000 more than the replacements secured in the same period. In the fighting, therefore, the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are now being hurt very badly indeed.

Per contra, there is no dodging the fact that the government of General Nguyen Cao Ky is being hurt very badly, and perhaps fatally, by the continuing political crisis. At any rate in the northern provinces comprising the First Corps area, the real authority is now exercised by the Buddhist opposition.

The new First Corps commander who has lately been named, General Ton Tat Dinh, is not exactly a confidence-inspiring leader. In these provinces, too, there is a concentration of up to eight regiments—close to three divisions—of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese "main forces." Thus an enemy military offensive may perhaps be concerted with the Buddhists' political offensive in this corps area.

In the Buddhist "struggle movement," too, it is by now quite clear that all members of the Viet Cong underground in the cities are under orders to participate actively. They are not numerous enough to "struggle" on their own. But members of the underground constitute an important reinforcement for the followers of the Buddhist leader, Thich Tri Quang, whose ultimate aim remains as hard to ascertain as ever.

The best informed men in Washington confess, nowadays, that the final outcome of the political crisis is quite unpredictable. But the possibility of a new government, replacing that of General Ky, can certainly not be ruled out. And if there is a new government, it is likely to be a weaker government, at any rate for the time being.

On our side, in short, the immediate political outlook is far from encouraging. But when this is said, it must also be remembered that on the enemy's side, the military outlook, both immediate and long range, is very discouraging indeed.

Looking Back

From The Times of April 13, 1906:

An organization to be named the Victoria Development Association was born as a result of a meeting of Victoria boosters last night. The new association, designed to complement the already active Tourist Association, will interest itself in the attraction of new settlers to the lands around the city, the reception and entertainment of visitors and conventions, the attraction of new industry to the area, and the instruction of Victoria schoolchildren in the possibilities of the city.

India's Need

Mrs. Gandhi has sparked a generous response at Washington, evidently a capital still capable of thinking in humane terms despite all the bad things being said about it these days.

Indeed, when one considers the generous American response to the famine problem that faces India and compare it with our own cash trading for wheat it isn't too surprising that Mrs. Gandhi chose not to come to Canada.

"Let it never be said that bread should be so dear and flesh and blood so cheap that we turned in indifference to her bitter need." These words with regard to India are not from Hansard. They were spoken by President Johnson to the American Congress. Do the "flesh and blood" issues equally concern us? Or is the price tag determinant?—Trade Unionist.

Rhodesian Trial Period

Here is a suggestion for Mr. Wilson's consideration. Let him grant conditional independence to Rhodesia, within the Commonwealth, for a trial period of say 10 years, to see how they propose to rule the country and educate the natives to bring them nearer to participation in the government of the country. At the end of 10 years, the situation could be re-examined and if necessary further negotiations opened up.

I believe that such a proposal would meet with almost general approval.—E. W. Abraham, 1125 Faithful.

Prospect Water

The water and pollution issues are being argued out again at Prospect Lake. While I sympathize with folks in the community who have a satisfactory and clean water supply and we feel that they do not want piped-in water, I would like to suggest to them that they too should be concerned about our drinking water being polluted to the danger level at the lake.

If anyone still doubts that this is the case, he should get in touch with our senior medical health officer. Dr. Whitbread warned us first three years ago, in an official letter sent to all lake residents. Since then nothing constructive has been done, except advising us to boil the water. If an epidemic should break out here everyone would suffer, and remember one did just two months ago, at Metchosin, and this outbreak was traced to polluted well water. Infectious hepatitis is an extremely serious disease and also a contagious one.—Norman B. Britnell, 271 Eastlake.

Our Problem Too

New York Times

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S latest pleas to businessmen and consumers for hold-down in spending may have some effect in reducing inflationary pressures. Exhortation, after all, is a legitimate and sometimes useful weapon of economic policy. Certainly it contributed to the remarkable stability in wages and prices that prevailed until late in 1965. Without Mr. Johnson's unceasing efforts to induce labor and industry to accept voluntary restraints, the economy would now be in much more critical shape.

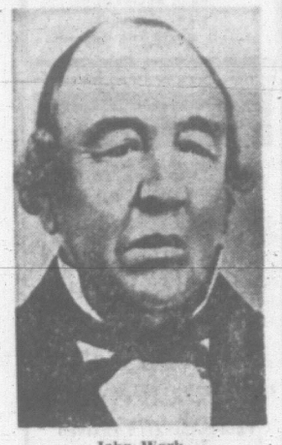

A balanced program of restraint on the administration's part would not involve an abandonment of voluntary restraint. On the contrary, it is the one way to assure that the art of persuasion will succeed. To depend on voluntary restraint alone is to risk a further build-up of inflationary forces—and an eventual over-reaction on the part of the administration.

Even so, surging demand is straining the nation's productive capacity. Restraint is needed more than ever but it will not come simply on the basis of the admonition the President has given government agencies to set an example by cutting their own outlays, wherever possible. There has been a tightening in monetary policy by the Federal Reserve. But except for the cancellation of some excise tax cuts, fiscal policy has not really been employed to tamp down demand. Instead, the main impact of the administration's present tax program is to stoke demand for credit, not to slow demand for goods.

Mr. Johnson's new appeals are an acknowledgement that braking demand is the key to resisting inflation. The best contribution the government could make now would be a temporary suspension in the investment tax credit, which may be leading to excesses in capital investment, and some slight, temporary increase in tax rates, which would limit spending and relieve uncertainty elsewhere.

Founders of B.C.

An Indian had a hard time making an honest dollar when he had to deal with shrewd Hudson's Bay traders like John Work. An Indian brought two fine buck deer into Fort

John Work

Simpson in 1835. In return he received a half-pint of rum, a quart of molasses, six pounds of buckshot and two heads of tobacco. Work reckoned the outlay to cost two shillings and sevenpence — less than 50 cents. The deer, he estimated would feed 26 men for one day.

Born in Northern Ireland in 1792 (an estimate), he joined the company in 1814 and served first at York Factory and at other Hudson's Bay forts for eight years. In 1823 he was sent to Fort Vancouver on the Columbia River, wide-ranging fur trade expeditions over the Oregon country. In 1834, now a Chief Factor, he was appointed manager of the coastal trade and sent to Fort Simpson.

Work came to Victoria in 1852 and though he had supported James Douglas in opposing representative government on Vancouver Island (too few people to govern and nobody to pay taxes, he said), he became a member of the Legislative Council in 1853. He died in office eight years later at the age of 71.

In 47½ years with the company he never took a leave although he was entitled to one year every seven. He missed only two of the more than 100 meetings of the Legislative Council while he was in office. His wife, Josette, a Spokan halfbree, bore him a large family. At the time of his death he was the largest landowner in the island colony, owning an estate of 1,304 acres.

Society Must Seriously Consider The Problems of Longer Life Span

I want to discuss what science has done, and may do, to our longevity.

The effect of medical knowledge and economic privilege so far has been to prolong life without prolonging the life span — to make more of us reach the period of old age by suppressing incidental earlier causes of death; hence the proportionate increase in the number of old people in our societies.

The commonest age of death in Saxons who survived infancy, judging from their bones, was 35 or 40, though a few reached their 70s or their hundred years.

Today the commonest age of death is between 75 and 80. Between 1962 and 1972 we may expect at least a 21 per cent increase in the total number of people between 65 and 69, and a 16 per cent increase in over-70s.

The numbers of young people are also increasing, so we may expect over the same period, no more than a 1 per cent increase in the proportion of elderly to non-elderly, but the absolute numbers are rising.

By DR. ALEX COMFORT

(Extracts from a lecture delivered to the Royal Society of Arts by a noted British expert on science and aging.)

They pose a major problem in priorities. None of us, even the financially prosperous, can today look forward with much relish to the old age of our relatives, or of ourselves.

The fact is that given the change in family behavior, availability of surplus unmarried daughters devoted, nunwise, to the care of old relatives, and the ability of medicine to prolong survival without preventing the continuance of the decline in individual vigor, our society still makes no effectual provision for the old.

Don't Cater For Comfort

We neither cater justly for their comfort when failing—there are still homes, run by worthy bodies and individuals, in which old couples are separated into different wards — nor do we make use of their abilities when still hale.

Retirement is compulsory, earnings are discouraged; the impecunious survive with relatives until the institution takes over — the more prosperous worry their way round unsatisfactory hotels and nursing homes. It is still our cultural image of the old that they should be neither seen nor heard, and that they should not be so disobliging, when no longer able or willing to live alone, as to overstay their welcome longer.

We ought to be ashamed of ourselves, and I wish we were.

We could make better use of older citizens already, without any fundamental advance in life prolongation, if we could reconcile public opinion to the need for it.

At the moment, unions are scared that older workers will be denied retirement benefits or used as cheap labor, and employers and executives fear that promotion schedules would be upset. We are not using the present "working life" as we could do.

Little Known About Strength

One of the striking things about old age is that it makes us weak. Between the ages of 30 and 70, a man's muscular strength declines, on the average, to the level it had when he was 12 or 13. Now we know very little about this process: surprisingly so, since it is quite one of the most familiar changes in the human picture, and generations of humans have observed it.

We're interested in the fundamental changes that cause cells to deteriorate or die with increasing age, and a large part of our notice is now concentrated on the so-called "fixed" cells; those that we don't normally replace during life.

It is accordingly very attractive to try to attack the problem of the ageing of fixed cells by way of this problem of muscular ageing, and there are several subsidiary pay-offs. One is that, very naturally, old folk don't like investigations that involve drawing blood, swallowing tubes, and the like, and, personally, I don't blame them.

Muscle Test Quite Simple

But muscular strength is something you can test with a try-your-strength machine of quite a simple king, without any discomfort, and as often as one cares to do it. This makes it possible, using muscle strength as a criterion, to get an objective measure of the efficacy of any treatment that one may be testing.

I have taken muscular ageing as an example of the type of clinical research, with benefits, which could also yield fundamental results. Other palliative possibilities certainly lie ahead — especially if it becomes possible to extend prosthetics beyond false teeth and artificial kidneys to the grafting of organs and tissues between individuals.

The aim of all this work is not as some pessimists will immediately complain, to keep us alive beyond our strength — it is to prolong our strength to last as long as our life, and perhaps to lengthen that as well.

In the social field, we know what is needed to cope with the growing problem of old age in urban cultures — more money and a fundamental change of attitude.

One would have thought that if the sufferings and difficulties of our own relatives were not incentive enough, the certainty of our own old age would make us act out of pure self-interest.

We have the example of the Scandinavian countries, which increasingly provide proper residential facilities where the old can live with privacy among their own possessions, with nursing and domestic help on call when it is needed.

We have also the successes of intensive geriatric medicine. By means of physiotherapy, dental and eye care, and medical treatment — much of it still experimental — the vigor, and not only the existence, of old people can be prolonged, and could be prolonged further. But unless we are ready to rearrange our society to make room for them, rather than slough them off and hope they will not stay alive too long, there is no point in such work.

The object of experimental gerontology, in contrast to general medicine, is to "read out" the program of the ageing process itself in order to ascertain whether, and if so by what means, it is possible to tamper directly with the timing mechanism upon which the age of onset of the general senile increase in death liability depends.

DR. ALEX COMFORT

If this were done, the age of onset of all or most diseases would be set back in time and the plateau of adult vigor prolonged; that is, gerontology is the experimental study of age processes directed to a fundamental control over the rate of ageing.

At its most general level ageing appears to be what engineers would call an "information loss" — we lose vigor because, like a spacecraft designed to photograph Mars and then be expendable, after a certain point we run out of program.

Our job in gerontology is first to read back the program, then to identify the sources of the increasing noise which upsets it, and finally, to design means of protecting and perhaps even "cleaning" it.

What is needed to bring the research in a wide range of fields together is a deliberate cultivation of scientific interest. It would not at present be sufficient for any government to offer cash in vacuo—over the last ten years research on ageing has shed its association with monkey glands and become respectable, but not imaginatively popular.

Need to Take Subject Seriously

What we most need is the setting up of a project, centred if possible in an ad hoc institute within a university, which would make it clear to young and coming biologists that this is a subject which society takes seriously and which deserves their consideration.

In terms of the revolution which a proper understanding of ageing could produce, this would be an inexpensive investment. An initial half million pounds would probably be plenty.

It seems a sober assessment to say (1) that geriatric medicine, using only the knowledge we now have, could greatly lighten the burden of old age if we took its provision and staffing seriously; (2) that research will almost certainly extend the range of the help it can give to senile symptoms; (3) that there is the real possibility of a break-through affecting either human vigor at high ages, or the human lifespan, or both.

I think that even while it remains speculative the public and the administration should realize that the possibility exists.

NATO Motion Tests De Gaulle's Support

By ANDREW MULLIGAN

PARIS — The French National Assembly has opened in a political atmosphere charged with excitement and change.

After seven years of Gaullism the December presidential elections — in which the left-wing candidate M. Francois Mitterrand polled 45 per cent of the vote — showed that General de Gaulle's unquestioned supremacy was no longer acceptable to the electorate.

In a brilliantly-timed manoeuvre, M. Guy Mollet, the secretary general of the Socialist Party, has tabled a no-confidence motion on the government's NATO policy which will be debated after the Easter vacation, in mid-April. The move not only attacks the government's foreign policy but also embarrasses its allies.

37 Divided

The 37 Republican Independents led by the former finance minister, M. Valery Giscard d'Estaing, on whom the Gaullists depend for their majority in the Assembly, are divided over NATO. A third are said to support the Gaullist line, a third to be undecided and the rest against.

M. Mollet's move embarrasses M. Francois Mitterrand who is searching for closer ties with the Communists in his left-wing "social and democratic federation." It exposes a fundamental disagreement between Socialists and Communists on foreign policy. The 39 Communists may vote for de Gaulle on the NATO issue.

New Motion

M. Jean Lecanuet, the Christian Democrat (MRP) leader, could approve the Socialists' motion of censure and has vaguely considered tabling one himself. He has not excluded an alliance with the non-Communist Left even though this could finally cause a rupture with 10 pro-Gaullist MRP deputies. M. Mollet has never excluded the possibility of electoral alliances with the centre where alliances with the Communists prove impracticable.

The government has pledged that this will be "an economic and social year." It is also a campaign year for next year's parliamentary elections and the government is under heavy fire on both foreign and domestic policies.

Are Vietnamese Aspirations 'Perhaps, a Trifle High'?

By WARD JUST
—The Washington Post

SAIGON—The former high official of a short-lived Vietnamese government of two years past—or was it only a year?—languidly stirs his post-luncheon coffee, and sighs. The restaurant is nearly empty at 2:45 p.m., the noontime siesta all but ended.

The official, well-tailored in a blue suit, has been speaking of the current crisis, and has expressed optimism that a way out would be found. But he believes it to be a blot on the national character, "an awful thing to have happened."

But after all, he says, what could you expect from "that child" as prime minister. That youngster, that cowboy, that political babe in the woods, that fly-boy with no education, no understanding . . . his words trail off with a wave of the hand.

Bad Associates

And his associates. The commandant of this corps is stealing. The commander of that corps involved in extortion. The family of the wife of official X is building the biggest building in Nha Trang, and the family of the wife of official Y is building the second biggest. And have you heard about General Z? He has cornered the cement market, and is sending it to Cam Ranh Bay in chartered vessels.

The official leans forward and begins an earnest preamble. He is talking about the Americans now, and he must be certain that his American host does not misunderstand. The Americans; he respects and adores the Americans. It is the greatest democracy in the world, the United States. The Americans are pouring billions into Viet Nam, he says, and the trouble is that they are not deeply enough involved in the country. Non-interference in internal affairs is fine as a slogan, he indicates, but in Viet Nam, well, there are different rules here.

The fact, is, and he says it slowly and carefully, that the Americans bear a measure of responsibility for what has happened.

The Americans established Ky, the official tells his host, wound him up for nine months, anointed him at Honolulu, and ignored the signs of discontent that were everywhere for those who had eyes to see. If only, the official says, if only the Americans had sought a broader base, if only they had been able to prevent the ascendancy of Ky in the first place.

Ambassador Maxwell Taylor tried, but was either not forceful enough, not talented enough, or not possessed of sufficient weapons to pull it off. If only the Americans had insisted upon a leader with a base of support, then all this need not have happened.

A Whirlpool

Well, the official says—and he uses it as a throw-away line—there was nothing to be done after the madness of sacking General Thi. It has been a whirlpool of disaster since then, with Americans watching with horrified fascination as the water swirled out of the bathtub, the plug lost, and no one willing to wet his hands.

Do you know why the Americans are unpopular here now? The official jabs a finger across the table and replies that it is because of unqualified support of Nguyen Cao Ky. We supported an unpopular man fronting for an unpopular government, and the people hold us responsible. "That is what you must now face," he says.

So now, the former official says wearily, the Vietnamese will have to try to put it together again. The first step will be a meeting of moderates. There will be some sort of interim government, a regime without Ky, an assembly, a constitution, and eventually the people will be brought together. The five northern-most provinces will rejoin the republic, the Buddhists will be pacified, the Catholics pleased, the Hoa Hao and Cao Dai mollified.

Military Change

And of course there will have to be changes in the military superstructure. The corps commanders will have to have their authority diminished, the generals must fight, not govern. The economy will have to be put right. Something must be done for the students. Anti-Americanism is getting out of hand, and something must be done about that. Through these changes, the former official said, Americans must show wisdom.

One emerges into a hot, humid street at midday. One stands for a moment, idly yawning and watching the traffic. There is somnolence and a soft breeze.

"Do you think," one says "Do you think that the aspirations of the Vietnamese are perhaps a trifle high?"

"Yes," says the officials with a bright smile. "Yes, the aspirations of the Vietnamese are very high."

THE GALLUP POLL

Americans Feel President Doing His Best in War

By the American Institute of Public Opinion

During recent months, the Gallup Poll has reported public sentiment on many phases of the war in Viet Nam. An analysis shows the efforts of the Johnson administration in the Viet Nam conflict meet with the approval of well over half of all persons interviewed. Only about one person in four disapproves of the job being done by the administration.

The nation's adults give the president a vote of confidence, not because he has been able to solve the difficult problems presented by the war in Viet Nam, racial difficulties, inflation and many other problems which face the United States, but because "His decisions so far have been good," "He's doing as well as any other man in his job could."

There has been a general downward trend since early November in the president's approval score, which has levelled out in this last survey.

The question: "Do you approve or disapprove of the way President Johnson is handling the situation in Viet Nam?"

Maybe a Return to Flowers And Away from Whoop-de-Do?

By ART STOTT

The chairman of the Chamber of Commerce sponsored spring flower festival has been completely candid in his assessment of this year's event. He says it has been disappointing.

Stott

Implicit in his report is the suggestion that the purpose and design of the program should be analysed. Such an analysis might determine whether the intent of the festival—to draw visitors to the city early in the year and to provide a stimulant for an economy sluggish with spring fever—is sound, and if it is, what is required to achieve success.

Should such a study be made, perhaps it might be wise to expand it to cover the event which the spring flower festival replaced in this community. That was the annual spring garden tour arranged by the Victoria Horticultural Society.

★ ★ ★

The latter was a success—a significant contribution to horticulturists of this region and far afield. The success rested on a number of factors, chief among them the tireless, year-round work of the members of the society which staged the tours, sent out the publicity, arranged transportation and spotted informed experts in various gardens to discuss flowers and shrubs with interested people visiting them.

The sponsors also arranged their event for the first week in May—a time when flora which flourishes here better than elsewhere was at its peak.

The society, moreover, considered only the appeal of Victoria gardens to garden lovers. It did not attempt to cover the whole community—just those who liked attractively designed grounds and were impressed by distinctive varieties. There was no whoop-de-do.

The daffodil and crocus season was pretty well over when the tours took place. Featured were shrubs, flowering trees, rhododendrons, azaleas, rock and alpine plants and others for which our particular climate is suitable. The society appreciated the fact that a certain publicity value existed in the earliness with which daffs and the like bloomed here, but knew, also that daffs grow almost anywhere within a few weeks of their appearance in Victoria. Hence the concentration on material which did not thrive elsewhere, in places where spring is almost an over-night transition from late winter to early summer.

And the society was not particularly interested in making its tours a business proposition to stimulate the local economy—though, particularly when ferries were on a regular run from Seattle, they brought in a lot of out-of-town visitors who placed a reasonable number of orders for special stock as well as spending tourist dollars here.

It would be unfair to suggest that the Chamber of Commerce event elbowed the spring garden tours out of existance. As one of the horticultural society leaders explained, his fellow-members were growing a little weary of well-doing. When something else came along, the opportunity was given to them to withdraw gracefully.

Now, Victoria has its spring flower festival and the current workers feel that public support of the program they devised leaves something to be desired.

Under other circumstances, it might be wise to decide whether or not the city would profit more by a return to the old garden tours than removing the bugs from the newer arrangements. But prevailing circumstances have to be considered.

First of these is the attitude of the Victoria Horticultural Society. It staged its tours before the war, suspended them during hostilities, and then resumed the program from 1947 to 1963 with pyramiding success. The very success of the functions, however, multiplied the work. Could the members be persuaded to take on the job if it were decided to return the spring festival to them? With sufficient guarantees of support, they might be. Maybe it's worth a try.

$100 MILLION PROJECT

TV Satellite System Talked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Communications Satellite Corp. (COMSAT) believes that a satellite system to serve America's 600 television stations is not only feasible but "a natural."

COMSAT, which already is putting a global system of communications satellites into orbit, has no firm plans for a domestic system as yet, but its studies show no major technical problems stand in the way.

COMSAT officials got together with their opposite numbers from the National Broadcasting Co. (NBC) to discuss the future of TV satellites Tuesday.

The estimate that came out of the meeting was that it would take about three years and cost about $100 million to put such a system into operation. Two or possibly four new satellites would be put into orbit and TV stations would be connected by means of 225 receiving stations. U.S. television stations now are connected to the networks through cables.

COMSAT officials said the users would pay between $25 million and $35 million for the satellite service.

OWN RECEIVERS

NBC said it was thinking of a six-satellite system with each TV or radio station receiving signals directly from the satellites through its own receiver.

The initial investment under the NBC system would be about $103 million, network officials said. Users of a system serving four networks would pay about $19 million a year — a saving of at least $8 million a year for each network, they said.

COMSAT board chairman James McCormack told newsmen after the day-long meeting that a domestic system of communications satellites would certainly come into being sooner or later. He said it was "a natural."

But major questions remain to be answered:

- Who would own and operate the system?
- Would it include just TV or also telephone, telegraph and other kinds of communications?

COMSAT president Joseph V. Charyk said the corporation felt it should own both the satellites and any earth stations to be built.

Others have disagreed with this view, especially in connection with the earth stations.

Under the four-satellite system envisaged by COMSAT, two satellites would be standbys which could carry TV programs but would normally carry other kinds of communications.

COMSAT officials plan to meet next week with experts from American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and Western Union to discuss other aspects of the domestic satellite problem.

$1.29 Million Damage Suit

HOUSTON (UPI)—Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. was sued by 11 former stockholders Tuesday for $1.29 million damages concerning the 1963 discovery of ore in Canada.

The petition alleged company officials "conspired" to allow investors to sell their stock at a price lower than the actual value.

Reports that Texas Gulf withheld word on the ore strike kicked off a widespread controversy and a federal investigation.

LENGTHY MINE STRIKE

New Settlement Formula Studied

VANCOUVER (CP) — A proposed settlement formula to end a lengthy dispute that has almost crippled the economy of Merritt was handed Tuesday to both the union and the company involved.

Both the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) and Craigmont Mines Ltd. planned to study the suggested settlement before commenting.

Details of the plan, worked out by industrial inquiry commissioner Mr. Justice Victor Dryer, were not disclosed.

Labor Minister Peterson warned both company and union representatives that his department had exhausted its efforts to settle the dispute. He said he expected a decision by both sides in about one week.

The 400 employees of the copper mine at Merritt struck Sept. 30 in a dispute largely concerning wages. The strike at this town's major employer has hit hard at business, some of which warned they face bankruptcy unless the dispute is ended.

THIS LEAF'S DOWN—THEY ALL ARE

Back flip by Johnny Bower stopped this shot by Yvon Cournoyer, No. 12, in third game of Montreal-Toronto Stanley Cup semi-final Tuesday at Maple Leaf Gardens. That's Toronto's Tim Horton, No. 7, coming around net to cover other side. Leafs took 2-0 lead then fell with thud as Montreal pumped in five unanswered goals to take 3-0 lead in best-of-seven series.

Duff the Ghost Haunts Old Pals

Winger Sets Up Goal Leading To Hab Victory

TORONTO (CP)—Dick Duff picked Tuesday night to remind sports fans that traded players come back to haunt their old teams and today his former buddies—Toronto Maple Leafs—have only a ghost of a chance to bounce Montreal Canadiens from the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The 30-year-old left winger made a key interception of a clearing pass to set up Montreal's first goal and launch a comeback that gave Canadiens a 5-2 victory over Toronto and a commanding 3-0 margin in their best-of-seven semi-final.

Until Duff picked off a stray pass by Toronto defenceman Tim Horton and set up Ralph Backstrom for a goal, Montreal appeared anything like defending Stanley Cup champions.

Toronto had taken a 2-0 first period lead and the margin could have been greater except for erratic shooting by Leaf forwards. The Leafs maintained the pressure early in the second and appeared set to run Montreal right out of the rink.

But Duff, one of the few Canadiens able to maintain any semblance of poise in the first 25 minutes of the game, made the play that changed the complexion of the game and possibly the entire series.

Toronto now enters the fourth game Thursday with the reallzation that only one club in Stanley Cup history—the 1942 Leafs—ever came back after losing the first three games.

BITTER IN 1964

Duff, bitter in 1964 about a trade that cut his ties with Leafs after helping the club win two consecutive Stanley Cups, also was a tower of strength in the late stages when Montreal moved to the defensive to protect its margin.

Backstrom, Bobby Rousseau, defenceman Terry Harper, John Ferguson and Jean Beliveau shared the Montreal scoring. Eddie Shack and Horton counted for Toronto in the opening period.

If the series is extended beyond Thursday, the fifth game will be played in Montreal Saturday, the sixth here next Tuesday and the seventh in Montreal Thursday.

Toronto came out flying at the start of the game and Shack counted his second goal of the series on a power play at 1:26. The rugged winger broke through the Montreal defence and slid the puck into the right corner when netminder Gump Worsley sprawled to the wrong side.

In the next 15 minutes Toronto dominated play and did everything but put the puck into the net. Worsley looked particularly jittery and it was more erratic Toronto shooting than his netminding that kept the score close.

SPARKS THE VICTORY

Toronto continued to dominate play until Backstrom scored at 8:16 of the second period and ignited Canadiens.

Ferguson, who had several jousts with Shack, was picked by coach Toe Blake to check the rugged Toronto winger. The assignment elated Ferguson and he was even happier when Shack drew a penalty for high sticking him, which gave Montreal a power play that produced Rousseau's goal.

Toronto's chances of winning the series are slim. Montreal hasn't lost four games in a row this season and Henri Richard, Montreal's speedy centre who sat out Tuesday's game with a knee injury, is expected to be ready Thursday night.

'Fittest' Squad Will Win It Says Sid Abel

DETROIT (CP)—"Now it's a case of which team stays the fittest," coach Sid Abel said following his Detroit Red Wings 2-1 loss to Chicago Black Hawks Tuesday night.

The victory gave the Hawks a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals, but two Chicago veterans were knocked out of action during the rough and tumble encounter.

Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby ran into Chicago's Chico Maki. The chunky forward suffered an injured knee, and although he wasn't taken to hospital, Chicago coach Billy Reay was unable to say whether he will be available for the fourth game of the series here Thursday.

Defenceman Elmer Vasko suffered a 10-stitch cut on his right thigh when he and Detroit's Norm Ullman ran into the boards behind the Chicago goal.

The injury occurred in the first period and Vasko was reported limping badly after receiving the stitches.

"That doesn't mean too much," said Abel. "I remember Bobby Baun came off the Toronto Maple Leaf bench with a broken leg in the 1964 semi-finals and scored the winning goal against Montreal Canadiens."

Chicago Injured List Runs Deep

Super-star Bobby Hull is also limping from a knee injury suffered in the opening game in Chicago last Thursday. Veteran Doug Mohns suffered a shoulder injury in Sunday's second game in Chicago, and defenceman Doug Jarrett played sparingly Tuesday for the first time since receiving a back injury in the first game.

ERIC NESTERENKO

Hull and Mohns also played Tuesday night.

"Jarrett's shoulder was sore but he played real well," said Reay.

The big surprise of the night came at the opening faceoff when Reay sent out a line of Hull, Maki and Stan Mikita. That left Mikita's regular Scooter Line of Mohns and Kenny Wharram with centre Phil Esposito.

"I decided to play them with Hull, hoping Mikita would break loose with everyone shadowing Hull," Reay said.

Hull was handcuffed by Bryan Watson all night but it was Maki who broke loose to score the first Chicago goal and give the Black Hawks a 1-1 tie in the second period.

Eric Nesterenko scored the other Chicago marker, while Watson scored the only Detroit goal.

Watson, who has become an overnight hero since he was first assigned to shadow Hull early in Sunday's second game of the series at Chicago, drew rousing cheers from the 14,495 fans for his checking efforts. Hull did get one assist on Maki's goal.

'They Turned The Tables On Us'

But Watson was responsible for forcing Hull into taking two penalties and drew two himself.

The Wings' forechecking ability was only a shadow of what it had been during their 7-0 rout of the Hawks in Chicago Sunday. Detroit defenceman Garry Bergman said it made the difference between winning and losing.

"If you can forecheck them into their own end like we did Sunday, they just can't get going," Bergman said.

"But they turned the tables on us and we couldn't do a thing about it."

The Wings outshot the Hawks 30-24 with a 12-5 edge in the opening period.

OPENS THE SCORING

Watson opened the scoring at 15:01 and the goal was poetic justice for the partisan crowd.

He had tangled with Hull behind the Detroit net and was thrown to the ice by the stronger man. Almost instantaneously Watson leaped to his feet, scooted down the right side, caught a pass at the Chicago blueline and fired a long bouncing shot past goaltender Glenn Hall.

Both teams were one man short at the time.

Maki's goal came while Detroit's Bert Marshall was sitting out a hooking penalty in the second period. He took a pass from Mikita and went in alone, beating netminder Roger Crozier easily with the prettiest goal of the game.

Nesterenko scored the winner late in the same period. Crozier came out of the net to retrieve a lost puck but Nesterenko, with Detroit's Paul Henderson draped around him, stabbed at it with his stick and poked it into the net.

There were 12 penalties called in the close-checking contest, with the Red Wings taking seven. Jarrett was also assessed a five-minute major penalty for cutting Andy Bathgate behind the left ear with his stick.

The fifth game of the series is scheduled for Chicago Sunday with the sixth, if necessary, back here next Tuesday.

FIRST PERIOD

1—Detroit, Watson (Boivin, Gadsby) 15:01.
Penalties—Hull 0:40, Boivin 3:33, Watson 5:38, Angotti 8:30, Vasko 11:20, Bathgate, Jarrett 14:15.

SECOND PERIOD

3—Chicago, Nesterenko (Ravlich) 18:43.
Penalties—Marshall 5:25, Hull 10:39, Watson 15:41.

Pin Changes Hands

Ivy Blunt's three-week hold on the Gorge Vale ladies' single challenge pin was ended by Jennie Harlan last week. Mrs. Harlan, who won on the 18th, meets Helen Wilson in the next challenge match.

Record Against Leafs Flatters Tough Seals

Victoria coach Frank Mario can't see any weak spots in the San Francisco Seals, but he expects his Maple Leafs to find one.

"Any club that has won 11 and tied two of its last 14 games can't have many soft spots," Mario said today. "But there is bound to be at least one, and we intend to find it."

San Francisco's closing drive has been the talk of the Western Hockey League. By losing only one of their last 14 tussles, they squeezed into the fourth and last playoff berth by a single point.

For their reward, they get to clash with the Maple Leafs in a best-of-seven semi-final that gets under way tonight at Memorial Arena, starting at 8:15. Second game is scheduled here Saturday.

That isn't the only impressive set of figures manager Bud Poile and his Seals have going for them. They also gave the Leafs more than trouble than any other WHL club during the regular season. Against Victoria, they won seven and tied two of 12 games.

FLATTERING RECORD

"That 7-3-2 record during the season flattered the Seals," Mario commented. "Most of the times we played them we were hampered by injuries or our players were tired from a tough part of the schedule.

"Except for Steve Witiuk, our club is healthy and we've had a good rest at home. We have also had a good home stand and the players seem to be up for the series.

"They know what they have to do. They know they have to play real well against this team. The Seals have been the hottest club in the league.

"I'll tell you one thing," added Mario. "We are going to have to skate all the way to beat them. And if we skate as we can, we'll find that soft spot."

WITIUK DOUBTFUL

Witiuk, who injured his left knee last Saturday is a doubtful starter for the Leafs tonight.

Poile and playing coach Charlie Burns, who came back from a back injury to spark Frisco's late drive, have more of a manpower problem.

With goalie Jack McCartan nursing a knee injury, they'll have amateur Bob Gray in the nets tonight after failing to obtain permission to use Marcel Pelletier, the league's standby netminder.

Also on the limp with knee trouble and expected to watch from the stands tonight is Gerry Brisson, and Wayne Maxner will probably sit it out with a pulled leg muscle.

TALKING BRAVELY

However, Poile declined to use the usual psychological approach by moaning how his team has been weakened by injuries.

He was talking bravely and not following the normal pattern that makes managers feel satisfied with getting a split in games on the road.

"We've come for both games," Bud said. "Most people come for one, but not us. We've come for both of them."

Perhaps he was thinking back to 1964. In that season the Seals barely squeezed into the playoffs and then went all the way to capture the Patrick Cup.

Calder Cup Play Starts

American Hockey League's Calder Cup playoffs open tonight with three games headed by the meeting between the divisional titleholders, Rochester Americans and Quebec Aces.

The Aces and Amerks clash in Quebec in the opener of the best-of-seven semifinal series. Springfield Indians is at Hershey Bears and Pittsburgh Hornets at Cleveland Barons in the first games of best-of-five quarter-final competition.

The Americans are the defending cup champions.

Nicklaus Okay For Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Sun in a special report from Augusta, Fla., says Masters golf champion Jack Nicklaus will play in the Canadian Open tournament at Vancouver Sept. 29 to Oct. 2.

Monday, Nicklaus captured his second straight Masters title in an 18-hole playoff with Tommy Jacobs and Gay Brewer.

The report quoted Nicklaus as saying he'll play this week in the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas.

It said he doesn't know all the tournaments he'll be in after that, but that he definitely will participate in the British and Canadian Opens.

HORSESHOE MEETING

Victoria Horseshoe Club will hold its general meeting tonight at Hampton Park, starting 7:30 p.m.

Boxla Clinic Lures Four From Alberta

Alberta is showing signs of becoming interested in lacrosse.

At least four sportsmen from southern Alberta, which has no organized lacrosse, are among early enrollees at a Canadian Lacrosse Association clinic scheduled to be held April 23-24 at Simon Fraser University.

The clinic, conducted by a "clinic team" from Ontario, is open to coaches, players and referees. Victorians interested in attending are asked to contact Doug Fletcher.

Meanwhile, Victoria Shamrocks, scheduled to open Inter-City League play the first week in May, will move into the Esquimalt Sports Centre for workouts.

A combined junior-senior workout will be held Thursday, starting at 9:30.

Don Luzzi Signs For Ninth Time

CALGARY (CP)—Don Luzzi, 30, veteran import tackle, has signed for his ninth season with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference, it was announced today.

Coach Jerry Williams used Luzzi as a defensive end in 1965 but late in the season switched him back to defensive tackle where he looked more at home.

SPURS MEET ALL-STARS, CELTIC AT VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP)—Glasgow Celtic and Tottenham Hotspur will meet here June 4 in an exhibition soccer match, the B.C. Football Association Commission announced Tuesday.

Tottenham Hotspur will meet a local all-star side here on June 8.

Celtic leads the first division of the Scottish League and Tottenham is in sixth place in the English League, first division.

FIRST NEGRO UMP

Butterflies Go In Ash's Debut

WASHINGTON (AP)—After 15 years of waiting, Emmett Ashford has finally made it to the major leagues.

Ashford, who proved himself tops among minor league umpires, is the first Negro to move up in that role in the major leagues.

Ashford was quoted before the season as having butterflies, but his debut in the American League opener between Washington and Cleveland apparently erased them.

Although he had scant opportunity to prove himself at his post near third base, he made sure everyone knew he was there when called on for a decision.

In the third inning, the Indians' Vic Davalillo raced from first to third on a single by Max Alvis. It appeared that Davalillo and the ball would arrive at the same time.

GIVES SAFE SIGN

Ashford charged around the bag, positioning himself on the infield, and then with gestures that no one could mistake he gave the safe sign. In the same instant, the ball went through third baseman Ken McMullen's legs.

The only other time Ashford was in the spotlight came in the sixth inning when Washington's Frank Howard lined a home run down the left field foul line.

Many in the crowd — and Howard himself — thought the ball was going foul. But Ashford ran down the left field line and with animated gestures pointed toward the playing field to indicate it was a home run.

Ashford has travelled thousands of miles during his years as an umpire. He spent most of his time in the southwest and the Pacific Coast League, where he was umpire-in-chief for two years.

A native of Los Angeles and in his late 40s, Ashford is among the smaller major league umpires — 5-foot-7 and weighing 187 pounds.

JACOBS REFUSED TO WATCH . . .

. . . BEST SHOW AT MASTERS

No Problem With Four Steaks . . . It's the Wedge

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Everyone's got problems.

Cassius Clay keeps moaning because he has to shell out all that alimony money, Sandy Koufax's control isn't quite what it should be, and now Jack Nicklaus comes along with some troubles of his own.

The first man ever to wrap up two straight Masters' golf titles doesn't like the way his wedge is working.

Before anyone runs out and starts taking up a collection for him, let it be noted that he doesn't have any great degree of difficulty with the 13 other clubs in his bag.

"My wedge play doesn't excite me," pointed out the beefy, blond 26-year-old Columbus clouter.

"It could be a lot better," he went on. "I'm still not getting as much spin on the ball as I'd like."

Nicklaus, a man who has hauled down $70,000 here alone during the past four years, wasn't really complaining so much as he was stating a fact.

Jack is a rather unusual person. For example, after finishing in a three-way tie with Tommy Jacobs and Gay Brewer at the end of the regulation 72 holes Sunday, he did two unorthodox things which he felt might help him in Monday's playoff round.

First, he hustled out in the twilight of the Augusta National's practice green and painstakingly worked on his putting for nearly a half hour. Something about him looking over the ball wrong, only he said it was too involved to explain in precise detail.

That condition corrected, the hungry, 210-pound Ohioan realized he still hadn't eaten his dinner so he took care of that little matter by polishing off four steaks. Better make that three-and-a-half. He didn't want to overeat so he gave half of his last tenderloin to someone else.

Nicklaus, unquestionably one of the finest golfers of this decade and quite possibly of all time, has a way of minimizing his own talents. From the way he spoke following his decisive playoff victory over Jacobs and the battered Brewer Monday, he almost seemed to be apologizing for his victory.

"I was very fortunate to be in the playoff because I made too many mistakes," he declared. "This was a tournament that was lost, not won."

Maybe it was that balky wedge of his or something he ate. One thing it wasn't for sure and that was his driver.

Jacobs said he went into the playoff with only one piece of strategy.

"I wasn't gonna watch Jack drive," he offered, laughingly.

That was a mistake, too.

Jacobs missed the best show of the day.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

Even the favorites have been experiencing rough moments in and around the greens during the early rounds of the Times Vancouver Island Open.

A normally-steady putter has been known to three-putt two or three greens and some of the deadliest chippers haven't been able to find the range.

If you're looking for a simple explanation, it's this: It is that time of the year.

This is a crucial grass-growing period and greens are lacking in consistency. Even cutting doesn't have the standard effect it acquires later in the season.

So the big moan, in the main, has been heard around the greens. There won't be a great change for Sunday's quarter-finals at Gorge Vale.

That is one of the more technical hazards of this match-play tournament, and the big reason success has come easier to the golfers who are best able to read the greens.

Defending champion Ron MacLeod and Cowichan's Norm Boden, last year's finalist, had their moments of grief on the greens last Sunday. But the rest of their games seemed near-flawless, and it won't be a great surprise if they should meet in the Times Open final for a second straight year.

MacLeod's game from tee to green was simply great. He invariably plunked his approach shots from six to eight to 10 feet from the pin. Every time Freddie Painter looked, it seemed, he had to stare at a MacLeod birdie putt. That's the stuff that puts a lot of pressure on the guy who is 30 to 40 feet away.

Boden's game also appeared extremely solid. He was one of the few to stay close to par, medalling an approximate 72, while brushing Gorge Vale's Harry Olsen to the sidelines.

Bracketed in the bottom half with junior Don Billsborough, Colwood pro Bill Court and Gorge amateur Lex Sutcliffe, Boden looms as the favorite to make it to the final. His chances are even better than those of MacLeod's, because the defending champ sits in the top half with medallist Art Donaldson, Laurie Carroll and Eric Wright.

The big match Sunday is the one that sends Donaldson against Carroll, a two-time winner of the Times Trophy.

Late Goal Spree Sinks Canadiens

HALIFAX (CP)—Three third-period goals in less than 2½ minutes brought Shawinigan Falls Bruins a 6-4 victory over Halifax Canadiens Tuesday night in the opening game of their Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semifinal.

In the next of the best-of-seven series tonight, the Canadiens hope to get extra mileage from their scoring leader, Paul MacWilliams, who missed the opener while sitting out a suspension for three games because of a stick-swinging incident in the previous round.

Whitey Loses His Jug; Yankees Lose in Ninth

By Associated Press

Whitey Ford had this plastic bottle in his back pocket. No. it wasn't filled with Irish mist or cough syrup. Just plain old hot water.

Whitey had the jug with him Tuesday when he pitched his 11th opener for New York Yankees and lost 2-1 to Detroit Tigers. That is, he had the jug at the start of the game.

Ever since Ford underwent an operation a year ago for a circulatory condition in his left arm, the fingers in his left hand have had no feeling in cold weather.

After Ford threw two pitches in the first inning, play suddenly was halted. Out came Charley Dressen, the little manager of the Tigers, making motions toward the umpires.

"You can't use it," Dressen said, looking directly at Whitey. The umpires agreed because there is a rule against carrying anything in your pocket that might contain a foreign substance.

"You ain't gonna win any pennants that way," said Ford to Dressen in an expurgated version.

CASH PROVIDES VICTORY

Ford also gave up — even more grudgingly—a run-scoring single to Norm Cash in the ninth that sent the Tigers to victory before the largest Yankee Stadium first day crowd in 14 years.

Chicago White Sox struggled through 14 innings before subduing California Angels 3-2. Baltimore Orioles eked out a 5-4 decision over Boston Red Sox in 13 innings and Minnesota Twins edged Kansas City Athletics 2-1 in other American League openers. The four games drew a total of 102,225, all in cool weather.

DEEP SOUTH DEBUT

At Atlanta Stadium, Willie Landers, 24, took his seat in Aisle 340, Row 23, waving his can of beer and howling as the Braves made their National League debut in the Deep South.

There was plenty going on, but Landers was lonely.

"Too many ties here for these people to be real baseball fans," said Landers as he watched the crowd begin to sift out of the new $18,000,000 arena when the game went into extra innings.

And by the time Willie Stargell slugged a two-run homer in the 13th inning, giving Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-2 victory and ruining the Braves' Dixie debut, half of the crowd of 50,671 had left.

It had been a long day for many of the fans, who had taken part in a day of celebration heralding the Braves' official arrival. Schools and businesses were closed and a holiday atmosphere took over the city as the Braves paraded down Peachtree Street.

Leo Durocher's debut as manager of Chicago Cubs also was ruined with Willie Mays frustrating his former boss with a 415-foot homer that helped San Francisco Giants to a 9-1 victory.

In the only other National League game played, Ron Fairly drove in all three runs as the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Houston Astros 3-2.

San Diego Team Known as 'Gulls'

SAN DIEGO — The Western Hockey League's newest club has selected a name.

Bob Breitbard, president of the San Diego team that will enter the WHL next season, said today the title of "Gulls" had been selected in a name-the-team contest.

Three people suggested the name of Gulls but a career marine — Master-Sergeant Herbert Kelly, who was born in Alberta —was the first to submit the name and will receive the major award.

Ticket sales will commence May 1, Breitband said. The Gulls will play home games in the International Sports Arena, due to be completed in October with seats for 13,500 fans and parking facilities for 4,500 cars.

HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

There's no question about it in my mind, hockey is much improved, there's a lot more action and it is a far faster game than when I broke into the National Hockey League 20 years ago.

The years fly by fast. Four forward lines are common place these days. I can remember when they were a distinct innovation and could throw an opposing team into confusion.

There was a time when coaches followed a regular pattern in that they would send their No. 1 line against the opposition's top combination. This is the exception rather than the rule these days.

I was still playing hockey in Saskatoon when one of the last major changes in the rules was introduced that did a lot to speed up play.

★ ★ ★

That was the introduction of the red line at centre ice. It certainly speeded up the game, but that actually wasn't the true reason for its introduction.

When the red line was introduced, a player could make a forward pass to the red line. Prior to that, forward passes over the blue line weren't allowed. The puck had to be carried from zone to zone.

The development of the continuing use of the gang play was the real reason for the introduction of the red line.

The so-called "gang play" originally was used only when an opponent was short-handed. A team would put all its players in the attacking end, because of its man-power advantage.

★ ★ ★

Then in the early 40's, the Detroit Red Wings began to use it all the time, even when sides were even. They had excellent forecheckers in Sid Abel, now our manager, Eddie Wares and Don Groso.

They had two terrific defencemen in "Black Jack" Stewart and Jimmy Orlando. As the team developed and became so efficient, other teams took it up. It made for spectacular and exciting play.

The red line was put in to enable teams to escape the pressure. It made for even greater and faster action.

Kimberley Loses Back-Room Battle

QUEBEC (CP) — Lionel Fleury, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Tuesday night Art Potter, a CAHA officer, was right in ruling a player was ineligible as a regular goaltender for Kimberley Dynamiters in the Western Canada Allan Cup semi-finals.

Fleury said Potter telephoned him before making the decision. But he made it "because it was 3,000 miles away from Vancouver."

Fleury was referring to a ruling that Rossland Warrior coach and goaltender Seth Martin was ineligible for regular play in the series.

Les Lilley, Kimberley coach, said Monday the team is playing the series "under protest" because of the decision. A protest was filed Saturday before the start of the second game in the series against Drumheller in Calgary.

Bob Wardle, regular goalie for the Dynamiters, was injured in the game and was replaced by Martin. Drumheller won the game 6-2 to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

The third game will be held Friday.

FOURSOMES EVENT

Medallists Fall In First Round

Tourney medallists Mrs. F. Skillings and Mrs. E. Rickinson were toppled Tuesday in the first round of match play in the annual Victoria and District women's golf foursomes.

LEAGUE'S BEST STILL A DROP

PORTLAND (AP) — The Portland Buckaroos won the Western Hockey League championship this year, but suffered a drop in attendance.

The Buckaroos had a total attendance of some 275,000 fans, which was the lowest season total in Portland in five years.

However, it was the highest in the league—an average of more than 7,600 fans per game.

Sudbury Star Out In Front

CALGARY (CP) — Frank Gramolini of Sudbury, Ont., took the lead Tuesday during opening day action in the men's singles of the Canadian fivepin bowling championships.

After an opening five-game block Tuesday, Gramolini had a score of 1,410, giving him a 136-point spread over Pete Gardeman of Atikokan, Ont.

In women's singles action, Mrs. Cec Gaudette of North Battleford, Sask., western representative, grabbed a lead with a score of 1,274. Eastern standard bearer Nora Oakley of Toronto had 1,195.

FIGHT RESULTS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Gordon Lott, 158, Savannah, Ga., outpointed Gene Wells, 158, Mobile, Ala., 10.

NEW YORK—Bobby Avena, 172½, New York, outpointed Ronnie Geoffrion, 173, Mineola, N.Y., 8.

LEWISTON, Maine — Tommy Haden, 124, Providence, R.I., outpointed Jackie Burke, 120, St. John, N.B., 10.

SAN JOSE, Calif.—Alex Benitez, 128, San Jose, outpointed Dany Valdez, 126, Los Angeles, 12.

Arthur Mayse

We have with us today a private of our hard-used Canadian Army (if Defence Minister Hellyer still permits us to call it that) who will become a civilian in July, and isn't happy at the prospect.

His name is Eric George Grimshaw, his age, 50. The army, first the British, then ours, has been his life since he enlisted as a boy soldier 15 years old and proud to be wearing the uniform.

At present, Private Grimshaw is on rehabilitation leave. When that ends, out he steps to join the unregimented toilers, if he can find a job.

In this endeavor, he is going to be rubbing shoulders with a daunting number of ex-servicemen his age or younger.

Some of these men are time - expired like George Grimshaw, their service careers ended by defence department regulations while they were still in their working prime. Others found themselves no longer happy in the service, and chose not to wait until pushed.

They didn't like Mr. Hellyer's ways or works, including the proposed universal uniform which by all accounts is going to be the most effective morale-buster since Delilah's shears. Further, they had no wish to be hunting jobs in their middle years, as not-so-old soldier Grimshaw is doing this spring.

★

I didn't much want to talk to George when he phoned me. I'd already told you about another military type who found himself released, too young, to a civilian world that offered a cool welcome.

But Private Grimshaw of the Royal Canadian Postal Corps, the Princess Pats, the Royal Hussars (infantry), the Royal Scots Greys (cavalry) and the East Surrey Regiment turned up at the Times next morning.

His education is limited to about grade eight on the outside, but within the army his skills are many and varied. He is sturdy, merry when he forgets that he must shape a new life after July 2, and carries the scar of a considerable wound on one shoulder.

He has a 12-year-old daughter, Judy, in a Victoria school, and a wife named Fuji whom he met in Japan during the Korean war. Add to Korea, service in British India, the Sudan, China, Malaya, Singapore, Germany and North Africa, and you have the tale of Private Grimshaw's army years.

You also have a man unused to "hanging around the house, doing nothing . . . thinking and thinking some more . . . going out to hunt a job and being kissed off by the post office, the provincial government and civilian employers all down the line."

★

Private Grimshaw's pension will amount to about $210, he expects. When the family returned to Victoria, a city George liked when stationed here from 1957 to 1961, he put his savings into a duplex at 617 Admirals Road. The rent from the other half will jack his income to around $300 a month.

The private—he never wanted rank—is a vigorous and persevering fellow, and will probably find at least a part-time job.

What concerns him more right now, in his transitional stage, is the state of the army which has no further place for him.

"You see," says he, "the army was a profession to me. It was a way of life. D'you think anyone ever went in because of the money? Most of us joined up because we wanted to be in, we took pride in the uniform and the fact that we were soldiers.

"It was because of that, when Rommell's bunch took me wounded in North Africa, that I tried three times to escape from a POW camp, and made it the third try.

"The way things are now, it's all boom and bust. They want men, they don't want them. You can't be a professional any more."

As to what Canada should do about the situation, his notions are [illegible] although he does

ROBERT E. WOOD
. . . he's appalled

'DON'T CALL THEM ARTISTS!'

By DESMOND BILL

A well-known city artist said today painting on the fence around the museum site is "good for kids" but any adult who does it is just being childish.

Robert E. Wood said it is ridiculous for newspapers to describe the fence paintings as "an art exhibition."

"The fence offers the same kind of outlet for art as is provided in the men's room of one of the downtown hotels," he said. "There the owner has put up a large blackboard and provided chalk for persons who think they have artistic leanings.

"I suppose some people would describe these daubs on the fence as paintings but, for God's sake don't describe people who did them as artists."

Mr. Wood said he'd shoot any of my students who went near that fence.

"It makes a mockery out of painting."

Mr. Wood admitted he has not closely inspected the paintings on the fence but only seen them as he drove past.

"I wouldn't go near it to have a closer look. What would be the point?

"I see enough to upset me when I look at the work of some of my students.

"These paintings may send thrills up (Public Works Minister) Chant's spine but their effect on me would be very different, I'm afraid."

Mr. Wood, who has a studio at 1121 Vancouver Street, has just returned from Vancouver where he had a successful one-man exhibition. He is now preparing for an exhibition in Victoria in June.

APPALLED

He said he was appalled when he got back here to discover that Victorians were following Vancouver's lead in fence painting. The fad started here after Vancouverites began painting on the fence around the site of a government fountain in front of the Vancouver courthouse.

Mr. Wood said that when he objected to the "hullabaloo" over the fence he was told that "it will be good for the tourist trade."

'MAKE A BUCK'

That apology for the fence painting enrages him.

"It is so typical of Victoria. Everything for the bloody tourist trade. Anything to make a buck.

"We'll try anything to entertain the tourists. Well, perhaps the fence is a good idea for tourists. But please don't call it art."

Mr. Wood said the only reason he is speaking out about the fence is because he thinks "all the publicity about this nonsense lowers public regard for art and artists Some people will think it really is serious work.

"If ever there was a pot of paint thrown in the face of the public it is the sort of stuff to be seen on the museum fence."

Whitbread's Salary 'Up to City'

Health Minister Eric Martin has informed the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health the level of the senior medical health officer's salary can only be established by Victoria city council.

Mr. Martin was replying to a letter from health board chairman Reeve R. G. Lee, asking the government to pressure Victoria into increasing Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread's salary from $1,220 a month to $1,415 a month.

The letters were made public this morning.

Reeve Lee's letter to the minister claimed that Victoria had failed to meet its obligations so far as Dr. Whitbread's salary was concerned.

LOST $195

"The senior medical health officer has lost $195 per month over the past year, and in spite of discussions and efforts with the Victoria city council, no action has been taken on their part," the letter states.

Mr. Martin replied there was no legal agreement whereby Victoria promised to pay $1,415 a month to Dr. Whitbread.

Mr. Martin asked Reeve Lee "to endeavor to reconcile the situation . . . rather than ask this department to dictate to the city the salary that they will pay their employee."

ANOTHER 'HABITUAL' CHARGE

City police said today habitual criminal proceedings will be instituted against another city man.

Steven Remington, now serving a term at Oakalla for a charge of breaking and entering at the premises of Clark and Cordick, 2503 Douglas, may appear in court next week.

Magistrate J. A. Byers ruled Tuesday that John Norman Lawrence Smith is a habitual criminal and will be sentenced to indefinite preventive detention.

FIRST SINCE 50s

Smith's hearing was the first held since the early 1950's. One man was found to be a habitual criminal in 1953 and another in 1954 in Victoria. Both men are now out of prison.

A person found to be a habitual criminal can be sentenced to prison for an indefinite period, although he can appeal the finding every seven years.

Although Magistrate Byers delivered his judgment in the Smith hearing Tuesday, he heard a further submission by defence counsel Ian Stewart this morning.

Stewart said he understood that having found a man a habitual criminal, a second phase of the judgment, to be spoken to by himself, ought to concern the nature of the judgment.

Magistrate Byers did not agree.

"The expediency of the matter was canvassed at the time of hearing," he said.

Man Drowns After Fall From Boat

An elderly Ahousat Indian was drowned late Tuesday night off the reserve on Flores Island, 10 water miles west of Tofino on the west coast.

George Sye, 81, apparently fell overboard from a fish boat he and four others were bringing from Tofino.

Mr. Sye was not discovered missing until the boat reached Ahousat.

Capt. Cosmos Frank immediately returned over the route and the body was found in the water.

They attempted artificial respiration in relays without success until they reached Tofino Hospital.

Mr. Sye was a pioneer Indian of the west coast and was one of the first pupils to attend the Christies Residential School near Tofino.

NEW APPROACH to local matters of federal concern is being taken this week by rival politicians representing Greater Victoria in the House of Commons. Liberal David Groos, right, and Conservative George Chatterton, centre, visited William Head and Veterans' Hospital Tuesday and today, later were shown the Chapin method of soil-less agriculture by superintendent Harry Anderson at Saanichton experimental farm. Experiments prove that tomatoes grown in sand or sawdust and fed by semi-automated water-borne nutrients yield three times the normal crop and give two crops a year under glass. First Draft Ready Monday On City's $5 Million Urban Renewal Scheme

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Victoria's planning department is burning the midnight oil these days as staffers go into the final stretch in preparing a detailed report on the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal scheme.

City planner Geoffrey Greenhalgh says he he hopes to have the first draft of the $5 million scheme ready for study by Mayor A. W. Toone and council by next Monday.

That is the day Mayor Toone returns to the city after an Easter vacation.

DRAFT REPORT

"The report we hope to have ready for nex Monday will be a draft report only," Mr. Greenhalgh said. "I'm sure people will understand that every detail must be checked out before the city commits itself to spending such a large sum of taxpayers' money."

The detailed planning gobbled up Mr. Greenhalgh's Easter break — he worked Good Friday and Easter Monday while other city hall staffers relaxed — and will probably occupy all his time next Saturday and Sunday.

STAFF SHORTAGE

Adding to the department's problems is a three-man staff shortage which has existed since the planning staff resigned en masse months ago.

"We are still looking for an economist, a physical planner and a draftsman," Mr. Greenhalgh said. "The competition is pretty fierce — for example Ontario has 100 vacancies for qualified planners."

The shortage of trained planners hit the city hard last week when three men on the short list advised Mr. Greenhalgh that they had accepted offers elsewhere.

"But we are optimistic that we shall get at least one man next week," the planner said.

In the meantime, though hampered by a staff shortage, the survey of the Rose-Blanshard area has been completed.

If the city approves the plan it will mean the relocation and re-housing of 160 families in the area.

Ground rules for such a scheme are laid down by the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation.

Before the scheme can quality for federal grants it must also have provincial approval.

"There's a lot to be done before such a scheme can be instituted," said Mr. Greenhalgh. "First the city must satisfy what you might call CMHC's check list. Then with the consent of the provincial government it must enter an agreement with CMHC in order to obtain federal funds."

On the CMHC check list is a request for the boundaries of the scheme and the physical characteristics of the area, complete data on blighted and substandard conditions, the social condition of the area and a complete cost analysis.

But that is only the start.

CMHC also wants to know in detail what plans the city has for re-housing present inhabitants of the area, what site preparation plans are and what methods of private and public rehabilitation will be proposed.

DEFINITION OF BLIGHT

Blight is described by the CMHC as "overcrowding, lack of community facilities such as schools, parks, playgrounds and community centres, inadequacy of traffic patterns and a use no longer reasonable within the context of economic or social pressures."

The rough boundaries of the over-all scheme run from Blanshard to Kings, along Kings almost to Quadra then over to the northern boundary of Hillside with Rose Street forming the western anchor.

SCHOOL TO GO

Included in the scheme will be the demolition of North Ward School with a new school to be built with adequate playing fields in the Kings-Wark Street area.

It is expected that even with all problems cleared away the scheme will take at least two years to complete.

Big Berry Crop Due in Saanich Predicts Manager

Saanich loganberry and strawberry crops this summer may be the heaviest in years, Gill Rumley, manager of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association, told an annual meeting Tuesday.

Berry plants, he said, are in excellent condition.

The meeting re-elected Tom Michell as president.

Directors are: Geoff Vantreight, Albert Bean and Frank Doyle.

FOUNTAIN YIELDS OVER $90

A total of $90.81 worth of "good luck" coins from the fountain in Centennial Square was turned over to the United Appeal for the Community Chest of Greater Victoria today.

City officials "raided" the fountain Tuesday under an agreement made a year ago in which all proceeds from the fountain would be turned over to the United Appeal.

Member of Pioneering Family Clifford Alexander Dies at 72

Clifford Leslie Alexander was the native son of a native son of Victoria. And his grandfather, Charles, came here from San Francisco in a sternwheeler in 1857.

Mr. Alexander died in Royal [illegible] Hospital Saturday at the [illegible] of 72. To the end he was [illegible] of his pioneering family.

[illegible]father Charles Alexander and his wife migrated from a Negro colony in Missouri. They travelled out to California in a covered wagon and after a stay in San Francisco boarded a sternwheeler for Victoria.

In 1860 they bought land in Saanich and moved out there to develop a family farm which ultimately exceeded 100 acres.

Thomas Alexander was born on the farm in 1859 and his wife, Corinthia, was also born in Victoria. They were married here in the 1880s.

Their eldest son, Clifford, who died Saturday, spent all his life in Victoria and was employed as a machinist. He is survived by two daughters, Ellen and Barbara; a son, Thomas; three brothers, Chester, Barton and Norman, and nephews and pieces.

Rev. Samuel Parsons, DD, minister of Centennial United Church, will conduct funeral services at Sands Mortuary, 1803 Quadra, Friday at 3 p.m. Interment will follow in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Pay Hike Expected For Mayor

Edgelow Heads Drive For $10,000 Stipend

Mayor A. W. Toone will be $2,500 a year richer when he returns from his vacation next Monday.

At a special meeting of city council called this afternoon in the mayor's absence city aldermen were expected to give unanimous approval to a new by-law which would increase the mayor's stipend from $7,500 a year to an even $10,000.

It is understood Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow spearheaded the lobbying for the increase.

$2,500 EXPENSES

At present the mayor receives $5,000 a year plus $2,500 for expenses.

When starting the campaign for the increase in the mayor's pay some weeks ago Ald. Edgelow said he did not expect to run into any opposition from other aldermen.

"I think we all know that $7,500 a year isn't enough for the mayor to come close to breaking even during his term in office," he said. "Even $10,000 a year isn't exactly a princely sum."

STEEL WAREHOUSE

Yarrows To Build New Unit

By AB KENT
Times Business Reporter

An $800,000 structural steel warehouse to serve heavy industry on Vancouver Island will be started next month in Esquimalt by Yarrows Ltd. shipbuilders.

General manager John Wallace said the building on Esquimalt Road at Canteen Road will be the most modern steel-handling facility in western Canada and employ a type of machinery built to order for the company.

Dominion Bridge Ltd. has a $290,000 contract to erect a building of prefabricated steel sections starting May 15, with completion set for October.

The sections will be assembled at the Dominion Bridge plant in Vancouver and trucked to the site now being prepared with removal of an old warehouse and parking area.

Footings for a concrete slab floor will rest on bedrock that is being prepared as part of a $50,000 contract.

Overall dimensions of the warehouse, facing Esquimalt Road, will be 360 feet by 160 feet with a height of 45 feet.

TWO BAYS

Steel trusses will provide for a clear-span interior allowing for two storage bays, one 90 feet wide and provided with two 10-ton overhead gantry cranes having magnetic grabs, and one 70 feet wide having a one-ton hook crane and a five-ton stacker crane, the first of its kind in the west.

Value of the machinery is about $250,000.

One man will be able to operate the machinery to put up an order of steel from a storage area having nine runs of "tree racks" which will contain steel of various dimensions in one-sixth the floor space formerly required.

Eventually, the layout could be converted to an automated system of storage and selection of steel as required.

At present, Yarrows employs about 26 persons in its steel servicing division and no staff changes are contemplated, Mr. Wallace said.

The Esquimalt facility services two Yarrows warehouses up-Island, at Nanaimo and Campbell River and studies of further expansion are being considered.

A 40-by-80-foot office building will adjoin the warehouse.

All steel services are being consolidated in the one structure which will permit inside storage of a $1.5 million inventory.

Shipments will arrive and depart via truck, tractor-trailer units and barges or ocean-going vessels.

By storing and supplying steel from under cover, stock will arrive on site in prime condition and be an improvement to customer servicing and internal shipyard production, Mr. Wallace said.

A novel feature of the storage area is the "pigeon-hole" type of rack with stock-supporting bars only 11 inches apart that will permit stacking steel up to 22 feet high.

The custom-built stacker crane servicing this bay will operate much like a fork-lift truck, having access to the entire inventory without having to move other material first.

Pilot's Body Flown Here For Funeral

The body of Victoria pilot Jim McLellan, who died Monday when his plane crashed 30 miles northeast of Port Hardy, was to be flown to Victoria this afternoon.

The body was recovered from the half-submerged plane Tuesday, along with the bodies of Mr. McLellan's three passengers.

It was released for burial this morning after opening of an inquest in Port Hardy.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced by the 25-year-old pilot's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan H. McLellan, 2836 Inez, Victoria. Mr. McLellan leaves a widow, Carole, in Port Hardy.

Funeral services will be handled by McCall Bros.

(See earlier story Page 33.)

Woman's Body Still Isn't Identified

The body of an elderly woman found floating off Dallas Road near Beacon Hill Park Tuesday, still hasn't been identified.

Police have received no reports of a missing woman matching the description.

The woman was five feet, four inches tall, weighed 120 pounds and wore a gold wedding band.

Police say it is likely the woman was from the Victoria area, as her body had not been in the water long.

Ex-Victorian Dies In Fire At Toronto

The body of a former Victoria man, burned to death in a rooming house fire in Toronto overnight Tuesday, will be returned here for burial.

Robert Bell Woods, 43, had been employed by the National Employment Service in Toronto for the past 10 years.

Born at Carroll's Landing in the Kootenays, he attended Qualicum Beach High School and later Victoria College. He was an arts graduate from UBC.

During the Second World War he served in Europe with the Canadian Armored Corps.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Irene Dora Woods, 1058 Davie Street, and cousins on the lower mainland, Nelson and Crescent Valley.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by McCall Brothers.

Governors Of Exchange Here Tuesday

Vancouver Stock Exchange governors will meet in Victoria for the first time in exchange history Tuesday in the Union Club.

The exchange has never met anywhere but in Vancouver since it was established early in the century.

Chairman Alan Thompson of James Richardson & Sons, and president John A. Van Luven will meet the press in the morning, followed by a luncheon at which Mayor A. W. Toone, cabinet ministers and key departmental superintendents will be guests.

The board will meet in the afternoon, and between 5 and 7 p.m. Victoria businessmen will be invited to attend a reception at the Union Club.

The meeting is being held here in recognition of the capital in centennial year, and to permit directors to meet local businessmen and elect representatives.

Ask The Times

Q. How many of the players in the Victoria Maple Leaf Hockey Club grew up in Victoria; are Canadians, and who owns the club?—W.G.

A. All are Canadians, but none grew up here, although Andy Hebenton is a resident of Victoria.

The team is owned by Toronto Maple Leafs Hockey Club, of which Stafford Smythe, John Bassett and Harold Ballard, all of Toronto, are major shareholders.

Q. Where can I obtain information on rules and regulations of Vancouver Island Track Racing Association?—B.K.

A. Secretary of the club is Ron Mayell, 911 McKenzie.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

LIFE-LONG HATRED ONLY RESULT

Poet Scores La-De-Da Literature Taught in Schools

TORONTO (CP)—Poet Irving Layton says the literature taught in schools today gives students a life-long hatred of it.

"The teaching of literature is remote, just as the whole school system is remote from society," he said in an interview.

Mr. Layton, 53, poet-in-residence at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, said Thackeray and Hardy were excellent novelists but don't arouse the admiration of modern students.

"The students learn to associate literature with the genteel, the la-de-da, the sissified."

He said most books on school literature courses have no relevance to the problems of the modern student with his knowledge of drugs and sexual perversion.

"Literature is always critical of the status quo. That's what a writer's here for. But trustees and teachers want to damp down the criticism. They don't want to disturb the traditional mores and taboos."

Mr. Layton said a teacher should communicate the experience that moved an author to write a poem.

"But a poor teacher can't do that, so he falls back on teaching the rigmarole of technical detail he has learned in some teacher's college.

"He has the student count figures of speech. . . . Why, he might as well hand out a laundry list."

Mr. Layton said giving a grade in literature is absurd.

"What are you marking? You can mark on the basis of information but this is the antithesis of literature. Literature is emotion and imagination. These things cannot be evaluated."

PROVINCE TO MARK WORLD TRADE WEEK

B.C. will recognize the value of export-import trade by marking world trade week May 1-7.

A cabinet order notes the economic welfare of B.C. depends to a large degree on trade in world markets, including the export of forest, mineral, farm fishery and factory products and the import of "essential commodities from our trading partners throughout the world."

Derailment Blamed On Juveniles

BOSTON (AP)—Six juveniles have been arrested for causing the derailment of a New Haven railroad commuter train and injuries to 62 persons.

The youths were arrested Monday night after one boy admitted he and the others broke a lock and turned a switch that shunted the two-car self-powered train to a siding.

The accident occurred Monday during the first morning run over the Needham to Boston line. The train was derailed as it hit the siding and overturned.

Investigators said a lock on the switch had been broken and the switch was thrown to divert the train onto the siding.

The railway said there were 90 commuters aboard the train.

PGE to Borrow $5 Million for Expansion

An order-in-council Tuesday granted Pacific Great Eastern Railway authority to borrow $5 million for current capital expansion.

General manager Joseph Broadbent said new rolling stock for the pulp and paper industry and branch line expansion into northern British Columbia would consume the money.

The cabinet gave permission under the PGE Construction Loan Act, 1954, to add to the $139.7 million already borrowed of a maximum authority to borrow $165 million.

Notes will be sold at rates up to 6 per cent, the issue due Oct. 31, 1966.

The loan is guaranteed by the province of B.C.

COURT HEARING SET

Three-Way Fight For Old Treasure

SYDNEY (CP) — A three-way legal fight for ownership of treasure found in the wreckage of an 18th century French ship loomed today as a third group disclosed plans to claim it.

Portuguese-born salvage skipper Manuel Sequeira of Louisbourg said he and his crew spotted the sunken wreck of Le Chameau in July, 1961, and later recovered five cannons. He said he planned legal action to back his claim to the treasure, estimated to be worth from $10,000 to $800,000.

Also involved in the wrangle, which will be heard in Supreme Court in Halifax beginning April 22, are groups headed by Louisbourg diver Alex Storm, 29, and Glace Bay machine shop manager Robert Macdonald, 32.

Storm announced last week that he, David MacEachern and Harvey MacLeod had recovered Le Chameau's treasure last fall and had deposited it in a Cape Breton bank.

Macdonald was granted an injunction last Thursday which prohibited anyone disposing of the treasure. He said in an affidavit filed in Supreme Court that Storm was a partner in a group known as the Orbit Association and that his request to terminate the partnership in 1965 was turned down by the other members of the group.

'FOUND IN 1961'

Macdonald, who represents Ronald Blundon, Willard Dillon, Joseph Nearing and Hyman Goldberg, said the Orbit Association found the wreck of Le Chameau in 1961 and Storm was made a partner after informing the others he knew the exact location of the treasure.

Meanwhile, Sheriff James MacKillop of Cape Breton County planned to start counting the treasure tonight. Sheriff MacKillop, ordered by the court to round up the treasure and tally it, said he found six boxes of coins in a Sydney bank Monday.

Capt. Sequeira, who said Storm once worked for him as diver, did not disclose what type of legal action he planned.

Dependents May Include Aunt, Uncle

Aunts, uncles, nieces and nephews may be claimed as dependents on your 1965 Income Tax Return, says Stan Jenkins, chief assessor of Victoria District Taxation Office.

Expenses incurred in supporting such relatives may be claimed under certain conditions where taxpayers are contributing to their support. He urged taxpayers to check their local office for details. "We're there to help," he said.

Special consideration is again given this year to students for tuition fees and parents of students for claims for dependents.

Expert Studies Claim Of Children's 'Return'

LONDON (Reuters) — An Indian expert on the supernatural has arrived here to meet two little sisters believed by their parents to have returned from the dead.

He is Hemendra Banerjee, 38, director of the department of parapsychology at Rajasthan, whose work for 12 years has centred on the theory of reincarnation — rebirth.

Banerjee will meet seven-year-old twins Jennifer and Gillian Pollock, whose parents firmly believe are reincarnations of their two previous children Jacqueline, 6, and Joanna, 11, who died in a road accident eight years ago.

Jennifer and Gillian carry a scar and a birthmark in identical spots to similar marks on the dead children.

The parents claim they have heard the twins discussing details of the fatal crash—which happened before they were born.

Their handwriting, speech and mannerisms are similar to the dead children, Mr. and Mrs. Pollock claim.

Banerjee said: "Personally I don't believe in reincarnation. But I am trying to find some credibility in a world-wide survey."

His research into the mystery of rebirth has taken him to Russia, Finland, Turkey, Burma and Ceylon, where, he said, subjects have shown astounding ability to recall details of their "former lives."

Opposition Parties Want New Formula

TORONTO (CP)—Leaders of three of Canada's opposition parties, in articles in The Globe and Mail today, oppose the Fulton-Favreau formula which would make it possible for Canada to amend its constitution.

Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker and T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, said the formula would make the constitution virtually impossible to amend by requiring unanimous consent of the provinces to constitutional changes.

Robert Thompson, Social Credit Leader, did not mention the formula specifically but implied rejection of it in an article favoring retention of the British North America Act, with amendments where needed.

Both Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Douglas called for a new constitution.

Mr. Diefenbaker called for a national constitutional confederation conference. He said he proposed such a conference in the House of Commons Feb. 4, 1963.

"Invitations were then sent to the provinces for that conference but the defeat of the Conservative party at the polls ended the proposal."

Mr. Douglas favored "the setting up of an all-party parliamentary committee as a start in re-making the Canadian constitution."

'CONSULT WITH EXPERTS'

"I believe there is a need to ascertain the wishes of the people. Such an all-party parliamentary committee should hear representations from people in all walks of life. It could consult with constitutional experts and meet with similar committees of the provincial legislatures. . . ."

Mr. Douglas said the constitution should be flexible and based on our general principles:

—"Clearly defined," federal powers entitling the federal government to "equalize opportunity between the various areas of Canada

—"Clear delineation of provincial jurisdiction and allocation of the necessary taxing powers to enable the provinces to discharge their responsibilities"

—"Clear recognition of the special status of Quebec"

—An entrenched bill of rights.

Mr. Diefenbaker opposed special status for Quebec.

"Conservatives believe that French-Canada shall have, and must have, the fullest opportunity to play its part in Confederation on the basis of equal partnership. However this does not mean that a special status should be conferred on any one province. . . ."

Mr. Thompson said he believes the "basic approach" to the constitutional question should be "to understand and develop the Canadian constitution that we now have . . . rather than a wholesale scrapping of something which, whatever its faults, has served us well for a hundred years. . . ."

'Threatened To Smear Reputation'

SHERBROOKE (CP) — Lawyer Michel Robert, testifying at the resumption of the trial of Yvon Dupuis Tuesday, said that early in 1965 he heard of a threat to smear Mr. Dupuis' reputation.

Mr. Robert said Real Rousseau, a friend of Mr. Dupuis, told him that Roch Deslauriers intended to attack Mr. Dupuis' reputation "by shouting from the rooftops that he (Mr. Deslauriers) had giver. Mr. Dupuis $10,000 to (help) obtain a racetrack permit."

Mr. Dupuis, a former federal minister without portfolio in the Pearson cabinet, is charged with accepting $10,000 in exchange for his influence in getting the permit for Mr. Deslaurlers from the provincial government. His trial had been in recess since April 7.

Mr. Robert said he had been asked to a meeting Jan. 5, 1965, by Mr. Rousseau. Mr. Dupuis and another man, Israel Lafrancois, were also present.

SOUGHT DELAY

Mr. Robert said Mr. Rousseau asked at this meeting if bankruptcy proceedings against Mr. Deslauriers could be delayed.

Mr. Roberts' client, identified as Raoul Gobiel, was suing Mr. Deslauriers for $25,000.

Earlier, Judge Evender Veilleux rejected a motion for mistrial which the defence made last Thursday, April 7.

Defence counsel Paul Martineau based his bid on Mr. Deslauriers' switch in story Wednesday, the day before, when he said he was now "morally certain" he made a first payment to Mr. Dupuis at noon, May 8, 1961, at the latter's St. Johns, Que., office.

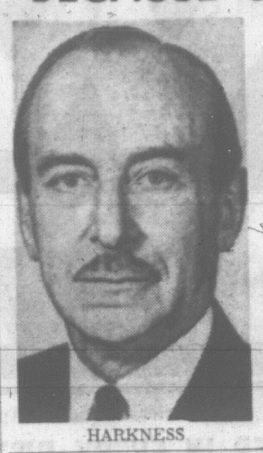

During the preliminary hearing Mr. Deslauriers had said he gave Mr. Dupuis $10,000 on May 9, 1961, in Ottawa.

The trial continues.

WAGES CLIMB STEADILY

Wages in manufacturing in Canada went up an average of $59 yearly between 1953 and 1963.

NAVY MORALE DROPS BECAUSE OF SCHEME

HARKNESS

CALGARY (CP) — Integration of the Canadian armed forces has resulted in a disruption and decline in the services' morale, Douglas Harkness, former Conservative defence minister, said Tuesday night.

The problem is most prevalent in the navy so that it is impossible for Canada to man all her ships and put them out to sea, Mr. Harkness said.

The Conservative MP for Calgary North told a meeting of his constituency's Conservative association:

"A large proportion of chief petty and petty officers and other highly-trained (navy) personnel have been refusing to re-engage due to the fact that they are unsure of what the future may be."

TORONTO AREA TRUCKERS CONTINUE STRIKE

Teamsters to 'Intensify' Fight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Teamsters' Union will intensify its strike against 55 Ontario trucking companies "in as many ways as we can," Ray Taggart, president of Hamilton Local 879, said Tuesday night.

Mr. Taggart, who is also chairman of the joint bargaining committee of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Inc.), made the comment in a telephone interview after union members had voted down a contract offer to settle a province-wide trucking strike now in its 12th week.

No date has been set for further negotiation meetings.

"We had begun to develop some co-operation between ourselves and other unions involved in the transport industry and one of the first things we'll do is to call on other unions to co-operate in any way they can to make the strike more effective," he said.

The proposed settlement, which had been recommended to union members by the bargaining committee, was rejected 2,997 to 1,497 in voting over the Easter weekend.

WON'T CHANGE RESULT

Results from voting in Sarnia will not be available until later today, but Mr. Taggart said the votes would have no effect on the over-all result.

Teamsters in Kingston and Chatham voted for the proposed settlement, while union members in Toronto, Hamilton, London and Windsor voted against.

The settlement offer rejected by the union included a gradual reduction in the work week to 40 from 48 hours by Oct. 1, 1968, an increase in wage rates for city drivers to $2.70 an hour from $2 in five stages of a contract due to expire March 31, 1969 and an increase in mileage rates for highway drivers to 8.6 cents from seven cents a mile.

The companies had also offered to drop an estimated $2,000,000 in damage suits arising from wildcat strikes by some Teamster locals last fall, in return for a token $7,500 settlement with the Hamilton local.

'Brains Truster' Dies

LONDON (AP)—Cmdr. Archie Campbell, 78, once one of the biggest names in British radio, died penniless Tuesday in a nursing home run by monks. Campbell, a retired naval officer, found quick fame during the Second World War as a member of the BBC brains trust team. He lost his position after saying he would rather see 580 scientists than 4,000 animals die in the 1946 Bikini nuclear test.

LIGHTS OUT FOR TOP 30 FLOORS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The management of New York City's Empire State Building, in compliance with a request from the National Audubon Society, will extinguish the lights on its top 30 floors during foggy, rainy or cloudy nights.

For some unknown reason, migratory birds have detoured from their course during bad weather to seek out the illuminated portion of the world's tallest building. Many have hit the building with enough impact to be killed.

Beleaguered Smithers Faces New Ice Threat

SMITHERS, B.C. (CP)—This northern community of 3,200, still trying to repair damage caused by an ice jam, a fire and a quicksand collapse, faces the threat of another ice jam.

A jam Good Friday tore away a 145-foot section of the bridge spanning the main highway. The same day a $40,000 fire destroyed a pumphouse, leaving the town short on drinking water. Then a quicksand collapse Monday smashed the main sewer line, flooding basements.

Now an ice jam seven miles long has formed at Quick, a small community 21 miles up the Bulkley River. It could roar downstream, causing more damage here.

Friday's ice jam here was blasted with dynamite. Now the Bulkley runs through a 150-foot wide channel.

Two pumps are supplying some drinking water to villagers.

DETOUR 40 MILES

A 40-odd mile detour around the broken Northern Trans-Provincial Highway bridge is still in operation—with special power wagons with winches on duty to pull drivers out of the mud. A detour of 9½ miles is being arranged.

People who live on one side of the river at Smithers and work on the other are being ferried across by helicopter—at $3.50 a round trip.

The main problem, say the engineers, is the broken sewer, which could contaminate the meager water supply.

It is planned to bypass the underground break with a 400-foot section of eight-inch pipe, then fix the break.

A chlorinator for the water is on its way from Vancouver, and engineers are preparing a temporary shelter for it. Chlorine freezes at 45 degrees, and in this part of B.C. it must be sheltered from the elements and kept warm with electric heaters.

36 Hours on Job With Broken Leg

SMITHERS (CP) — One of the heroes of Smithers' unluckiest weekend, village engineer Jim Wren, who led the village's fight against fire, flood, lack of drinking water and backed-up sewage, has finally been persuaded to go to hospital and have his broken leg attended to.

Wren broke the leg when a support on an emergency pump twisted suddenly and hit him.

But it wasn't until 36 hours later—all of which Wren spent on his feet, mostly in hip waders in the icy Bulkley river—that he was persuaded to let somebody put a cast on the leg.

MENACE TO BAND?

Eskimos on Trial For Killing Woman

SPENCE BAY, N.W.T. (CP) Two young Eskimo men were to be arraigned here Thursday on a joint charge of capital murder in the fatal shooting of an Eskimo woman.

The woman, Soosee, about 40, allegedly was shot July 15 during an attempt to drive her away from a nomadic Eskimo band of which she was a member.

Members of the band claim the woman was mentally ill and her actions — damaging tents and throwing rocks — threatened the welfare of the entire band.

Charged with Soosee's murder are Isochee Shooyok, about 21, and Aiyaoot, also about 21, the woman's son.

Soosee was the wife of the headman of the band of about 20 Ekimos hunting and living under primitive conditions in this remote, desolate area.

Soosee was shot at Fort Ross, 172 miles north of here on Boothia Peninsula which juts out into the Arctic Ocean far to the north of the Manitoba-Ontario border and divides the Arctic mainland coast approximately into western and eastern halves.

A jury of six, including some Eskimos, is to be chosen from communities in this part of the Arctic, including Cambridge Bay to the southwest on Victoria Island.

Conducting the trial will be Judge John H. Sissons of the Northwest Territories Territorial Court. The Eskimos call Judge Sissons Erkoktoyee, which means "the man who listens."

He was appointed the first justice of the court in 1955.

When RCMP first heard about Soosee's death two months after it occurred, they charged Shooyok with capital murder. A preliminary hearing was held and he was committed for trial. Subsequently, a stay of proceedings was entered and a joint charge was laid against Shooyok and Aiyaoot.

The two men have not been in custody.

SNOW IS DEEP

This part of Canada still is deep in winter. The Arctic Ocean is frozen over and snow lies deep on the ground.

Spence Bay is a small community established in about 1935 as a Hudson's Bay post. The bay is suitable for use as a harbor by small supply boats.

There are police, church mission and northern affairs department buildings here.

'We Need A Power Break Here!'

Electrical energy is taken too much for granted. Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, co-chairman of B.C. Hydro, said here Tuesday.

He was addressing a luncheon meeting of the B.C. Electrical Contractors' Association at the Empress Hotel.

"We need a break in power transmission like the one recently in the east (Nov., 1965) to illustrate the important part electricity plays in our life," Dr. Kennleyside said.

Power is publicly-owned in most countries because it is such an essential part of life, he said. In Canada, 91 per cent of all power is in public hands.

He said more people use more power today than ever in history.

Future use will increase beyond all earlier calculations.

It is because of this growing demand the provincial government has embarked on its power expansion program, Dr. Keenleyside said.

'It's Man With Gun You Must Talk With'

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — The myth that the United States cannot negotiate with the Viet Cong—and other fictions in dispute between countries—must be discarded in favor of scientific methods of arbitration, says an expert on international law.

Dr. Arthur Larson, widely known as a lawyer, educationist and consultant to presidents Eisenhower and Johnson, told a dinner audience Tuesday night that the old concept of power plays among nations could no longer be tolerated when both sides have nuclear weapons.

Nearly 90 per cent of the Vietnamese engaged in fighting are from South Viet Nam and only 10 per cent are from the North, Larson said.

"If you want to stop a man with a rifle who is shooting at you, you had better negotiate with the person who is doing the shooting," Larson said.

Meeting to Discuss Pollution of Lake

Saanich municipal officials will attend a public meeting May 11 which will examine the Prospect Lake pollution problem.

Public works committee members agreed to attend the meeting when the president of the Prospect Lake Community Association told them the problem was going to get worse before it gets better.

R. B. Ralfs said the situation will decline unless septic tank regulations are rigidly enforced in the area.

"If you say a sewer system is unfeasible at this time, then firm action will have to be taken against residents whose septic tanks are not functioning properly."

Municipal engineer Neville Life said it would be 20 years before the population density in the area would warrant the cost of a sewer system.

Committee chairman Les Passmore said the Greater Victoria sewer survey which is to be made public soon may point the way to stopping pollution at the lake.

$1,000 Worth Of Articles Taken from Home

Saanich police Monday received a list of goods missing in a house break-in.

Total value is nearly $1,000.

The break-in at the home of Harry Harris, 3920 Braefoot Rd., was discovered last week.

The home was vacant at the time because of fire damage.

Police said the thieves broke into the home through a rear window, drank two bottles of liquor and ransacked the dwelling.

The list of missing goods included three radios, a Polaroid camera, rolls of film, a tape recorder, record player, a clock, liquor and several items of jewelry.

CN to Retire Ferry Canora

After almost half a century of continual service, the CNR ferry Canora is to be taken out of service.

The unusually designed vessel has been used since 1918 to carry first passenger coaches from Port Mann to Patricia Bay, and laterly to ship boxcars between Tilbury Island on the Fraser River and Victoria.

News of her departure from the local scene was released Tuesday when CNR announced it would not re-apply for fitness certificates when the present one expires May 18.

Some 50 men are employed aboard the ferry.

'One of Canada's Most Gifted, Learned Men; Great Scientist'

Distinguished scholars and scientists were among the 300 men and women from Victoria and the mainland who went to McCall's funeral chapel Tuesday afternoon to pay their last respects to Dr. Robert M. Petrie, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Little Saanich Mountain.

Dr. Petrie died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday at the age of 59.

"He added more to our knowledge of the stars than any other living Canadian," said Rev. Robert J. D. Morris, minister of Victoria's First United Church, who conducted the service.

"He was one of Canada's most gifted and learned men; an astronomer of international stature and he took his knowledge to Russia, Czechoslovakia and Germany. He had the true international vision of the scientist."

Mr. Morris said he asked Dr. Petrie's mother, Mrs. James Petrie, to say something about him. She replied: "It is difficult — everything about him was so great."

"Dr. Petrie was not only a distinguished scientist, he was an able director and a wonderful friend," Mr. Morris continued. "He had a deep sense of humor and he combined this with a love of scholarship and a genuine fondness for humanity.

"He had friends everywhere."

Mr. Morris said Dr. Petrie's knowledge was far from limited to astronomy. He was a student of the Bible and the great literary classics and his interests extended over a wide field of human endeavor.

"It would be hard to overestimate his contribution to human life."

Mr. Morris said scientific achievement, however great, is small compared with the dignity of the human soul.

"We believe Dr. Petrie has entered into a larger world — greater even than the universe he studied."

Dr. Gordon Shrum, chancellor of Simon Fraser University, was one of many scholars from the mainland who attended the service.

The University of Victoria was represented by Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president, Judge J. B. Clearihue, chancellor, most members of the faculty and members of the student body.

Pallbearers wer Dr. Joseph A. Pearce, a former director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory; Dr. Kenneth Wright, acting director; Dr. G. J. Odgers; Robert R. Wallace, dean of the University of Victoria; Dr. M. L. Olsen, and Dr. John Hodgson, Dominion Observatory, Ottawa.

PLANE SHOT DOWN; THREE MISSING

U.S. Navy Tanker 'Ignored Warnings' Claim Chinese

TOKYO (AP)—China said today its air force shot down a U.S. fighter plane over the mainland. The U.S. defence department admitted a navy tanker plane is missing, and Pentagon sources said it could have strayed over Chinese territory.

Peking radio claimed Chinese fighters downed an A-3B heavy attack plane Tuesday on the Luichow Peninsula of Kwangtung province, which faces North Viet Nam across the Gulf of Tonkin.

The Pentagon announcement said a navy KA-3B, tanker version of the A-3B, was overdue on a ferry flight from the Philippines to the carrier Kitty Hawk stationed off Viet Nam.

The KA-3B normally carries three men.

The Chinese broadcast said the American plane was downed after it penetrated China's "territorial air space" and ignored repeated warnings from Chinese planes.

Peking claimed the plane came from southeast of China's Hainan Island and "flew in deep over Luichow Peninsula, engaging in military provocation."

The Kitty Hawk was reported cruising just outside the Gulf of Tonkin, within aircraft range of targets in North Viet Nam.

The normal flight course for the tanker plane should have carried it on a northwesterly line. To reach the area where the Chinese claim it was shot down, the plane would have had to veer considerably east of the Kitty Hawk and on a more northerly course.

The Chinese have stationed a strong force of MiGs and some medium bombers on Hainan Island, on the northeast side of the Gulf of Tonkin.

300TH KNOWN SUICIDE RECORDED AT BRIDGE

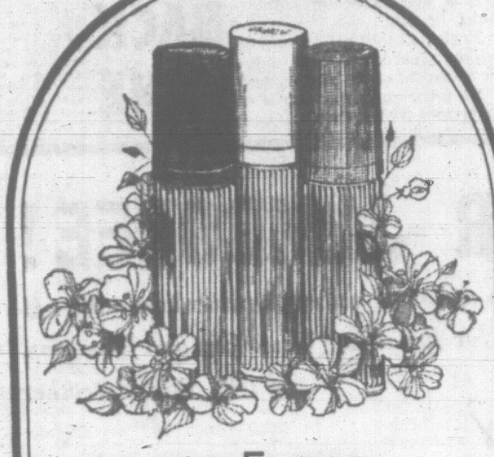

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The California highway patrol has listed the 300th suicide from Golden Gate bridge but acknowledges its official figures may not be large enough. Since the span was opened May 27, 1937, the patrol has listed 105 other possible suicides, saying that clothing, notes and automobiles have been found on the bridge in cases where bodies were not recovered.

Listed as the 300th death was Michael Detata, 20, a San Francisco bank clerk who plunged from the bridge Monday.

Universities Aid Heads Premiers' Parley Agenda

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and Finance Minister Sharp are expected to meet provincial premiers and treasurer in Victoria early in June to work out a long-range policy for federal aid to higher education.

But other important issues in federal-provincial relations are not likely to be tackled until this autumn and winter when a series of conferences and consultations will begin, seeking a new deal to go into effect next spring.

Prime Minister Pearson suggested in January that the Victoria meeting consider financial problems of universities. Subject to possible June elections in Quebec and Manitoba, it appears the Victoria conference will be held June 2-3.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, host for the conference to mark the centennial of the union in 1866 of the colonies of British Columbia and Vancouver Island, has announced the dates and said the main item on the agenda will be university education.

OTHER TOPICS

—A spokesman for Mr. Pearson said here that one or two other topics may be included at the request of the provinces.

Mr. Pearson advised the provinces Jan. 17 by letter that the federal government would raise its $2 - per - capita university grants to $5 for the 1966-67 academic year, with a promise that the formula for a long-range policy would be studied at a conference.

Meanwhile, the subject of new tax-sharing arrangements between Ottawa and the provinces, replacing those which expire next March 31, awaits recommendations of the provincial committee.

An official said it is unlikely that the tax structure committee will complete its work in time for the Victoria meeting. The committee's practical dead line is sometime this fall, after the Carter royal commission report on taxation has been released and digested. The report, after frequent postponements, now is expected to be issued about the time of the Victoria meeting.

The Canadian Tax Foundation has estimated that federal expenditures on education this year will amount to $248,187,000, including $27,730,000 in federal grants to the universities. The total also includes Indian and Eskimo education, and grants to vocational training schools.

The university grants are paid by Ottawa to the association of universities and colleges of Canada for distribution to the universities outside Quebec. In Quebec, payments are made by the provincial government from a tax abatement Ottawa makes, with adjusting grants to bring the scale of payment into line with the rest of Canada.

The $248,187,000 cited by the tax foundation, however, is based on federal grants to the universities at the present scale.

Gerda Was 'Engaged To Rich Colombian'

CALI, Colombia (Reuters) — Gerda Munsinger, the German blonde who has become the central figure in Canadian sex-and-security allegations, visited Cali in 1960 and was engaged to a rich Colombian, newspaper reports here said Tuesday.

MUNSINGER
. . . there two weeks

Mrs. Munsinger stayed at the Hotel Alferez Real under the name of Gerda Hessler, the reports said. She was reported to have been engaged to "the son of a rich Cali industrialist, whose name is being kept a secret."

Ernesto Trujillo, manager of the hotel, said Mrs. Munsinger stayed there about two weeks and visited several well-known tourist resorts.

After her short stay, Mrs. Munsinger returned to Canada, the reports said.

Police Smash Rally

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — One man was hospitalized and eight arrested Tuesday night when club-swinging police broke up a rally by 2,000 anti-war demonstrators who hanged President Johnson in effigy.

French Group Praises PM's Language Move

OTTAWA (CP)—An association of French-speaking federal civil servants Tuesday called the government's long-term program for increasing bilinjualism in the civil service "sincere and courageous."

The program, announced by Prime Minister Pearson April 6, "constitutes the first concerted policy since Confederation for establishing a vigorous system of bilingualism in the federal civil service," said L'Association des Fonctionnaires Federaux d'Expression Francaise.

The association, in a statement, said that especially noteworthy was the policy's provision for establishment of a permanent secretariat dealing with bilingualism.

IN NORTH AMERICA SCHOOLS

'Too Much Emphasis On Science Teaching'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The success of the Soviet space program has caused an over-emphasis on the teaching of science in North American schools, Dr. Finis Engleman, secretary emeritis of the American Association of School Administrators, said Tuesday night.

Engleman told a composium on art and music education at the University of British Columbia "America may be playing the fool by plunging into an education program pointed almost exclusively at material values."

The stress on scientific education because of the Soviet sputnick has eliminated recognition of the arts in school curriculums, he said.

Engleman said art and music make major contributions to the development of the human race.

"A program in the arts is so important that it should stretch from kindergarten through college," he said. He warned that by forcing a potential creative artist into the scientific field can result in the destruction of genius.

"Those with special creative talents should be given their head," he said.

ULTIMATUM TO MUNICIPALITIES OVER COST-SHARING TALKS

Health Board Ready to Take Unilateral Action

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

Greater Victoria municipalities have been told to arrange a meeting with Health Minister Martin soon or stand aside while the board of health arranges one.

The ultimatum was issued Tuesday afternoon after the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health rejected a motion by Ald. Lily Wilson of Victoria, asking that a health board attempt to meet with the minister be abandoned.

The decision to hold talks with the minister was approved some weeks ago by the health board.

MUST CONFER

Since then Victoria has objectd strongly to the board "exceeding its powers" and has repeatedly stressed the board is the child of the municipalities and must confer with the various councils before taking direct action.

The board wants a new constitution based on equal per capita payment by all members.

Ald. Wilson could only win one supporter for her motion cancelling the original meeting proposal. Coun. Edith Gunning of Saanich seconded the motion and voted along with the Victoria alderman to no avail.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, metro health officer, asked how long the board had to wait before taking action on its own.

"There is no indication that the provincial government is going to increase grants," he said. "How long are you going to wait? (before taking action). We have waited for five years now. The provincial government isn't going to do anything unless we meet with them and tell them our needs."

NO ASSURANCE

Coun. Arthur Mebs of Esquimalt said if the health board is prevented from taking action there is no assurance the various municipalities will take up the cudgels on behalf of the board.

"What is the purpose of the board of health if we haven't got the power to go to the minister when we want to?" he asked.

He proposed that all reeves and the mayor of Victoria be asked to organize as soon as possible a meeting between the minister and the municipalities.

"If that meeting doesn't come about then we should pursue the matter on our own," he said.

The motion was approved with Ald. Wilson voting against and Coun. Gunning abstaining.

Asked if he regarded the motion as an ultimatum Ald. Mebs answered: "Yes. If the municipalities won't act then we shall have to."

'OVERSIGHT'

Earlier in the meeting chairman Reeve Gordon Lee of Central Saanich had explained why certain letters from municipalities protesting personal talks with the minister of health had not been communicated to health board members.

He said the failure to read the letters at the last meeting was his own.

"It was just an oversight," he said. "It was not a deliberate attempt to conceal information."

Reeve Lee said recent criticism of his talks with Health Minister Martin were unjustified.

"There seems to be a lot of criticism and fear that something might have been undertaken," he said.

"My one meeting with the minister was to ask if he had made any decision (on grants) and he said he had not. I must say I have not been happy at all at the objections coming from city hall."

Victoria has complained that with a new metro health board agreement under discussion the health board should act in conjunction with all municipalities on matters which could affect the agreement particularly in the cost-sharing phase.

Reeve Lee said anything he had done was with the objective of gaining a more equitable cost-sharing formula.

"In my municipality of Central Saanich we are getting a bargain at 40 cents per capita," he said. "In Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay they pay around $2 per capita. Anything I have done has been done with the view of obtaining more equitable cost-sharing.

BETTER OFF

"I therefore do not see why I should bend over backwards to help Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay. The longer the present cost sharing remains the better off my municipality will be."

Ald. Wilson pointed out that relations between the health board and the municipalities would be better if each understood the other's problems better.

"Good understanding will prevent any wedge being driven between us," she said.

"I don't think I can be accused of trying to do that," retorted Reeve Lee.

Coun. Gunning stressed that Victoria is not alone in its objections to some health board actions.

"It isn't just Victoria," she said. "We, each one of us, represent a municipality. They object to us going to the senior government without their sanction."

ALCOHOLIC:

Drunks Taken As Dumb Brutes From Gutter . . .

WASHINGTON (AP)—A janitor arrested 34 times for public drunkenness has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to declare unconstitutional criminal punishment of chronic alcoholics.

Thomas Budd, 56, whose alcohol problem dates back to 1939, said he spoke not only for himself in asking the court for what could be an historic ruling.

Budd in his appeal filed Tuesday said:

"For hundreds of thousands of men and women who, though confirmed alcoholics, are repeatedly prosecuted for public drunkenness.

"Year after year these people are marched as dumb brutes from gutter to paddy wagon to drunk tank to mass trial to short, useless jail sentences and then to release to the bleak hopelessness of the gutter again.

"The public authorities pursue them relentlessly, as once they pursued witches and the insane."

Four California lawyers, one a representative of the American Civil Liberties Union, carried Budd's case to the Supreme Court. They cited medical testimony that he is "a chronic alcoholic" and described him as a pauper unable to meet court costs. There was no immediate indication if the judges will allow his petition to be heard.

PRECEDENT SET

Earlier this year, the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., ruled that the eighth amendment to the U.S. constitution, which outlaws "cruel and unusual punishments," forbids treating chronic alcoholics as criminals. The court held that alcoholism is "now almost universally accepted medically as a disease."

Last month, in a second high level blow at punishing chronic alcoholics, the U.S. Circuit Court from the District of Columbia held chronic alcoholism is a disease and a pesron cannot be convicted for it.

Budd was tried and found guilty by a municipal court judge for public drunkenness Nov. 23, 1964.

The appellate department of the Superior Court for Alameda County affirmed the conviction and the California Supreme Court turned down Budd's application for a writ of habeas corpus. The California High Court's action is being appealed to the Supreme Court.

JONES BEGINS APPEAL TO UPSET DISMISSAL

VANCOUVER (CP)—The appeal of former B.C. purchasing commission chairman George E. P. Jones began Tuesday in Appeal Court seeking to upset the provincial Supreme Court's dismissal of his slander action against Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Jones, who alleged the premier slandered him in a speech last year, lost out in Supreme Court when Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes ruled that remarks made by the premier could not have a defamatory meaning.

FAMED BRITISH ASTRONOMER SAYS

Forms of Life Likely on Other Planets

SEATTLE (AP) — A famed British astronomer said Tuesday it is scientifically reasonable that the universe holds "many abodes" where intelligent life like that on earth would develop.

Sir Bernard Lovell, head of Jodrell Bank Observatory in England, made the statement in a talk at the University of Washington.

He didn't speculate on the forms of life which may exist elsewhere. He referred to them as "organisms."

The scientist said proof may be found when man succeeds in reaching areas near Mars and Venus, although Venus is "so hot that it now probably is inhospitable to life."

However, he said life may have existed on Venus in the past, and remains of that life theoretically could be detected.

"It would be a relatively simple thing to collect evidence, say, in the neighborhood of Venus by a number of lay-bys by space craft," Sir Bernard said.

"One could just trail some sticky tape of some sort and collect a vast amount of information about any organisms there. It isn't at all necessary to land there and contaminate the place."

Sir Bernard goes to Penticton, B.C., Thursday to visit the new Queen Elizabeth observatory, scheduled to open in 1967 at a cost of $10,000,000.

High Wire Sit-in Starved Out

SAINT ETIENNE, France (Reuters) Henri Rochatain, 39-year-old hight-wire stunt man, Tuesday abandoned his attempt to spend a week on a tightrope 540 feet above a lake in the Loire Valley.

Police had threatened to starve him down. When he returned to the ground at noon, he complained bitterly at their intervention.

Rochatain took up his position on the wire over the lake Monday afternoon, watched by a crowd of about 1,000 who thought he was going to walk the wire across the 1½-mile wide lake.

But 600 feet out on the six-ton cable he announced through a microphone:

"Here I am and here I stay for 143 hours."

Police had other ideas.

Rochatain's police permit for his high-wire performance ran out Monday. He was told to come down and informed that no water, wine or food would be passed out to him if he stayed on the wire.

Court Fines Sailor $160 On 3 Charges

A sailor attached to HMCS Qu'Appelle was fined $160 Tuesday in traffic court for three related driving offences.

Brian Jameson, 19, pleaded guilty to charges of passing on the right, failing to remain at the scene of an accident and driving while his licence was suspended.

Court was told Jameson's car was involved in an accident on Bay between Quadra and Wark Feb. 10, when he drove the car past another car while in the inside lane of the road.

He was fined $10 for passing on the right and $75 for each of the other two charges.

Lillian Radley, 957 Client, was fined $40 on a charge of careless driving.

She admitted driving in the wrong lane of the road after making a turn at Lampson and Fernhill March 26.

Her car collided head-on with another car causing $500 damage.

U.S. Plane Downed

TOKYO (AP)—A U.S. plane was shot down Tuesday by a Chinese Air Force unit over southwest China, the New China news agency said today. It described the plane as an A-3B heavy attack craft.

Gold Cord Certificates Awarded Today

Eighteen Vancouver Island Girl Guides helped make up the total of 140 who received Gold Cord certificates at a presentation in Government House this afternoon. Five girls from the Victoria area were among those who received the highly-prized certificates from His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor.

All Grade 11 students, the Victoria recipients are Anne Pugh, 5561 West Saanich Road, First Prospect Lake Company; Jeannine Moreau, 2028 Runnymede Avenue, and Barbara Speed, 9360 Ashford Road, both of the Tenth Victoria Company; Diane Wilson, 107 Bushby Street, S.R.S. Victory sea ranger crew, and Vivian Zuck, 309 Arnold Avenue, First Victoria Cadet Company.

Other Vancouver Island girls to receive cords were Gwendolyn Christmas, Gail Miller and Frances Mary West, all of Duncan; Betty-Jane Woodley and Sonia Dobbs, both of Chemainus; Jane Neville and Karin Quayle, both of Wellington; Joyce Raffle and Louise Veillette, both of Nanaimo; Janice Zboyousky, North Wellington; Janet Hickey, Parksville; Heather Harmston and Beverly McGill, both of Courtenay.

At 11:30 a.m. this morning, Guides, Rangers and Cadets had gathered for a luncheon at the Empress Hotel. Special guests at the affair were Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett. Mrs. J. S. Kendrick, Vancouver, provincial commissioner, presided.

Southern Vancouver Island Guides will act as over-night hostesses for the visitors who come from 57 points of the province. On Thursday, all will be taken on a tour of the Provincial Museum and the Legislative Buildings.

Of Personal Interest

BUSY SCHEDULE

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes have a busy schedule this coming Thursday. During the afternoon, His Honor will hold a Queen Scout ceremony at Government House. On completion of the ceremony, His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will fly to Chilliwack, where they will attend the Canadian Championship Plowmen's Banquet, to be held in the United Church Hall. Wing-Cmdr. C. C. Margerison will be the aide-de-camp in attendance. His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will return to Victoria the same evening.

At Admiral's House

Ninety guests will be attending an early evening reception on Thursday evening, to be given in Admiral's House by Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, Maritime Commander (Pacific), and Mrs. Stirling. Their guests will include dignitaries, officers of the armed services, and their wives.

Quiet Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mayar, 1940 Allenby Street, announce the marriage of their elder daughter, Nancy, to Mr. Donald Auld, Victoria, son of Mr. J. Auld, Vancouver. The quiet ceremony took place in Centennial United Church on Saturday. Dr. S. J. B. Parsons officiated. Following a short honeymoon in the United States, the newlyweds will make their home at the Wedgewood Apartments in the city.

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Donations—Mrs. C. E. Beirnes presided when the Navy League Chapter IODE met at headquarters and voted the following donations: Municipal bursary fund, $100; fund to send a university exchange student to Turkey, $10; books for adopted school at Hartley Bay, $10. It was announced that four children's quilts and 10 knitted articles had been given for distribution under services at home and abroad and magazines and books taken to the Veterans' Hospital and Rose Manor. Mrs. Beirnes was named delegate for the provincial annual meeting, to be held at the Empress Hotel April 19 and 20. It was decided to hold a bingo game at the Harrop Road home of Mrs. W. F. Mawdsley on April 27. Members were asked to bring a friend.

. . . Celebrate Golden Anniversary

HAPPIEST CHAPTER ADDED TO LOCAL COUPLE'S MEMORY BOOK

By DINA STEWART

A little bound volume titled "Ye Guest Book" is one of the proudest possessions of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hopkinson, 2314 Oak Bay Avenue. Inside are clippings, invitations and guest lists which mark some of the happiest memories of the couple's married life.

To celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hopkinson held a reception and cocktail party in the Victoria Golf Club and a delighted Mrs. Hopkinson was presented with a white velvet gown and fox stole for the occasion by her husband. Among the more than 50 guests attending was Mrs. Fred Dyson, Vancouver, Mrs. Hopkinson's cousin, who assisted the honor couple in receiving guests.

Tuesday evening, another chapter was added — the account of a reception held by the couple to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

The story begins in Leeds, Yorkshire, England, in 1912, when Mrs. Hopkinson's father offered her three choices — to study at the Royal College of Music in London, to study in Paris, or to go to Canada.

Recalls Mrs. Hopkinson: "One of my favorite uncles lived in Manitoba at the time, so I selected the last course, and met my husband there. However, it wasn't until a year later that we became engaged, when he followed me to England."

The first clipping in "Ye Guest Book" was, in 1916, the engagement announcement of Miss Doris Johnson and Mr. Joseph Hopkinson, followed by the description of their wedding.

HELPED WOUNDED

Mrs. Hopkinson was a well-known vocalist in the community at that time, a pupil of the late Sir John Barstowe and was especially noted for entertaining wounded soldiers during the First World War. Mr. Hopkinson was a chartered accountant.

When they returned to Canada, Mr. Hopkinson was appointed to the office of the auditor-general of Canada in Ottawa in 1925, retiring 30 years later with the title, assistant auditor-general of Canada. The couple enjoyed the capital city; Mrs. Hopkinson continued singing, this time in church choirs and in various musical societies and clubs. They also added another chapter to their book, their silver anniversary.

Here they brought up their two children; Douglas, who is now married and living in Toronto with his wife, Marguerite, and three sons; and daughter Phyllis, who, with her husband, Bob, and two daughters, makes her home in North Bay, Ont.

On his retirement, Mr. Hopkinson was invited by the Ethiopian government to Addis Ababa as accounting and auditing advisor to the minister of finance. During that time they were guests of Emperor Haile Selassie at the palace on the 25th anniversary of his coronation.

About the African country, Mrs. Hopkinson has this to say: "We loved it. It is a rich country but the contrast between the rich and the poor is utterly amazing.

"There is no equality between men and women, either. For example, we constantly saw the women trudging down the street under a load of wood. Ahead of them would be the men, carrying perhaps one stick.

"The people adored the Emperor, but we didn't see too much of him, except on official occasions. There, one bowed, perhaps, but hardly ever spoke to him."

RETURN HOME

The extreme altitude of the country forced the couple to return to Canada the next year, when they settled in Victoria.

During his career, Mr. Hopkinson represented Canada as chairman of the first board of auditors of the International Monetary Fund, and was, for many years, supervisor of the auditing of the United Nations.

Though retired, Mr. Hopkinson is auditor of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry in Victoria and is past president of the Victoria Branch, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, continuing to serve on the local board of directors.

He is a member of the Oak Bay Lawn Bowling Club and Mrs. Hopkinson is a social member of the Victoria Golf Club. Both belong to St. Mary's Anglican Church.

WEDS ON SATURDAY

Round of Parties Held For Miss Kathleen James

Bride-elect Miss Kathleen James, whose marriage to Mr. Gary Rankin takes place Saturday, has been widely feted with a round of showers and gifts.

Gifts concealed under a decorated parasol were presented to Miss James when Mrs. H. W. Clague and Mrs. W. G. Watkiss entertained at a shower in the Rudyard Road home of the latter. Carnations en corsage were presented to the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. A. B. James, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. K Thomas.

Invited guests at the affair included Mrs. C. N. Clague, Mrs. P. Neligan, Mrs. E. J. Watkiss, Mrs. R. Gardom, Mrs. V. Drew, Mrs. L. W. Tusken, Mrs. Kuldeep Bains, Mrs. D. E. Flanagan, Mrs. R. Fair, the Misses Ana Watkiss, Elizabeth and Heather Clague.

A surprise dinner party and shower honoring Miss James was held in the Cedar Hill Cross Road home of Mrs. M. Campbell. Guests, co-workers of the honor guest at Ross and Company Adjusters Ltd., were Mrs. S. Fricritti, Mrs. D. Lidgate, Mrs. N. Howe, Mrs. D. Frampton, Mrs. C. S. Johnson, and Mrs. J. Isherwood

A bouquet of spring flowers and white candles decorated the refreshment table when a surprise shower was held in the Hector Road home of Mrs Neligan. Gifts of groceries were presented to the bride-elect. Corsages of spring flowers, made by the hostess, were presented to Miss James, her mother, Mrs. A. B. James, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. K. Thomas.

The affair was attended by Mrs. T. Neligan, Mrs. R. Snider, Mrs. D. Fielding, Mrs. R. Zeitz, Mrs. H. Gableman, the Misses Judy James, Barbara Neligan and Sharon Foster.

Gifts of linen were presented to Miss James when she was honored at a shower in the Island View home of Mrs. Dennis Hartley. A replica of a ship held the gifts. Carnation corsages were received by the bride-elect, her mother, and the groom-elect's mother.

Other guests were Mrs. R. Murray, Mrs. M. Buchanan, Mrs. W. Rankin, Mrs. E. Thomas, Mrs. I. Rankin, Mrs. G. Hartley, Mrs. H. Hancock, Mrs. F. Holmes, Mrs. L. Ledson, Mrs. D. Rankin, Mrs. A. Thomas, the Misses Judy James and Norma Whiteley.

DEAR ABBY . . .

She Hits 'Bingo With Two Sisters

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have two sisters. Both are over 40, married and have families. Last Friday sister number one went to a bingo game with the husband of sister number two, while sister number two stayed home watching television with sister number one's husband. Cosy? The next thing I knew, sister number one and husband number two went bowling together, while husband number one and sister number two took in a movie. I have been seeing my sisters with the wrong husbands more and more lately and I don't know what's coming off. I told mother and dad about it, and they called both sisters and asked what kind of switching business was taking place. The girls denied it, but now, neither of my sisters nor their husbands are speaking to me. Was I wrong to tell our parents? I was only trying to head off trouble.

MEANT WELL

DEAR MEANT: Reporting two married sisters (over 40 yet) to mother and dad for what you considered "suspicious conduct" could hardly be called constructive. If you really wanted to be helpful, you should have spoken to your sisters directly. Even though your intentions were the best (and perhaps better than your sisters') you can expect to be in family exile for a while.

DEAR ABBY: What should a girl do when a boy calls her at 7 o'clock and asks her if she wans to go out at 7:45? I really wanted to go, but I turned him down because a friend of mine told me I should play hard to get.

HIGH SCHOOL JUNIOR

DEAR JUNIOR: If you wanted to go, you should have gone. There is nothing to be gained by playing "hard to get" if you're sitting home longing to go out.

DEAR ABBY: I am now a college freshman. Last year I played football for my high school and I was quite good. I received many trophies and such. After the last game some of us were awarded our game shirts. This is a big honor. My mother was very proud of me and she said, "Now, don't go giving that shirt to any girl." Well, the summer before I left for college, I met a girl, and we really went for each other, so like a dope, I gave her my shirt. I didn't tell my mother for obvious reasons. Now this girl and I aren't as serious about each other as we were and I want my shirt back. How do I get it without hurting her feelings?

SORRY

DEAR SORRY: Ask her for it. (Nicely, of course.) Since you aren't as "serious" about each other as you were, she might surprise you and return it cheerfully. Of course, she might not, but you've nothing to lose by asking. And next time, listen to your mother.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DINO: When are you going to learn that no horse can go as fast as the money you bet on him?

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS
BRONCHIAL COUGH, ASTHMA

Do you cough, cough, cough night and day because of bronchial irritation caused by tightly-packed phlegm in your bronchial tubes? Do you gasp for breath, wheeze and cough so you find it hard to do your work or get your proper rest? Then here is GOOD NEWS for you from Mrs. G. Schofield, 75 Munro Street, Toronto: "I have been subject to chronic bronchitis which made me cough and gasp for breath. I also get asthmatic attacks in damp weather. I am thankful to say I have found in RAZ-MAH capsules quick and satisfactory relief from my suffering. I recommend RAZ-MAH capsules to my friends."

You can get this same satisfactory relief. Get RAZ-MAH capsules from your druggist, 85c and $1.65. For children get RAZ-MAH Grays Jrs. T-49-G

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

An exercise a day will keep the sags away. We simply must exercise muscles if they are to remain firm and keep their tone. This is especially true after 40 or 50 has taken a good look at you.

Lowman

Things to remember about exercise: Always start out gradually and build up slowly, perhaps 10 minutes the first day and slowly increase until you are exercising for 20 or 30 minutes, including short rest periods. Begin with the easier exercises.

Don't expect overnight results. It took a few years to get that roll over the girdle and the lax muscles and it will take a while to get back in shape. However, I am always amazed by how rapidly the body does respond to regular exercise.

Notice the "regular." That's important! It is more beneficial to exercise for 10 minutes every day than for 20 minutes twice a week.

Always have your heart and blood pressure checked before beginning exercises. Exercise to music. It takes the boredom out of it (the exercise). Wear comfortable clothes which do not bind.

Exercise any time which is most convenient for you. Exception: Not when digestion is at its height. Try to plan for an exercise period not less than two-and-a-half or three hours after a meal.

Today I want to give you a warming up exercise. It is also mildly reducing to the abdomen. Stand tall with the abdomen pulled in, the spine straight and the hips tucked under. As you swing your arms forward-upward to an overhead position, raise the left leg forward-upward as far as you can (and still keep your back straight). Lower arms and leg to starting position.

Next raise your arms forward-upward overhead as you raise your right leg. Alternate. Your knees should be straight throughout the exercise.

If you would like to have my "Six Introductory Exercises," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Shoes and Boots Made For the Outdoor Man

By PENNY SAVER

I believe that feet are the most sensitive extremities. When they are tired or aching, it seems to affect the whole body. My father, I'm sure, holds the same belief. He has a remedy, though. About 10 years ago, while on a trip to Mexico, he found a pair of sandals that he donned every time his feet bothered him at all. Those were his favorite shoes, and he was quite angry when my mother finally had to throw them away, as he had drained every possible ounce of wear out of them.

One downtown shop has a type of moccasin that is just made for comfort—like father's favorite sandals. These wonders are made of pale tanned elk leather. They're sturdy, too, and will withstand rugged wear. All the stitching is done with strong, nylon thread. A leather drawstring tightens or loosens the shoe. With the single sole, these are priced at $7.95.

Another pair has burnt-in designs, which makes them very, very comely shoes indeed. With these decorations, they sell for $8.95.

My nephew in Alberta spends as much time as he can out in the country. Hearing him talk about his adventures, he would be lost without a pair of tough boots. His prized western boots, he admits, are now a little the worse for wear, so he jokingly (I think) says that he is going to have them bronzed, and made into lamps.

Perhaps, then, to some men, their best friends are a comfortable pair of boots.

In one shop, I found western boots ranging in price from $19.98 to $24.98. These come in shades of brown or black, with high, 1½-inch heels. Some have a rough finish, as the beef skin is turned so the raw side is on the outside of the boot. The latter price includes boots with fancy designs, ideal for the square-dancer in your household.

This footwear is made for comfort. Give Penny a call at 382-3131, she'll tell you where she shopped.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I thought it was considerate of them to slip in a Laurel and Hardy comedy between the movies of their vacation and the movies of their baby."

TODAY'S RECIPE

PEACHY MEAT COBBLER

One can (1 lb. 13 ozs.) cling peach slices, 1 lb. ground chuck, ½ lb. bulk pork sausage, ½ cup chopped onion, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup red current jelly, 2 tablespoons butter, 1⅓ cups biscuit mix, ½ teaspoon celery seed, ⅔ cup milk.

Drain peach slices reserving ¼ cup syrup. Brown ground chuck, sausage, onion and salt in skillet. Spoon into 9-inch square pan. Top with peach slices. Combine jelly and ¼ cup reserved syrup; pour over peaches. Cut butter into biscuit mix; add celery seed. Add milk and stir to mix. Drop batter onto peaches. Bake in 400 degree (hot) oven 20 to 25 minutes.

Makes 6 servings.

'OPEN TO EVERYONE' SAYS CHAMBER PRESIDENT

Children Encouraged to Daub Away

Fence Art Catching At Duncan

DUNCAN—The city's fence art competition has been thrown open to children, Chamber of Commerce president Sam Keeble said Tuesday.

He said many of the panels surrounding the provincial courthouse building project have not been painted "and it would be wonderful if children would take part in this contest. It's open to everyone."

Braved Wind

About a dozen artists from Crofton and Cowichan Valley art groups braved cold winds Tuesday morning to begin dressing up the fence.

More artists were out this morning, finishing previous efforts.

"More interest is being stimulated all the time," said Mr. Keeble.

Prizes Offered

Several businesses have offered prizes for the best art. Details of judging and awarding of prizes were to be worked out at a Chamber of Commerce meeting today.

Duncan claims to have originated the idea of sidewalk art before it started in Vancouver and spread to Victoria.

Head of Devil

Mr. Keeble said a painting of the head of the devil, already on the Douncan courthouse hoarding, is the original among art works on government construction projects.

The artist has remained anonymous, but officials are hoping he or she will come forward and sign the painting to become eligible in the contest.

Ill-Fated Plane Hit Tree Flying Level, Flaps Show

A B.C. Airlines plane which crashed Monday killing all four passengers aboard apparently clipped a tree while in level flight.

Investigators at the scene, remote McKinnon Lagoon, 30 miles northeast of Port Hardy, said position of the plane's flaps indicate it was neither landing nor taking off at the time of the accident.

Killed when the single-engine amphibian plunged into the lagoon were: Victoria pilot Jim McLellan, 25, based in Port Hardy; Joseph O. Hass, 55, president and managing director of Nalos Lumber Ltd., Vancouver; George McBryer, 50, logging manager for the same company, and Gerry G. Bell, 35, of North Surrey, a buyer for Domtar Forest Products division.

Mr. Bell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bell of Fanny Bay, V.I. He was a past master of the Cumberland Masonic Lodge 26.

For the young pilot it was his second crash in two years.

In 1963 his plane overturned on take-off at Qualicum. With him at the time was Carole Cookson, 18, who became his wife in March, 1964.

Mr. McLellan joined B.C. Airlines in April, 1965 after working a year for Victoria Flying Services.

The area in which the crashed plane was found Tuesday was described by police as a jungle of timber, bush and thousands of small inlets which make flying difficult, especially in a storm.

The aircraft was semi submerged and the bodies were recovered aboard her.

Ladysmith Boy Killed by Car

LADYSMITH — Five-year-old William Thomas Forrester was killed by a car at noon Tuesday as he ran out of a candy store.

He was the third eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Forrester, Esplanade, Ladysmith.

He was the second child accident victim at Ladysmith in two days.

Monday morning 10-month-old Beverley Borgerson was fatally injured when riding in her parent's truck.

Driver of the car which struck the Forrester child was Mrs. Alistair (Elaine) Couwenberg of Yellowpoint Road, Ladysmith.

INTO PATH

RCMP said Mrs. Couwenberg was driving south on First Avenue when the boy ran into her path from around a parked milk truck.

William, a younger brother, and a friend, had just been in Harry's Confectionary store.

He was killed instantly, police said.

William has five brothers and a sister.

Coroner Russ Inkster has tentatively set the inquest for Thursday evening.

William was two blocks from home when hit.

Housing Boom On Reserve

DUNCAN—Cowichan Indians are showing greater interest in improving housing conditions on the reserve.

The band council has had to set up a special committee to recommend priorities in awarding building grants to members.

Some 30 local Indians have applied for department grants to build new homes.

Louise Underwood, band secretary, said Tuesday: "Our budget for this year has not yet been approved but we will be lucky to build 10 new homes.

INDIAN TRADESMEN

"We have an unusually high number of applications and there is definitely increased interest in housing."

Miss Underwood said qualified Indian tradesmen will be employed building the new homes.

Applicants must have their own land cleared and the amount of grant depends on individual circumstances.

Miss Underwood said: "We are trying to ensure that all new reserve homes have all the essential services."

Celebration Area Sought

DUNCAN—If city council approves the Lions Club will cordon off part of downtown Duncan Saturday, July 9, for centennial celebrations.

Club spokesman Dick Cheeke said Tuesday the celebrations would co-incide with the visit to Duncan by the provincial cavalcade of vintage cars.

Tentatively lined up as entertainment are the Victoria Chinatown Lions Band and the Nanaimo Lions minstrel show.

The idea was referred to Ernie Hamm, chairman of the joint city and municipal celebrations committee.

Too Much Dust

GOLD RIVER—Council has requested the municipal clerk to find out when townsite roads will be paved to cut down on the extreme dust menace which plagued residents throughout last summer.

PROGRESS HAS DOOMED most of buildings in the heart of Duncan's Chinatown district. They will either be destroyed or removed to make room for the new courthouse. Mayor Jack Dobson has suggested some of them could be moved to the Cowichan Forest Museum as a lasting memorial to the Chinese community. (Photos by Jim Ryan.)

MAKING WAY FOR COURTHOUSE

Chinatown Wrecking Starts Soon

ONE OF A FEW remaining Chinese is Jack Woo, 80. When the Chinatown buildings are removed it will probably signal the end of the community in the city.

DUNCAN — Part of the city's historic Chinatown will come under the wrecker's hammer within a few weeks.

The old Midway Hotel and stores fronting on Government Street will be levelled to make an asphalt parking lot.

"It's all part of the over-all plan for the new provincial courthouse complex," said Mayor Jack Dobson.

He said the more colorful Chinatown buildings behind the hotel will not be knocked down this year because of delays in the construction of the courthouse.

"The interest has not been too great," he said. "Maybe once the buildings are shown off to advantage with the removal of the front stores where will be more interest."

MUSEUM MOVE?

Gerald Wellburn, a director of the Cowhichan Valley Forest Museum, has expressed interest in having them moved to the museum site at Somenos Lake.

A number of Chinese stores have relocated in the city and city council is assisting individual families to find new homes.

Mayor Dobson pointed out the demise of Chinatown would have taken place much sooner if it were not for the delays in construction of the courthouse.

"If the government had kept to its original plan we would be much further ahead," he said.

Lawyer Hired To Fight Drag Strip

COBBLE HILL — A group of property owners here has hired a lawyer to fight a proposed drag strip.

Promoter of the drag racing idea is Mike Stogrin of Duncan. He and several partners have purchased 130 acres between Meredith Road and Telegraph Road.

Fred S. Green, Duncan lawyer, said this morning: "I have been retained by a residents' committee to approach the responsible government departments to try and block any further development of the strip."

UNORGANIZED

Protests must be filed with the provincial government because the land in question is in unorganized terrirory.

Chairman of the protest committee is insurance adjuster John Bateson.

He said: "It's no exaggeration to say we might as well pick up our beds and belongings and live in the middle of an airfield if this dragstrip is allowed.

"I'm not against drag racing but this strip would ruin the amenities of some wonderful land."

Mr. Bateson owns acreage adjoining the proposed strip.

"You can imagine how property prices are going to be affected in the area. There are people like farmers who will have their livelihoods adversely affected," he said.

Mr. Stogrin said "It's unorgainzed terfitory and until I'm given a legal reason why I can't build I see no reason to hold up my plans."

Pets 'Dumped' on Reserve

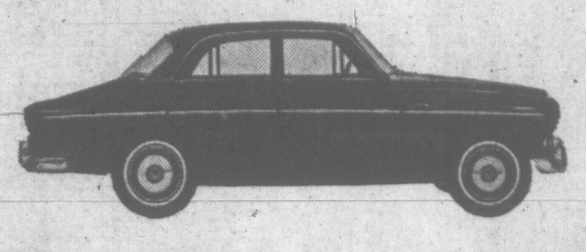

DUNCAN—Miss Louise Underwood, secretary of Cowichan Indian Band, Tuesday accused non-Indians of "dumping" unwanted cats and dogs on the reserve.

"I have seen it happen myself when I lived on the reserve and it gives the Indians a bad name," she said.

Miss Underwood was announcing band council plans to clamp down on the dog nuisance.

She said dog control regulations will be strictly enforced, including collection of licence fees.

IF YOU HAD A CAR THAT DIDN'T BREAK SO OFTEN,
YOU WOULDN'T BE BROKE SO OFTEN.

Volvos are built so strong they're driven an average of eleven years in Sweden . . . where there are no speed limits on the highways, where there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads, where driving is virtually a national pastime.

Drive a Volvo Canadian at David Motors.

If you're not especially excited about the way Volvos hold up, you may get excited about the way Volvos perform; Volvos run away from every other compact in their class, yet get over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

SCHOOL RATE INCREASES

Nanaimo Holds General Tax Rate

NANAIMO—The city-s general-purpose tax rate will not increase this year despite a record $4,417,628 budget.

However, school taxes are expected to be 27 mills, an increase of two mills over last year.

The new budget was adopted at council meeting Tuesday.

The ambulance subsidy received a hike to $300 from $125 in the estimates and council also approved a $2,500 grant towards the purchase of a new ambulance, but the grant will only be made if an ambulance society is formed.

A fund drive is now under way to buy an ambulance which will be eventually turned over to Island Ambulance Services, a privately-owned company.

In other business Ald. Peter McLoughlin urged residents to lodge complaints at city hall if they are bothered by door-to-door magazine salesman.

If enough complaints are received, he said, council could rescind the company's selling licence.

"A business licence is not an invitation to larceny or to make a killing," he said.

Teachers Trying For Rugby Team

DUNCAN — Four Cowichan rugby players have been chosen to play a trial match for B.C. in Vancouver Saturday.

The trial is for the purpose of selecting a team to play Alberta, eastern Canada, and the British Lions who will tour Canada later this year.

The Cowichan Players are Ivor Ford, Alan Rees, Tom Browne, and Bill Ross, all teachers at Brentwood College, Mill Bay.

14 ANNOUNCEMENTS

Opening for the Season
THURSDAY, MAY 19
SHAWNIGAN BEACH HOTEL
SHAWNIGAN LAKE

Make plans to get away from sea level for a while.

Come up to the well-known change of air at Shawnigan — warmer — softer.

Good, too, for tensions — good for nerves — or just if you are a bit run down.

Try a day or two, or stay longer. You will notice the difference and feel great.

A very comfortable family hotel with a beautiful setting in 30 acres of grounds. Owned and operated for many years by the Hurleys.

Peaceful surroundings. Plenty to do if you want to, or just sit.

Home of "The Fire That is Never Out." Two large lounges, coffee room, fine library, bridge, "socializing" pitch and putt golf, tennis, boats, fishing, woodland walks and many other things.

Just pick up the phone and call Denis Mason Hurley collect 743-2312 or 743-9303, or drop a line to P.O. Box 9, Shawnigan Lake.

100 CARS FOR SALE

Morrison's Theme for April And Every Month!
USED CARS FOR SALE— CHEAP!

What does it take to make a GOOD DEAL for YOU? Hoopla? Claims and counter claims? Singers, Actors and the like? WE THINK NOT! What makes a deal GOOD for you is the condition of the car you buy . . . the size of the price you pay . . . the kind of trade-in allowance you get. This is why we don't cloud the issue with a lot of themes, smoke signals and clever thoughts . . . but instead use the simple (and most honest) Advertising Appeal of all . . . "USED CARS FOR SALE . . . CHEAP! After all, isn't that what you're interested in?

FOR EXAMPLE:

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

A five-month "Centennial Search for Canadian Talent has been launched by the Canadian Centennial Committee of B.C. in co-operation with the B.C. Association of Broadcasters.

Stephen

Endorsed at this year's annual meeting of the BCAB as that organization's main Centennial Year project, the talent search is being conducted by radio and TV stations throughout the province.

The search will run from mid-April to mid-September this year. Local competitions will be conducted by participating stations during May and June, with regional contests following in July and August. The local contests will be broadcast, and the regional finals will be radio-TV simulcasts.

In September, twelve provincial semi-finalists will appear on two programs originating in Vancouver. The six finalists selected as a result will then perform on the grand final program, telecast from the stage of the Queen Elizabeth Playhouse, and will compete for $1,000 first prize, $500 second prize and $150 third prize.

The search for talent is open to any person from 10 to 25 years, who has been a resident of B.C. for a minimum of six months. Entries are restricted only in that no marching or school bands will be eligible. Application forms will be available at any radio or TV station in the province.

Rai Purdy, radio-TV producer, is the executive producer of the talent hunt.

"It's purpose is to find the highest-calibre young performers to be found in the province," he points out, "and to provide them with not only the opportunity to broaden their experience by learning broadcast techniques, but also to win recognition on radio and television."

TIDBITS: Mike Nichols, the comedian who became a successful Broadway direcior, has signed a long-term contract with CBS. The network plans to use Nichols' talents as performer, director and producer in network television . . . Juliette moves from her weekly half-hour Saturday night show on CBC-TV this fall into the field of one-hour specials on Show of the Week.

ABC-TV's Combat series, about U.S. troops in Europe in World War II, returns for its fifth season in the fall, switching to color . . . The program is preempted April 19 for a show called "Assault," about a squad of Marines in the South Pacific, also in World War II. This is a debut since the program could fill a permanent spot in the fall.

VOTING CARDS

Plenty for All Says Registrar

Ample vote registration cards to go around B.C. are available now in the event of a provincial election this year, registrar Fred Hurley said today.

Replying to criticism that a new form of registration adopted by order-in-council this week would eliminate "home-made" cards, Mr. Hurley pointed out that existing forms have a 30-day life.

And anyone—organization, group or individual — may request quantities of the new form from the registrar of voters or any government agent, he said.

About 1,000,000 of the new cards are being printed and circulated to government offices throughout the province.

In 1963, after complaints of too few voter registration cards, B.C. Federation of Labor had 200,000 cards printed for nearly $5,000, mounted a registration campaign and circulated about 160,000 forms.

Secretary-treasurer E. P. O'Neal said there are some 40,000 cards left in storage.

Labor and New Democratic Party people have expressed concern that the government may have had a political motive in producing the new card.

Mr. O'Neal said the federation would do everything it could to avert a registration "crisis" as occurred in 1963, when an election was called suddenly.

It would recommend that affiliated unions get a registration campaign under way immediately to take advantage of the 30-day life of old cards.

"If there are adequate cards, we certainly have no objection because if the government goes ahead and does the job we won't have to do it," Mr. O'Neal said.

PROVINCE-WIDE

NDP Leader Robert Strachan said a province-wide enumeration should take place in view of redistribution and the possibility of an election this year. The government should at least see that enough registration forms are available, he said.

Mr. Hurley said "anyone who wants them can have them."

He pointed out MLAs have a number of the existing cards for distribution in their ridings.

873,140 ON LIST

There are 873,140 names on the existing voters' list. With a million new cards for registration there should be ample coverage of any potential new voters, he felt.

Forms will be available wherever there is a government agent or his deputy.

The new card is designed largely to prevent duplication of registration, one reason why it states at the bottom "printed and issued under the authority of the chief electoral officer for British Columbia" and bears the provincial crest at the top.

Underworld Taking Over Sale of LSD?

NEW YORK (AP) — How widespread is the illicit sale of the hallucinatory drug LSD in the underworld?

Federal and New York City officials meet here Friday to explore the subject with members of the police department to seek ways of curbing abuse of the drug.

The meeting, touched off by a slaying in which the alleged assailant was reported under the influence of LSD, was scheduled by District Attorney Aaron Koota of Brooklyn.

LSD is short for D-lysergic acid diethylamid.

Wdile LSD may be helpful in psychiatric treatment, its sale and use are prohibited by state and federal law except in authorized cases. It can produce reactions ranging from pleasurable sensations to terror.

A federal official has estimated that there may be between 1,000 and 10,000 illicit users of LSD in New York City.

"We are worried about the fact that there may be such a large margin of profit in its illegal sale that it may have been taken over by gangsters," an aide to Koota explained.

KILLED MOTHER

In the most dramatic case involving use of the drug, Stephen Kessler, 30, a dropout from medical school, is accused of slaying his mother - in - law while under the influence of LSD.

Kessler, whom police said stabbed Mrs. Florence Cooper, 57, to death Monday because her daughter had left him, was committed to a hospital Tuesday for psychiatric examination. He had previously been committed to Bellevue after using LSD.

"Will you please put me back in Bellevue? Please. I don't know what happened," he said in Brooklyn criminal court.

Kessler insisted to police that he was not aware he had committed any crime.

Another case involving LSD occurred last week when a five-year-old girl underwent convulsions after she accidentally swallowed a sugar cube coated with LSD. The girl, Donna Widenroth, was released from hospital Tuesday. Doctors said she had recovered.

FISH POPS FROM BOWL INTO BABY'S THROAT

BOMBAY, India (UPI)—Five-month-old Francis Joseph died when a pet fish jumped from a bowl into his throat while he was lying on the floor and choked him as his mother struggled vainly to remove it.

Doctors said the child's death Tuesday was due to "suffocation caused by a fish getting stuck in the child's throat."

'PRINTS, MUG SHOTS

Wirephoto Network Will Combat Crime

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP Tuesday demonstrated the first units of Wirephoto equipment for a network it hopes eventually to extend to every major police office in Canada.

Receivers on the system will be able to copy mug shots, bad cheques, documents, and even fingerprints in faithful detail.

The network arises from January's federal-provincial conference on organized crime, which promised a $15,000,000 expansion of RCMP criminal intelligence facilities.

FOUR CENTRES

The network will take in only RCMP headquarters in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver this year. Another dozen or so divisional RCMP headquarters will be added within five years. This will encompass every provincial capital and such cities as Calgary, Saskatoon.

RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan said during a demonstration of the equipment that he expects provincial and municipal police forces to join the network, "especially in areas of organized crime."

In Tuesday's demonstration, a set of fingerprints was transmitted from a room at RCMP headquarters through a telecommunications loop extending 3,000 miles to Winnipeg and back, simulating the distance to Vancouver. The transmission was copied by a receiver in the same room.

The untrained eye could spot no appreciable difference between the original and the copy.

BRITISH - MADE

The British-made components will be leased to the RCMP by Canadian National - Canadian Pacific telecommunications at a cost of $500 to $600 a month per set. This would put lease costs at about $100,000 for 16 RCMP stations when the network is in full swing.

CN-CP officials said full use of their broad-band exchange service would allow such innovations as instant voice conferences between the commissioner in Ottawa and key divisional chiefs across Canada.

FROM SCOTLAND YARD

Commissioner McClelland said the set at headquarters here was first used Jan 22 for a transmission from Scotland Yard which sought positive identification of a Canadian-born drug addict charged with wilful damage.

"We sent them his name and criminal record within two hours," said the commissioner.

Britain employs such a network but the United States has none at present. The RCMP hopes for an eventual link with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington.

The commissioner said CMP headquarters was able to identify 64 per cent of the fraudulent cheques flown here last year by other headquarters within the force.

SPEEDED

He hoped this would be improved and speeded up with the network.

Wirephoto networks have existed in Canada for several years. Transmitters operated by the department of transport for weather maps and by The Canadian Press to 61 newspapers and television stations scan by photoelectric cells across a revolving map or picture at 100 or 135 lines per inch.

IN 22 SECONDS

The RCMP equipment will scan at 200 lines per inch, with a comparable improvement in quality. The receiver employs photographic paper which is developed within the unit in 22 seconds following the nine-minute transmission.

The optical unit is manufactured by Muirhead Instruments Ltd. of London, England. A Canadian branch of the company at Stratford, Ont., makes the power-supply unit for the receiver.

Mountainsides Toppled By Massive B-52 Raid

MARRIAGE of Maria Cooper, daughter of the late actor Gary Cooper, to concert pianist Byron Janis, took place Monday at Woodbridge, Conn. Only a few close friends attended. It was the second marriage for Janis, 38, and the first for Miss Cooper, 28.

SAIGON (UPI) — America's first B-52 raid against Communist North Viet Nam delivered a bomb load between 1.2 and 1.8 million pounds which sent whole mountainsides crashing down onto the approaches to the Ho Chi Minh trail, it was disclosed today.

Air force officials called it the greatest single bombing raid since the Second World War, far surpassing any raids of the war in Korea and probably the most destructive since the atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki in August, 1945.

The full scope of the raid became known as the U.S. once more tightened its defence at the Tan Son Nhut airport outside Saigon where a sneak Viet Cong mortar attack early today killed seven Americans and one Vietnamese and wounded 109 Americans and 19 Vietnamese.

The B-52 raid against the north was followed up by more air force and navy fighter-bomber attacks today and U.S. officials disclosed a Russian-made surface-to-air (SAM) missile had shot down a U.S. navy Skyraider near Vinh — the farthest south any of the anti-aircraft missiles have been spotted.

'DANGEROUS STEP'

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union today assailed the U.S. B-52 raid on North Viet Nam as a "steep and dangerous" step.

A Moscow commentator for Tass news agency said the attack on the Mu Gia Pass by Guam-based B-52s was "a new grave act of aggression." He noted that some reports had called it the most powerful air strike since the atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki 21 years ago, and asked:

"What are you proud of, messurs. Bandits? One has to lose one's human outlook to brag about such acts of barbarity—!

"The leader of the escalation of war in Viet Nam, which is climbed by the American interventionists, is too steep and dangerous. Going up this ladder the aggressors will encounter growing support to Viet Nam by the Soviet Union and other socialist friends and brothers of the Vietnamese people."

Object Retracted Its Fins

LONDON (Reuters) — A British housewife is reported to have filmed a mysterious object that appeared to be a spaceship able to turn itself into a flying saucer.

The mass-circulation Sunday newspaper, News of the World, says the movie pictures were taken two weeks ago by Joan Oldfield, 36, from an airliner flying 9,000 feet over the English midlands. It says the film will be examined by experts from Britain's air ministry.

Mrs. Oldfield, the newspaper says, went into action with a movie camera when she spotted what she thought was a jet plane following the air liner in which she was a passenger.

Stills printed in the newspaper show an oblong-shaped craft, apparently travelling at tremendous speed, retracting its fins and assuming a saucer shape.

Mrs. Oldfield's husband Tom told a reporter that the object seemed to hover for about three seconds.

"Then it pulled in two fins at the top and two at the bottom to go into a flying saucer type of shape. Then it banked away and disappeared completely."

Cushing Won't Oppose Law Change

BOSTON (AP)—Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston, offered no formal opposition Tuesday to an amendment to the Massachusetts birth control law which would permit doctors to prescribe contraceptive devices and drugs.

The prelate, spiritual leader of 1,800,000 Roman Catholics, told a legislative committee "Catholics do not need the support of civil law to be faithful to their own religious convictions . . ."

"Let me make it perfectly clear at the beginning," Cardinal Cushing said in a statement read for him at a hearing, "that there is no change, present or contemplated, in the traditional Catholic teaching concerning the immoral character of artificial contraception."

The committee was considering an amendmen to the state law which would permit physicians to perscribe or administer drugs or devices to prevent pregnancy. .

KIDNAP BID CHARGED

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union has accused American intelligence services of trying to kidnap Georgi Pokrovsky, a first secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Tokyo, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

The agency said a protest was delivered to the U.S. embassy here Tuesday.

There was no comment from the American embassy.

Miniature Plates Ready For Mailing

About 93,000 car owners in Greater Victoria will receive their 1966 miniature licence plates soon from the TB And Chest Disabled Veterans' Association.

More than 610,000 key tags are being sent to B.C. motorists this year. Ten million tags have been distributed in the past 20 years.

A lost key tag will be returned to its owner by the TB Vets car licence registration service. Finder only has to drop the keys with the tag in a mailbox.

Only one third of car owners who receive the tags send a contribution for the service. In 1965, B.C. motorists contributed $117,000.

Besides providing employment for chest disabled vets the association assists them with family maintenance, education, outside rehibilitation, medical housing.

Irish Comedy Opens Tonight At St. Matthias

St. Matthias Little Theatre's final production of the season opens tonight when Playboy of the Western World, J. M. Synge's classic Irish comedy, goes on stage at the church hall.

Dan Christian, seen most recently in One Way Pendulum, the Theatre Guild's festival entry, takes the title role, and Pam O'Neill plays Pegeen Mike.

Ted Gaskell directs the play, his first for a Victoria theatre group.

The play runs until this weekend.

Cabinet Order Returns Sooke To Region Voting

A Provincial order-in-council Tuesday brought Sooke back into the fold of regional district administration.

The west coast community had been inadvertently left out of a list of polling places to be used by residents of the regional district of the capital.

A cabinet order was necessary to re-establish Sooke as part of the voting area, and the letters patent were amended to include Sooke Elementary School as the polling place.

RCMP Bilingual

MONTREAL (CP)—All commissioned officers and about 95 per cent of all other personnel serving with the RCMP in Quebec province now are bilingual, Chief Superintendent Armand Thivierge said Tuesday.

Sharp Criticism Levelled At Postal Operations

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—In a 39-point brief brimming over with criticism of the post office department, the Canadian Union of Postal Workers Tuesday demanded remedies to avoid another crisis in the service.

The 11,000 - member union made its points in a brief to the royal commission headed by Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit of the Quebec Superior Court which is investigating working conditions in the post office department.

The one-man commission, established by the government Sept. 1, 1965, after the two-week postal strike last summer crippled mail delivery in three provinces, has visited some 40 centres across Canada from St. John's, Nfld., to Vancouver.

The commission is investigating grievances by postal workers outlined during the strike. It is expected to report this summer.

'COMPANY UNIONS'

Tuesday's brief took a swipe at just about every area of working conditions in the department and included a jab at certain other civil service staff associations which it termed "company unions."

Heading the union's grievances was the exclusion of its members from the full collective bargaining procedures of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act (which contains strike provisions). On this point it says:

"It is the union's firm conviction that unless acceptable legislation is enacted granting full bargaining rights, then the next crisis in the postal service will again be upon us."

Personnel and equipment policies were termed "archaic, obsolescent practices"; sections of the Post Office Act gave the postmaster general "carte blanche to practice the worst kind of personnel policy imaginable"; and other statutes explained why the department "spawns so many inept and confused supervisors."

The union says "managerial patronage has insinuated itself in place of the merit principle" in promotions and calls for abolition of the present efficiency rating system.

Departmental "spying upon employees" gets a real going over.

SPYING HIT

"Spying devices in post offices must be eliminated. The observation galleries, peepholes, toilet-flush-stop devices and all other degrading gadgets . . . are in daily use . . . spying upon employees using sick and casual sick leave must be discontinued immediately."

(The peep-holes and toilet devices have been used by the department to stop pilfering from the mails—a difficult type of theft to detect and prove. The toilet gadget prevents possible evidence being flushed away.)

The union seeks curtailment of employment of part-time and casual employees; elimination of all-but-necessary weekend work; greater night differential and overtime pay; introduction of a comprehensive training program to replace the "completely inadequate" one; long-evity pay and liberalization of special leaves; and two daily 15-minute coffee breaks.

Past efforts by the union to seek redress of grievances "have been thwarted by the fact that a preponderant number of civil servants are loosely organized into associations which can only be described as 'company unions.'" Affiliates of the 80,000-member civil service federation who were linked to the Canadian Labor Congress were excluded from this criticism.

Man Fears for Job After Hungary Spree

TORONTO (CP) — Tibor Torma, who spent five months in a Hungarian jail for "inciting against the regime," said Sunday his greatest concern is the effect of the alleged incident on his livelihood. Mr. Torma, 28, a Canadian citizen, was arrested last November on a trip to his native Hungary to see his family.

He was sentenced to 18 months on a charge of impaired driving and "inciting against the regime by making fascist and anti-Semitic statements" in a Budapest coffee house. He was released after serving five months of the sentence. He flew back to Toronto Thursday.

H said in an interview he feared news reports from Hungary that he had been jailed for making anti-Semitic statements and yelling "heil Hitler," would affect his work as a gardener.

He had been drinking before the incident, he said.

"I was so high . . . I hope I didn't say that," he said of the heil Hitler charge. He denied the charge of anti-Semitism.

BEEFSTEAK ON WAY OUT; CHEMISTS DO IT BETTER?

HAMILTON (CP)—A panel of scientists agreed Monday that almost all food of the future will be synthetic.

The panel told the seventh annual conference of the Ontario Institute of Professional Agrologists that the laying hen, the milch cow and the laboratory are the only agents efficient enough to survive in the highly competitive world of food production.

"Chemists will make it food and they will make it better and cheaper," Dr. Gordon Euller, associate professor of food products at the University of Guelph, said.

"It will be cheaper to make foods synthetically than to abstract them from their natural sources."

Dr. Frank Whitting of the Canadian department of agriculture said livestock production is such an inefficient way of changing plant protein that it will not be able to compete with synthetic methods much longer.

"Sheep are already disappearing and as time goes on you will find the beef animal too inefficient to survive in a world where food is scarce. The pig and broiler chicken are next because they will be competing for food products which we ouselves will need.

"Only the milch cow and the laying hen are sufficiently efficient to stay around," he said, adding that between 25 and 30 per cent of the food they eat is transformed into edible foodstuffs.

Mannering Scores Once Again In Fresh Showing of Old Tale

By AUDREY JOHNSON

How is it that we never grow too old to be charmed by a fresh presentation of an old favorite fairy tale?

There is no doubt the grown-ups in the audience were just as enchanted as the bug-eyed youngsters when Bastion Theatre opened its Easter week run of Hansel and Gretel at McPherson Playhouse on Tuesday.

It is a colorful, lively variation on the Grimm Brothers' original.

It has a perkily tuneful musical setting by Vancouver's Marge Adelberg who is also the adapter and lyricist, and attractive setting and costumes by Art Penson.

Lawrence Eastick, Jennifer Chaster and Bill Hosie play several roles but are especially effective as the Rooster, the Duck and the Cat.

Barbara Dunn, one of Bastion's most pleasing young actresses (why don't we see her more often?) is an ideal Gretel. She moves and dances well and is blessedly audible without straining. She also has that "top o' the morning" charm which is altogether rare.

If one was going to be hypercritical about such an appealing show it would be to say that Art Penson, despite his clear talent, is not entirely right as Hansel and that Margaret Martin as the Witch, despite her many attributes, is not convincing.

We were seeing Karen's (The Red Shoes) grandmother in reprint. Maybe the author is at fault for making her too much the bumbling — and therefore, lovable — old lady.

USUAL FLARE

Peter Mannering has directed this show with his accustomed flare for the world of childhood fantasy. Musical direction and piano accompaniment is by Merlisse Hill.

Hansel and Gretel will play two shows a day at McPherson Playhouse starting at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

MONEY WENT INTO THE BANK

She's Not a Museum Piece!

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lillian Gish neither looks nor acts like a museum piece.

Her history would indicate that she should be put on display at some repository of movie history. After all, she appeared in her first film in 1912 and starred in such D. W. Griffith classics as Birth of a Nation, Intolerance, Broken Blossoms.

Yet the soulful Gish eyes remain as alert as a teen-ager's, and she has an outlook to match.

"I don't believe I had more than two weeks off in the last year," she remarked. "I did a season of Shakespeare up in Stratford, Conn. Then I came right out here for Follow Me, Boys at the Disney studios.

"After that, I went back to New York to begin rehearsals for Anya, which George Abbott directed. It was a beautiful play which lasted only a month in New York because of three bad reviews."

Miss Gish flew here from an Italian vacation to appear in The Warning Shot with David Janssen. If there is any time left, she may do some more on the memoir she is writing about her great mentor, Griffith.

"But that is terribly hard work for me," she admitted, "and I usually have to hole up in a room in Switzerland to get anything written."

Her schedule may seem remarkable for a 69-year-old, but it doesn't seem so to Miss Gish. She asked about a star who had been a contemporary of hers and has recently been ailing.

"That is too bad, but then, it has been years since she has worked," observed Miss Gish. "It's a mistake, I think. When you have been working since the age of five, as I have, it is wrong to quit. You remain more attuned to life when you work."

Fortunately for her, she is not required to maintain an income. During her heyday on the screen, from age 12 to 70, she managed herself well. She never succumbed to the grand living that consumed the assets of many stars.

"I never even bought a home in California," she explained. "New York was always my home and still is. The money I made went into the bank, not into acquisitions."

And it was big money. She pooh-poohed the suggestion that huge salaries for stars are a recent development.

"Does anyone get 15 per cent of the gross nowadays?" she asked. The answer is no, although Elizabeth Taylor, Marlon Brando and a few others have been able to draw 10 per cent of the gross—meaning 10 cents for every dollar accruing to the distributor.

"I received 15 per cent of the gross of The White Sister," said Miss Gish, recalling it fondly. "And the picture (co-starring Ronald Colman) made many millions of dollars."

SOLUTION FRIDAY

WHY DID the duck cross the street? Your guess is as good as mine. But this little waddler has the right-of-way because the law is on his side. Const. Mike Belbas of Port Arthur holds up traffic. (CP Wirephoto.)

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Mari Carter, age 14, of Omaha, Neb., for her question:

What kind of bird is the water ouzel?

We expect fishes to swim and birds to fly. Penguins and many diving birds are expert fishermen—but a diving bird who swims and even dines under water is surprising. Such a fellow is the water ouzel, and he has still more surprising qualities. He is not related to the diving birds, most of whom have webbed feet. He is a relative of the robin, and he has unwebbed robin-type feet meant for walking and perching.

His underwater antics are performed with eyes wide-open. This trick is not too difficult because his eyes are covered with windows of glassy skin. He has an extra pair of eyelids, covered with feathers, for normal blinking. His dark feathers are thick and oily to repel the water and he has an undercoat of down to keep him warm. The water ouzel needs warmth for he remains busy even when the temperature drops to 50 below zero.

Rough weather and rough water seem to delight him. He likes to live by a high mountain stream foamy with white rapids, and he dives and swims even when the chilly water is choked with chunks of ice. Sometimes he plunges into the billows from a slippery rock in mid-stream and you would think he is bent on suicide. Sometimes he strides from the shore into the water and continues until he disappears.

Enjoys High Altitudes

Experts once thought that the water ouzel walked along underwater on the stream bed. More careful observations showed that he swam underwater with fast beats of his stubby wings, searching for water beetles and their eggs. His diet of eggs and larvae of the dragonfly and caddis fly, plus a few snails, is found and usually eaten underwater.

The water ouzel lives in British Columbia and by the high, chilly streams of the Rockies and the Andes. He looks like a slate-colored robin with a head and neck of charcoal-brown. He has cousins in the high mountains of Europe and Asia. One enjoys life 16,000 feet up the Himalayas, and a small red-breasted water ouzel lives right at the edge of the northern glaciers.

Water ouzels are splendid parents. Their nest is a globe of tender mosses lined with soft leaves and shoots. It is built on a rocky ledge, often right under a plunging cataract. There are three to seven glossy-white eggs and there may be three broods a year. The shaggy chicks are speckled and both parents devote all their time to feeding and training them for life in and out of a rough and chilly mountain stream.

YOUR HEALTH

Cataract Removal Simple Operation

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Thousands of people are frightened and worried when an ophthalmologist looks into their eyes and reports having seen signs of beginning cataracts. Unfortunately, the doctor does not always get across to the patient the idea that all he saw were a few little white specks on the back of the lens. These may not grow and they may not, for years, produce a cataract, they may never produce a cataract. Finally, if they should produce a cataract, it can be removed in five minutes by a good ophthalmologist.

Alvarez

Incidentally, many times a year I come to the rescue of some sweet old grandmother (or grandfather) who is so bored, because with cataracts she cannot read. She wants to have the cataracts removed, but the grown children say, "Absolutely not; you are too old, and the operation might kill you." Actually, I have seen any number of people in their 80s go easily through such a slight operation without any shock or difficulty. If I were 90, strong, mentally well, and had cataracts, I would have them operated on.

I read that in the Davis Division of the University of Californis, a huge colony of monkeys, some 25,000 of them, is being built up. These monkeys have first to be trained so that they can be taken good care of, well fed, and accustomed to being handled by the friendly attendants.

One of the first things that has to be done, with the help of these monkeys, is to find a new and better treatment for the severe type of malaria that is now afflicting U.S. soldiers in Viet Nam. Following that, studies will be made to throw light on why some fetuses are malformed in the womb, or perhaps born so prematurely that they cannot live or develop well. Many new drugs will be tested for their good effects; for their safety, and for possible dangerous effects.

Studies will be made to throw more light on how the brain works, and how tranquilizers and other new drugs work. Studies are planned also for the development of new and better vaccines against some of the dangerous diseases such as soldiers face in the Orient.

Iraq Mobilizes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The Iraqi army is mobilizing for an all-out attack to end the four-year-old fight for self-rule by Kurdish tribesmen in the mountains of northern Iraq, reports reaching here said Monday.

QUEBEC MOVED FIRST

The first practical use of electricity in Canada was in 1882, when Quebec textile mills started their own power plants.

STRIKE PREPARATIONS BY CIVIC WORKERS

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Civic Outside Workers' Union, representing 1,500 Vancouver workers, were to serve strike notice today on city council.

Union president Jack Phillips said Tuesday night that the executive is setting up strike headquarters to register workers for strike duty.

The action means the union could call a strike at any time within the next three months. Authority to call a strike was given in a membership vote last week.

The union, which is seeking a 40-cent-an-hour increase over two years on the present base rate of $2.28 an hour, earlier rejected a conciliation board award of 25 cents over two years.

A strike by the outside workers would affect such things as garbage collection, road and sewer work and other city services. Such a strike about two years ago saw garbage piling up in lanes for weeks.

HOME GARDEN

Fragrance and Color Available in Annuals

By HILDA BEASTALL

Planning the spots of summer color to be added to an established garden can be fun when so many lovely annuals are available.

There are gardeners who use nothing but fragrant annuals for this purpose, and indeed such a garden is a delight to all.

Hilda

For quick color on trellises, nothing is more suitable than sweet peas. Put up the wire or strings first—if you plant the sweet peas already started in peat pots, you'll be surprised how quickly they begin to climb.

The summer flowering stocks known as 10-week stock (there are more modern ones known as seven-week stocks) are the most spicily scented and colorful annuals obtainable.

They grow to a height of about 15 inches, and so will fit into many spots in the garden where both fragrance and color are wanted.

It is not generally known that once the central spike of flowers is picked or cut off, the laterals will develop, extending the season of bloom well into September.

Nicotines in various shades of red, mauve as well as white are lovely near a sitting-out place. This year there is a new one called Lime Green. If well scented, it should have a use in a bed of mignonette.

White alyssum defines edges of flower borders even at night, and has a country smell of new mown hay.

Perhaps the most fragrant of all summer flowers is one of the dianthuses, or pinks, known as Loveliness. Occasionally a plant or two will survive the winter, but even as an annual the spicily scented, feathery blooms on 15-inch stems is almost sure to satisfy every gardener's craving for perfume.

Started from seed sown indoors in February, the plants are in bloom before the end of May, and if the old stems are cut down to their base promptly as the flowers fade, a continuity of bloom will be maintained right through summer into October.

CIVIC OFFICIALS tested the McPherson Restaurant Tuesday and gave top marks for food, decor and service. The controversial restaurant opened its doors to the public at 11 a.m. today and will keep them open until midnight. Tuesday's pre-opening guests came mostly from the ranks of civic officials.

THEATRE RESTAURANT

They Came, They Saw, They Ate, They Liked

All the omens were good when the McPherson Restaurant opened its doors Tuesday noon for "invitation only" guests to preview the end result of months of controversy.

The restaurant, decorated theatre-style, officially opened its doors to the public this morning. It will be open 'till midnight from Monday through Saturday remaining closed on Sunday.

Tuesday's guests dined off a variety of dishes ranging from curried shrimp to roast beef cooked and served by head chef Irmano Diecosta while pianist Bruce Dutton played light airs in the background.

Attending the preview luncheon were many of the men and women who had worried long hours over the decision to build a restaurant in the first place and then worried more over the question as to whom to permit to run the operation.

Aldermen, planners, engineers and other city officials appeared to like that they saw (and ate) as they contemplated the fountains and gardens of Centennial Square.

On hand to welcome guests was Clifford Clarke, lone bidder for the restaurant concession, who got the nod from city council only after prolonged negotiations.

Starting today the atmosphere will be a little less formal than Tuesday's opening when Ald. Robert Baird extended greetings and congratulations on behalf of the city.

But Mr. Clarke promises the quality of the food will be just as good.

"Our prices will be reasonable at all times," Mr. Clarke said. "But the quality will always be of the highest."

Man Fined $50 For Causing Disturbance

A man involved in a beer parlor fight Monday was fined $50 in central court for causing a disturbance.

William A. Lindsay, 24 of Waas Lake, B.C., pleaded guilty.

Court was told the fight occurred at 11:20 p.m. in the Halfway House.

When police arrived, Lindsay went over to the bar and pounded it with his fist while shouting and screaming.

Most cars are built to be traded.
This one is built to be kept.

It's easy to tell which kind of car you now own.

If it's two years old and looks four years old because the new models have come out . . . if it has 30,000 miles on it and you're planning to get rid of it to save repair bills . . . you have a car that's built to be traded. You also have yourself on a treadmill. One new car after another after another after another.

That's what we mean about Volvo being a car that's built to be kept. A Volvo won't wear out just as your payment book runs out.

Volvos are built so strong they're driven an average of eleven years in Sweden where there are no speed limits on the highways, where there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

Here in North America Volvos are gaining a reputation that is best summed up by what Car & Driver magazine recently wrote, "Volvo is not the prettiest car known to man, nor is it the fastest. But it may be the strongest . . . possibly the toughest vehicle anywhere this side of the Aberdeen Proving Grounds (that's where the U.S. Government tests tanks) and there is a growing legion of happy owners who will be glad to verify the point."

Volvo Canadian owners will be glad to verify something else: Volvo out-accelerates every other compact in its class, delivers over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

One more thing your Volvo Canadian will do. It will age gracefully.

We don't change its looks every year to remind your neighbors that you haven't bought a new car recently.

Of course, they'll probably catch on anyhow. After all, you've got to do something with all the money that used to go for car payments.

And how are you going to hide a trip to Europe, or a cottage at the lake, or a new addition on the house?

TODAY'S TREND

Dream World Retreat

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

The body of a baby was found recently on a Victoria boulevard. The infant was born some where only a few hours before.

A story comes from the British Isles that authorities there are advocating sex education from the age of eight and the proper use of contraceptives when boys and girls enter their teens.

In a fair-sized city in the United States a spring festival that had become a tradition was cancelled this year because teen-agers, influenced by drink and dope, made a shambles of the ceremony on two former occasions.

These are not isolated occurrences. You'll find similar stories in newspapers any day of the week.

★ ★ ★

We read. We gasp and we shudder. Then we move hurriedly to the pages that tell of research in outer space and we smother our misgivings with thoughts of the moon and the stars.

In other words we close our minds to the crying needs of the present and we leave the cure to a relatively few overburdened, dedicated social workers.

We do this because we would rather retreat into a dream world than acknowledge that in an affluent society we have failed dismally in maintaining the one firm bulwark against youth's undisciplined behaviour. That is the family unit.

In making this statement I'm not trying to be presumptuous. Rather, I'm hoping to open your eyes to the intemperance and immorality that exists in this day of easy living and that is increasing with every round of the clock.

Statistics available in the office of the British Columbia superintendent of child welfare show that in our own province from 1961 to 1965 inclusive there was the highest ever rate of divorce, desertion, separation, addiction, crime, delinquency and so on.

In the same number of years our under-15 child population rose by eight per cent. Yet the number of children cared for by welfare programs grew by 38 per cent to 7,257. The number of out-of-wedlock births increased by 37 per cent.

This definitely points to a contradiction in our present-day society. On the one hand we have relative material affluence. On the other an increase in serious social ills.

★ ★ ★

We never had so much knowledge in the social sciences nor so many avenues open to us in the fields of health, education, social services and culture. Yet never before have we felt so anxious, so insecure and so frustrated.

It's no use squirming and flinging accusations at school systems, social service programs, the churches or the inability of trained workers to cope with the problems.

Rather the pointing finger should be turned directly to the men and women most responsible—the parents who have failed in these days of easy living to keep alive the family image.

★ ★ ★

Going back to statistics we discover that broken homes figure heavily in all researchers' findings. Also that many of these broken homes and much of today's anti-social behaviour is linked to the comfortably off.

This suggest not only that no amount of affluence can produce a responsible society but also that there is an immediate necessity to create sound homes rather than beating the drums for The Pill and the new morality.

What is really needed is a great soul searching on the part of so-called responsible men and women who have taken on—or who plan to take on—the duties of making homes and bearing children.

Today we feed sex and riotous conduct to our youth from our newsstands, on radio and television and in our movies.

To counteract this we need parents with a purpose, parents whose big deal goes beyond the next party, the next car, the next pay raise.

Parents unselfish enough to make home living and the molding of children's lives in the proper outlines a career and not a passing whim.

Parents who will face the facts of immorality and licence amongst their young with wide open eyes and who will dedicate themselves with honesty and courage to fighting these facts now through revived and revitalized family living.

3 KILLED, 10 INJURED

Liner Smashed By Giant Wave

Force Twists Steel Decking

NEW YORK (UPI)—A giant wave that crashed across the bow of the Italian luxury liner Michelangelo with such force it twisted the steel superstructure claimed its third life today.

Disiderio Ferrari, a crew member from Genoa, died of injuries as the New York-bound liner steered out of a violent North Atlantic storm which also injured 10 persons.

Capt. Guiseppi Soletti, contacted aboard the Michelangelo today via radiotelephone, said there was no panic when the wave struck.

"There was no panic and the ship was never in danger," he said. "We pitched somewhat but not a great deal."

"But it was one of the worst storms I have ever been in," said Soletti, a veteran of more than 40 years at sea.

He confirmed that there had been some damage to the upper superstructure of the liner but added the vessel was experiencing no difficulty today.

"Everything aboard is secure," he said.

30 Feet High, 100 Yards Wide

An Italian lines director in Genoa said the giant mass of water, 30 feet high and 100 yards wide, caught the Michelangelo Tuesday in the first-class upper deck cabins as it swept across the bow, smashing windows and twisting the superstructure.

The force of the huge wave knocked many of the 775 passengers off their feet. Two of them suffered fatal skull fractures: John J. Steinbach, 58, a Chicago insurance executive, and Dr. Werner Berndt, 56, of Hamburg, Germany, both first class passengers.

Umberto Nordio, co-director general of Italian Lines, said even with advance warning the Michelangelo could not have gotten out of the way of the vicious storm. He said such storms move so fast that even turning around couldn't have prevented heavy damage.

"If man had invented a system to dodge misfortune," Nordio said in Genoa, "we would not have so many ships with smashed prows every year."

The wave struck at 8:20 a.m. EST about 400 miles west of the Azores, when the 43,000-ton liner was two days out of New York on a run from Naples and Genoa.

Freighters Plowing Out of Area

Two merchant ships also were plowing out of the area after being battered by the storm. One reported five crewmen had been washed overboard.

The 411-foot British refrigerator ship Chuseal reported five crewmen had been washed overboard in mountainous seas 400 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

The Coast Guard cutter Barataria and 15 merchant ships in the area were scouring the area, hoping the men might have been able to cling to debris in the 57-degree seas which were running 30 to 45 feet. Coast Guard planes also circled the area.

Buddhists Call Off Boycott

SAIGON (UPI) — The Saigon government radio announced tonight that Buddhist leaders would end their two-day boycott and take seats Thursday at the national political congress which is trying to devise a constitution for the country.

Informed sources said the decision by leaders of the main Vien Hoa Dao pagoda does not mean the Buddhists are calling off their anti-government tirades and demonstrations.

The sources said the Buddhist representatives may well be planning to use the congress as a platform for denouncing the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

DENOUNCED CONGRESS

The Buddhists earlier denounced the congress as an effort by the "American CIA" to divert them from their avowed aim of toppling the military junta and forcing immediate election of a civilian government.

Ky's government called the conference to write a new constitution and pick its delegates. The delegates marked time today while a special seven-man delegation visited the Buddhist and Catholic leaders to plead with them to take their seats.

Chief of state Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu said his government was anxious to hand over authority to a civilian government as soon as possible and pleaded with delegates for help in accomplishing this.

But the Buddhists have demanded immediate elections.

AUSTRALIAN external affairs secretary Paul Hasluck wound up three days of security talks in Washington today with a pledge of continued support for U.S. policy in Viet Nam and in the containment of China.

France Scores Russian Link

'Pullout From NATO Will Serve Best Interests Of Alliance'

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle has no intention of switching alliances and linking up with Russia and China in place of the United States, Premier Georges Pompidou said today.

He said France believes its NATO pullout will serve the best interests of the Atlantic Alliance.

Pompidou's statements on NATO and France came in a government statement he read to the National Assembly opening a three-day debate on government foreign and economic policy. The debate may end with a confidence vote demanded by the government.

His speech followed the disclosure de Gaulle had said he would not wait "forever" for the United States to decide when it will pull its troops and bases out of France.

REMAIN LOYAL

Pompidou said France will remain a loyal friend of the United States and is ready to discuss with both Washington and Bonn details of the evacuation of U.S. bases in France and withdrawal of French forces in Germany from NATO command.

The statement was approved by a cabinet meeting this morning presided over by de Gaulle.

In his National Assembly statement, Pompidou said: "By our action we believe we are serving peace and defending the true interests of the alliance just as we served them during the Cuban crisis when we informed the president of the United States that France would be at his side, in a possible conflict, although Cuba was not covered by the North Atlantic Alliance."

Pompidou said France is not returning to "worn-out nationalism" but simply seeks full control over everything that belongs to it.

"Do not let anyone imagine this means a change of camps," he said. "We are hostile to any kind of hegemony. We do not intend to support a Soviet hegemony any more than our position in the Viet Nam war is aimed at favoring a Chinese hegemony in that part of the world.

"There is no change in our feelings towards the American people nor towards the importance of the interests that link us to the United States," Pompidou said.

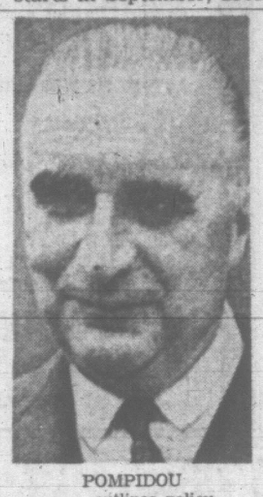

'UNDERSTAND US'

"I am convinced the day will come when America will understand us and will do justice to Gen. de Gaulle as the far-seeing leader of her oldest and most constant ally."

Turning to Germany, Pompidou said France is convinced Germany's present leaders want peace. He said any fears of a revival of German nationalism have been touched off by suggestions that Germany should be given direct or indirect access to nuclear arms—something for which France has no responsibility, he added.

He said the situation of French troops in Germany can and will be solved if the West German government wishes to do so.

Flood Crest Passes Border Town

WINNIPEG (CP)—The flooding Red River crested on schedule in southern Manitoba today and provincial forecasters knocked another foot off their peak prediction for Winnipeg.

Agriculture Minister George Hutton said the Red should reach its high-water mark in Winnipeg Saturday at 26.5 feet above winter average ice level, well within the capacity of the diking system.

The crest passed through the border town of Emerson Tuesday and reached Letellier, about 10 miles north, today at 4.3 feet above bank level.

At Winnipeg the river stood at 25.5 feet, only one foot under the forecast peak, after a rise of eight-tenths of a foot in 24 hours.

Despite the optimistic turn of events, scattered evacuations continued in the southern valley where the Red has spilled over miles of rich farm land and forced more than 4,000 from their homes. Emerson, Morris, St. Jean Baptiste, Rosenort and Dominion City have been cleared of almost all but those needed to man dikes and maintain essential services.

Oil Tanker 'Disowned' By 2 Nations

BEIRA, Mozambique (Reuters)—The tanker Ioanna V, disowned in turn by Greece and Panama, today continued to keep alive the mystery of what it will do with its cargo of oil.

Shipping sources here said Tuesday night the tanker, moored at a quay here while Britain keeps up diplomatic pressure to prevent its 18,000 tons of oil reaching breakaway Rhodesia, would begin discharging half its cargo today.

But there was no immediate sign of the operation starting. Flexible pipe used to link tankers with the Rhodesia pipeline intakes remained piled on the dockside. Armed Portuguese police guarded the oil wharf.

The Ioanna V became a ship without a country Tuesday night when Panama followed Greece in revoking the tanker's registration only a few hours after the ship exchanged the Greek for the Panamanian flag.

The Ioanna docked here Monday after riding at anchor in the harbor for a week. The Greek government cancelled its registration because the tanker came to this Portuguese African port despite international sanctions aimed at keeping Rhodesia from getting oil.

The sanctions were ordered after the white - ruled British colony seized independence Nov. 11.

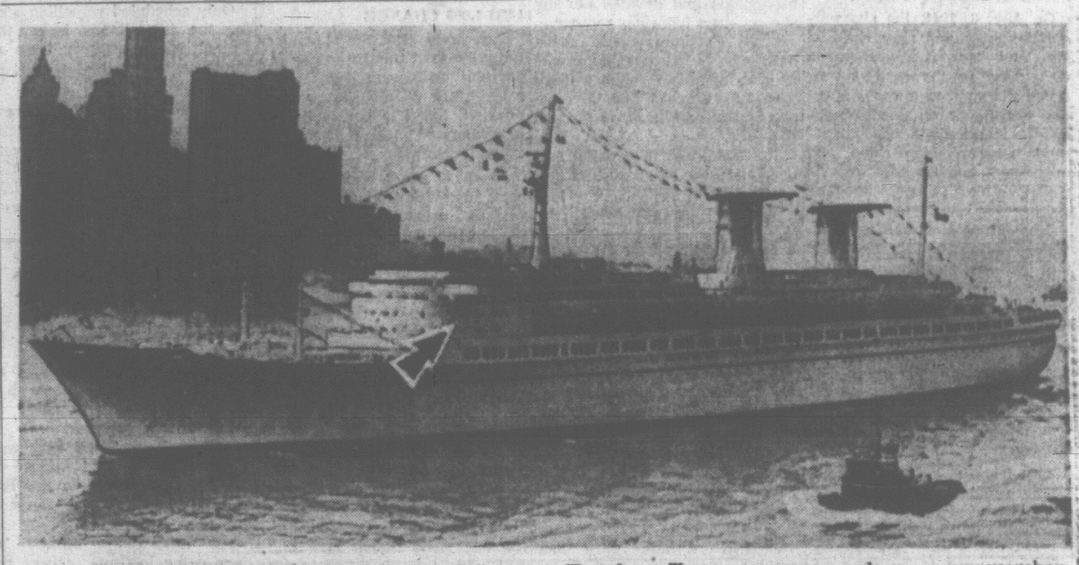

A few hours after the tanker pulled down the Greek colors Tuesday and ran up the flag of Panama, the Panama foreign ministry announced it was revoking the vessel's registration.

PUMP INTO STORAGE

Shipping sources said today the Ioanna intended to pump part of its oil into storage tanks and not directly into the 189-mile pipeline leading from Beira to Rhodesia's Umtali refinery.

In Panama, a foreign ministry spokesman said Panama always will abide by the decisions of the United Nations, which has specifically authorized Britain to bar oil from entering Rhodesia, and that Panama will co-operate in any way possible to ensure that no vessel under the Panamanian flag transports oil to Rhodesia.

The Greek tanker Manuela, carrying 15,000 tons of oil which may also be destined for Rhodesia, arrived at Durban, South Africa, Tuesday after being turned away from Beira by a British navy boarding party.

British Leave Door Open For Further Negotiations

LONDON (AP) Britain today left the door open for negotiations of new military co-operation between France and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In a note delivered in Paris the British, however, rejected President de Gaulle's claim that it would have been impossible for France and the 14 Atlantic allies to modify NATO by agreement.

The British government said it "would have been ready at any time to discuss the form of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

Britain's communication followed a U.S. statement to France Tuesday informing de Gaulle that U.S. tactical nuclear weapons will not be available for French forces in West Germany after these French troops have been withdrawn from NATO command July 1.

The Americans also indicated they are not prepared to accept the timetable laid down by de Gaulle for withdrawal of NATO headquarters from French territory.

BACKS UP U.S.

Implicitly, the British note gave support to the American position. On the subject of the proposed timetable of withdrawal, the British said:

"These proposals affect all parties to the North Atlantic Treaty.

"Her Majesty's government will, therefore, find it necessary to discuss them with their other allies in order to consider the practical implications of these proposals before entering into discussion of them with the French government."

The French had sgugested that April 1, 1967, would be an appropriate date for completing the withdrawal.

On France's suggestion that new arrangements be made for co-operation between French forces and NATO forces, the British said:

"This is also a matter on which Her Majesty's government will first wish to have discussion with their other allies."

MEET FRIDAY

As an initial move U.S., British and West German envoys have arranged a meeting in Bonn Friday to consider the implications of the withdrawal of France's contingents in West Germany from NATO command.

This study is likely to provide the key to further effective military co-operation between the French and the other Atlantic allies.

Britain, the United States and France in 1954 joined with West Germany in signing a convention that changed the status of Allied troops from occupation forces to NATO forces. The convention also cleared the way for German rearmament and for a German military role in NATO. France's withdrawal from the NATO military network has had the efect of undermining the entire legal basis of that convention.

Schools Picketed

MONTREAL (CP) — A strike by 2,000 teachers employed by the Quebec government in 100 technical, trade and normal schools all over the province went into its second day today.

The strike follows an impasse in negotiations with the provincial government over higher pay, the status of the teachers' union and time off for its officers to carry out union business.

Claude Sabourin, president of the teachers' syndicate, said the strike will continue "until the government is more reasonable."

He said picket lines have been established in front of a number of strike-bound schools in Montreal. There were no signs of an early settlement in the dispute.

HALF BILLION IN INDIA

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's population will exceed the half-billion mark by Sept. 1. The last census in 1961 showed India had 439,000,000 then. A projection of those figures released by the registrar-general estimates the population at 495,000,000 April 1 and increasing at a rate of just under 1,000,000 persons a month.

IT COOKS, LOOKS LIKE RICE BUT IT REALLY IS WHEAT!

NEW YORK (AP)—A process which developers say could make wheat palatable to Asia's rice-eating millions — and thus be a partial answer to famine—will be tested in a pilot project beginning this week in Hong Kong.

Wheat kernels are peeled by a lye process that makes them look like rice and cook like rice. The purpose of the project is to see whether Asians decide that it tastes like rice.

One of the biggest roadblocks to easing world famine, experts say, is that some people would rather die than change their eating habits.

Millions of rice-eating people in India's Kerala State live on the verge of starvation rather than eat the wheat flowing into their country. Rioting mobs shouted at police: "Give us rice or shoot us!"

USE WURLD WHEAT

Breaking down "food prejudices" is necessary so that people can be fed the food that is available, says Melvin Myers, director of the material resources program of the Church World Service, sponsors of the pilot project.

To make wheat more acceptable to the rice-eating Keralites, the U.S. department of agriculture has come up with the new process to make a rice-like grain from regular wheat, called "wurld wheat."

The husk is peeled from the kernel by the lye process, leaving a white grain much like rice. It can be produced for about five to six cents a pound, and on an operational basis, one company estimates that it could produce 25 tons an hour.

The process was developed at the Western Regional Research Labratory of the department of agriculture at Albany, Calif. Dr. James Pence, who heads the cereals laboratory, was in New York today to confer with Myers.

"The process also works with rice, producing a higher yield and a grain with more nutritional value," Pence said. "But more wheat is available and it is easier to increase the production of wheat than of rice."

Lawyers to Question Witnesses at Hearing

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Wishart Spence said today that at all future hearings of the Gerda Munsinger inquiry interested persons will be represented by their lawyers who will be allowed to question witnesses.

The Supreme Court of Canada justice said in an interview that he expects to decide in the next few days about further commission hearings.

The commission opened in secret session a week ago and immediately ran into criticism from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and former justice minister Fulton that they were not notified of the hearing nor permitted to have counsel present.

The order-in-council appointing him a one-man commission of inquiry says I may adopt any procedure I deem fit; I have done that and I'm not answerable to the press for it." He said.

Arthur Mayse

We have with us today a private of our hard-used Canadian Army (if Defence Minister Hellyer still permits us to call it that) who will become a civilian in July, and isn't happy at the prospect.

His name is Eric George Grimshaw, his age, 50. The army, first the British, then ours, has been his life since he enlisted as a boy soldier 15 years old and proud to be wearing the uniform.

At present, Private Grimshaw is on rehabilitation leave. When that ends, out he steps to join the unregimented toilers, if he can find a job.

In this endeavor, he is going to be rubbing shoulders with a daunting number of ex-servicemen his age or younger.

Some of these men are time - expired like George Grimshaw, their service careers ended by defence department regulations while they were still in their working prime. Others found themselves no longer happy in the service, and chose not to wait until pushed.

They didn't like Mr. Hellyer's ways or works, including the proposed universal uniform which by all accounts is going to be the most effective morale-buster since Delilah's shears. Further, they had no wish to be hunting jobs in their middle years, as not-so-old soldier Grimshaw is doing this spring.

★

I didn't much want to talk to George when he phoned me. I'd already told you about another military type who found himself released, too young, to a civilian world that offered a cool welcome.

But Private Grimshaw of the Royal Canadian Postal Corps, the Princess Pats, the Royal Hussars (infantry), the Royal Scots Greys (cavalry) and the East Surrey Regiment turned up at the Times next morning.

His education is limited to about grade eight on the outside, but within the army his skills are many and varied. He is sturdy, merry when he forgets that he must shape a new life after July 2, and carries the scar of a considerable wound on one shoulder.

He has a 12-year-old daughter, Judy, in a Victoria school, and a wife named Fuji whom he met in Japan during the Korean war. Add to Korea, service in British India, the Sudan, China, Malaya, Singapore, Germany and North Africa, and you have the tale of Private Grimshaw's army years.

You also have a man unused to "hanging around the house, doing nothing . . . thinking and thinking some more . . . going out to hunt a job and being kissed off by the post office, the provincial government and civilian employers all down the line."

★

Private Grimshaw's pension will amount to about $210, he expects. When the family returned to Victoria, a city George liked when stationed here from 1957 to 1961, he put his savings into a duplex at 617 Admirals Road. The rent from the other half will jack his income to around $300 a month.

The private—he never wanted rank—is a vigorous and persevering fellow, and will probably find at least a part-time job.

What concerns him more right now, in his transitional stage, is the state of the army which has no further place for him.

"You see," says he, "the army was a profession to me. It was a way of life. D'you think anyone ever went in because of the money? Most of us joined up because we wanted to be in, we took pride in the uniform and the fact that we were soldiers.

"It was because of that, when Rommell's bunch took me wounded in North Africa, that I tried three times to escape from a POW camp, and made it the third try.

"The way things are now, it's all boom and bust. They want men, they don't want them. You can't be a professional any more."

As to what Canada should do about the situation, his notions are vague, although he does suggest that we are far behind most countries in our treatment of the soldier ejected into civilian life.

Private Grimshaw, barred from his trade at 50, only knows that the Canadian army isn't what it used to be, and that inside, he hurts.

Whitbread's Salary 'Up to City'

Health Minister Eric Martin has informed the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health the level of the senior medical health officer's salary can only be established by Victoria city council.

Mr. Martin was replying to a letter from health board chairman Reeve R. G. Lee, asking the government to pressure Victoria into increasing Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread's salary from $1,220 a month to $1,415 a month.

The letters were made public this morning.

Reeve Lee's letter to the minister claimed that Victoria had failed to meet its obligations so far as Dr. Whitbread's salary was concerned.

LOST $195

"The senior medical health officer has lost $195 per month over the past year, and in spite of discussions and efforts with the Victoria city council, no action has been taken on their part," the letter states.

Mr. Martin replied there was no legal agreement whereby Victoria promised to pay $1,415 a month to Dr. Whitbread.

Mr. Martin asked Reeve Lee "to endeavor to reconcile the situation . . . rather than ask this department to dictate to the city the salary that they will pay their employee."

ANOTHER 'HABITUAL' CHARGE

City police said today habitual criminal proceedings will be instituted against another city man.

Steven Remington, now serving a term at Oakalla for a charge of breaking and entering at the premises of Clark and Cordick, 2503 Douglas, may appear in court next week.

Magistrate J. A. Byers ruled Tuesday that John Norman Lawrence Smith is a habitual criminal and will be sentenced to indefinite preventive detention.

FIRST SINCE 50s

Smith's hearing was the first held since the early 1950's. One man was found to be a habitual criminal in 1953 and another in 1954 in Victoria. Both men are now out of prison.

A person found to be a habitual criminal can be sentenced to prison for an indefinite period, although he can appeal the finding every seven years.

Although Magistrate Byers delivered his judgment in the Smith hearing Tuesday, he heard a further submission by defence counsel Ian Stewart this morning.

Stewart said he understood that having found a man a habitual criminal, a second phase of the judgment, to be spoken to by himself, ought to concern the nature of the judgment.

Magistrate Byers did not agree.

"The expediency of the matter was canvassed at the time of hearing," he said.

'DON'T CALL THEM ARTISTS!'

By DESMOND BILL

A well-known city artist said today painting on the fence around the museum site is "good for kids" but any adult who does it is just being childish.

Robert E. Wood said it is ridiculous for newspapers to describe the fence paintings as "an art exhibition."

"The fence offers the same kind of outlet for art as is provided in the men's room of one of the downtown hotels," he said. "There the owner has put up a large blackboard and provided chalk for persons who think they have artistic leanings.

"I suppose some people would describe these daubs on the fence as paintings but, for God's sake don't describe people who did them as artists."

Mr. Wood said he'd shoot any of my students who went near that fence.

"It makes a mockery out of painting."

Mr. Wood admitted he has not closely inspected the paintings on the fence but only seen them as he drove past.

"I wouldn't go near it to have a closer look. What would be the point?

"I see enough to upset me when I look at the work of some of my students.

"These paintings may send thrills up (Public Works Minister) Chant's spine but their effect on me would be very different, I'm afraid."

Mr. Wood, who has a studio at 1121 Vancouver Street, has just returned from Vancouver where he had a successful one-man exhibition. He is now preparing for an exhibition in Victoria in June.

APPALLED

He said he was appalled when he got back here to discover that Victorians were following Vancouver's lead in fence painting. The fad started here after Vancouverites began painting on the fence around the site of a government fountain in front of the Vancouver courthouse.

Mr. Wood said that when he objected to the "hullabaloo" over the fence he was told that "it will be good for the tourist trade."

'MAKE A BUCK'

That apology for the fence painting enrages him.

"It is so typical of Victoria. Everything for the bloody tourist trade. Anything to make a buck.

"We'll try anything to entertain the tourists. Well, perhaps the fence is a good idea for tourists. But please don't call it art."

Mr. Wood said the only reason he is speaking out about the fence is because he thinks "all the publicity about this nonsense lowers public regard for art and artists Some people will think it really is serious work.

"If ever there was a pot of paint thrown in the face of the public it is the sort of stuff to be seen on the museum fence."

Man Drowns After Fall From Boat

An elderly Ahousat Indian was drowned late Tuesday night off the reserve on Flores Island, 10 water miles west of Tofino on the west coast.

George Sye, 81, apparently fell overboard from a fish boat he and four others were bringing from Tofino.

Mr. Sye was not discovered missing until the boat reached Ahousat.

Capt. Cosmos Frank immediately returned over the route and the body was found in the water.

They attempted artificial respiration in relays without success until they reached Tofino Hospital.

Mr. Sye was a pioneer Indian of the west coast and was one of the first pupils to attend the Christies Residential School near Tofino.

NEW APPROACH to local matters of federal concern is being taken this week by rival politicians representing Greater Victoria in the House of Commons. Liberal David Groos, right, and Conservative George Chatterton, centre, visited William Head and Veterans' Hospital Tuesday and today, later were shown the Chapin method of soil-less agriculture by superintendent Harry Anderson at Saanichton experimental farm. Experiments prove that tomatoes grown in sand or sawdust and fed by semi-automated water-borne nutrients yield three times the normal crop and give two crops a year under glass. First Draft Ready Monday On City's $5 Million Urban Renewal Scheme

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Victoria's planning department is burning the midnight oil these days as staffers go into the final stretch in preparing a detailed report on the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal scheme.

City planner Geoffrey Greenhalgh says he he hopes to have the first draft of the $5 million scheme ready for study by Mayor A. W. Toone and council by next Monday.

That is the day Mayor Toone returns to the city after an Easter vacation.

DRAFT REPORT

"The report we hope to have ready for next Monday will be a draft report only," Mr. Greenhalgh said. "I'm sure people will understand that every detail must be checked out before the city commits itself to spending such a large sum of taxpayers' money."

The detailed planning gobbled up Mr. Greenhalgh's Easter break — he worked Good Friday and Easter Monday while other city hall staffers relaxed — and will probably occupy all his time next Saturday and Sunday.

STAFF SHORTAGE

Adding to the department's problems is a three-man staff shortage which has existed since the planning staff resigned en masse months ago.

"We are still looking for an economist, a physical planner and a draftsman," Mr. Greenhalgh said. "The competition is pretty fierce — for example Ontario has 100 vacancies for qualified planners."

The shortage of trained planners hit the city hard last week when three men on the short list advised Mr. Greenhalgh that they had accepted offers elsewhere.

"But we are optimistic that we shall get at least one man next week," the planner said.

In the meantime, though hampered by a staff shortage, the survey of the Rose-Blanshard area has been completed.

If the city approves the plan it will mean the relocation and re-housing of 160 families in the area.

Ground rules for such a scheme are laid down by the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation.

Before the scheme can qualify for federal grants it must also have provincial approval.

"There's a lot to be done before such a scheme can be instituted," said Mr. Greenhalgh. "First the city must satisfy what you might call CMHC's check list. Then with the consent of the provincial government it must enter an agreement with CMHC in order to obtain federal funds."

On the CMHC check list is a request for the boundaries of the scheme and the physical characteristics of the area, complete data on blighted and substandard conditions, the social condition of the area and a complete cost analysis.

But that is only the start.

CMHC also wants to know in detail what plans the city has for re-housing present inhabitants of the area, what site preparation plans are and what methods of private and public rehabilitation will be proposed.

DEFINITION OF BLIGHT

Blight is described by the CMHC as "overcrowding, lack of community facilities such as schools, parks, playgrounds and community centres, inadequacy of traffic patterns and a use no longer reasonable within the context of economic or social pressures."

The rough boundaries of the over-all scheme run from Blanshard to Kings, along Kings almost to Quadra then over to the northern boundary of Hillside with Rose Street forming the western anchor.

SCHOOL TO GO

Included in the scheme will be the demolition of North Ward School with a new school to be built with adequate playing fields in the Kings-Wark Street area.

It is expected that even with all problems cleared away the scheme will take at least two years to complete.

Big Berry Crop Due in Saanich Predicts Manager

Saanich loganberry and strawberry crops this summer may be the heaviest in years, Gill Rumley, manager of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association, told an annual meeting Tuesday.

Berry plants, he said, are in excellent condition.

The meeting re-elected Tom Michell as president.

Directors are: Geoff Vantreight, Albert Bean and Frank Doyle.

FOUNTAIN YIELDS OVER $90

A total of $90.81 worth of "good luck" coins from the fountain in Centennial Square was turned over to the United Appeal for the Community Chest of Greater Victoria today.

City officials "raided" the fountain Tuesday under an agreement made a year ago in which all proceeds from the fountain would be turned over to the United Appeal.

Member of Pioneering Family Clifford Alexander Dies at 72

Clifford Leslie Alexander was the native son of a native son of Victoria. And his grandfather, Charles, came here from San Francisco in a sternwheeler in 1857.

Mr. Alexander died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Saturday at the age of 72. To the end he was proud of his pioneering family.

Grandfather Charles Alexander and his wife migrated from a Negro colony in Missouri. They travelled out to California in a covered wagon and after a stay in San Francisco boarded a sternwheeler for Victoria.

In 1860 they bought land in Saanich and moved out there to develop a family farm which ultimately exceeded 100 acres.

Thomas Alexander was born on the farm in 1859 and his wife, Corinthia, was also born in Victoria. They were married here in the 1880s.

Their eldest son, Clifford, who died Saturday, spent all his life in Victoria and was employed as a machinist. He is survived by two daughters, Ellen and Barbara; a son, Thomas; three brothers, Chester, Barton and Norman, and nephews and pieces.

Rev. Samuel Parsons, DD, minister of Centennial United Church, will conduct funeral services at Sands Mortuary, 1803 Quadra, Friday at 3 p.m. Interment will follow in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Pay Hike Expected For Mayor

Edgelow Heads Drive For $10,000 Stipend

Mayor A. W. Toone will be $2,500 a year richer when he returns from his vacation next Monday.

At a special meeting of city council called this afternoon in the mayor's absence city aldermen were expected to give unanimous approval to a new by-law which would increase the mayor's stipend from $7,500 a year to an even $10,000.

It is understood Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow spearheaded the lobbying for the increase.

$2,500 EXPENSES

At present the mayor receives $5,000 a year plus $2,500 for expenses.

When starting the campaign for the increase in the mayor's pay some weeks ago Ald. Edgelow said he did not expect to run into any opposition from other aldermen.

"I think we all know that $7,500 a year isn't enough for the mayor to come close to breaking even during his term in office," he said. "Even $10,000 a year isn't exactly a princely sum."

STEEL WAREHOUSE

Yarrows To Build New Unit

By AB KENT
Times Business Reporter

An $800,000 structural steel warehouse to serve heavy industry on Vancouver Island will be started next month in Esquimalt by Yarrows Ltd. shipbuilders.

General manager John Wallace said the building on Esquimalt Road at Canteen Road will be the most modern steel-handling facility in western Canada and employ a type of machinery built to order for the company.

Dominion Bridge Ltd. has a $290,000 contract to erect a building of prefabricated steel sections starting May 15, with completion set for October.

The sections will be assembled at the Dominion Bridge plant in Vancouver and trucked to the site now being prepared with removal of an old warehouse and parking area.

Footings for a concrete slab floor will rest on bedrock that is being prepared as part of a $50,000 contract.

Overall dimensions of the warehouse, facing Esquimalt Road, will be 360 feet by 160 feet with a height of 45 feet.

TWO BAYS

Steel trusses will provide for a clear-span interior allowing for two storage bays, one 90 feet wide and provided with two 10-ton overhead gantry cranes having magnetic grabs, and one 70 feet wide having a one-ton hook crane and a five-ton stacker crane, the first of its kind in the west.

Value of the machinery is about $250,000.

One man will be able to operate the machinery to put up an order of steel from a storage area having nine runs of "tree racks" which will contain steel of various dinemsions in one-sixth the floor space formerly required.

Eventually, the layout could be converted to an automated system of storage and selection of steel as required.

At present, Yarrows employs about 26 persons in its steel servicing division and no staff changes are contemplated, Mr Wallace said.

The Esquimalt facility services two Yarrows warehouses up-island, at Nanaimo and Campbell River and studies of further expansion are being considered.

A 40-by-80-foot office building will adjoin the warehouse.

All steel services are being consolidated in the one structure which will permit inside storage of a $1.5 million inventory.

Shipments will arrive and depart via truck, tractor-trailer units and barges or ocean-going vessels.

By storing and supplying steel from under cover, stock will arrive on site in prime condition and be an improvement to customer servicing and internal shipyard production, Mr. Wallace said.

A novel feature of the storage area is the "pigeon-hole" type of rack with stock-supporting bars only 11 inches apart that will permit stacking steel up to 22 feet high.

The custom-built stacker crane servicing this bay will operate much like a fork-lift truck, having access to the entire inventory without having to move other material first.

Pilot's Body Flown Here For Funeral

The body of Victoria pilot Jim McLellan, who died Monday when his plane crashed 30 miles northeast of Port Hardy, was to be flown to Victoria this afternoon.

The body was recovered from the half-submerged plane Tuesday, along with the bodies of Mr. McLellan's three passengers.

It was released for burial this morning after opening of an inquest in Port Hardy.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced by the 25-year-old pilot's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan H. McLellan, 2836 Inez, Victoria. Mr. McLellan leaves a widow, Carole, in Port Hardy.

Funeral services will be handled by McCall Bros.

(See earlier story Page 33.)

Woman's Body Still Isn't Identified

The body of an elderly woman found floating off Dallas Road near Beacon Hill Park Tuesday, still hasn't been identified.

Police have received no reports of a missing woman matching the description.

The woman was five feet, four inches tall, weighed 120 pounds and wore a gold wedding band.

Police say it is likely the woman was from the Victoria area, as her body had not been in the water long.

Ex-Victorian Dies In Fire At Toronto

The body of a former Victoria man, burned to death in a fire in Toronto overnight Tuesday, will be returned here for burial.

Robert Bell Woods, 43, had been employed by the National Employment Service in Toronto for the past 10 years.

Born at Carroll's Landing in the Kootenays, he attended Qualicum Beach High School and later Victoria College. He was an arts graduate from the University of B.C.

During the Second World War he served in Europe with the Canadian Armored Corps.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Irene Dora Woods, 1058 Davie Street, and cousins on the lower mainland, Nelson and Crescent Valley.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by McCall Brothers.

Governors Of Exchange Here Tuesday

Vancouver Stock Exchange governors will meet in Victoria for the first time in exchange history Tuesday in the Union Club.

The exchange has never met anywhere but in Vancouver since it was established early in the century.

Chairman Alan Thompson of James Richardson & Sons, and president John A. Van Luven will meet the press in the morning, followed by a luncheon at which Mayor A. W. Toone, cabinet ministers and key departmental superintendents will be guests.

The board will meet in the afternoon, and between 5 and 7 p.m. Victoria businessmen will be invited to attend a reception at the Union Club.

The meeting is being held here in recognition of the capital in centennial year, and to permit directors to meet local businessmen and elect representatives.

Ask The Times

Q. How many of the players in the Victoria Maple Leaf Hockey Club grew up in Victoria; are Canadians, and who owns the club?—W.G.

A. All are Canadians, but none grew up here, although Andy Hebenton is a resident of Victoria.

The team is owned by Toronto Maple Leafs Hockey Club, of which Stafford Smythe, John Bassett and Harold Ballard, all of Toronto, are major shareholders.

Q. Where can I obtain information on rules and regulations of Vancouver Island Track Racing Association?—B.K.

A. Secretary-of the club is Ron Mayell, 911 McKenzie.

ALCOHOLIC:

Drunks Taken As Dumb Brutes From Gutter . . .

WASHINGTON (AP)—A janitor arrested 34 times for public drunkenness has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to declare unconstitutional criminal punishment of chronic alcoholics.

Thomas Budd, 56, whose alcohol problem dates back to 1939, said he spoke not only for himself in asking the court for what could be an historic ruling.

Budd in his appeal filed Tuesday said:

"For hundreds of thousands of men and women who, though confirmed alcoholics, are repeatedly prosecuted for public drunkenness.

"Year after year these people are marched as dumb brutes from gutter to paddy wagon to drunk tank to mass trial to short, useless jail sentences and then to release to the bleak hopelessness of the gutter again.

"The public authorities pursue them relentlessly, as once they pursued witches and the insane."

Four California lawyers, one a representative of the American Civil Liberties Union, carried Budd's case to the Supreme Court. They cited medical testimony that he is "a chronic alcoholic" and described him as a pauper unable to meet court costs. There was no immediate indication if the judges will allow his petition to be heard.

PRECEDENT SET

Earlier this year, the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., ruled that the eighth amendment to the U.S. constitution, which outlaws "cruel and unusual punishments," forbids treating chronic alcoholics as criminals. The court held that alcoholism is "now almost universally accepted medically as a disease."

Last month, in a second high level blow at punishing chronic alcoholics, the U.S. Circuit Court from the District of Columbia held chronic alcoholism is a disease and a pesron cannot be convicted for it.

Budd was tried and found guilty by a municipal court judge for public drunkenness Nov. 23, 1964.

The appellate department of the Superior Court for Alameda County affirmed the conviction and the California Supreme Court turned down Budd's application for a writ of habeas corpus. The California High Court's action is being appealed to the Supreme Court.

JONES BEGINS APPEAL TO UPSET DISMISSAL

VANCOUVER (CP)—The appeal of former B.C. purchasing commission chairman George E. P. Jones began Tuesday in Appeal Court seeking to upset the provincial Supreme Court's dismissal of his slander action against Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Jones, who alleged the premier slandered him in a speech last year, lost out in Supreme Court when Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes ruled that remarks made by the premier could not have a defamatory meaning.

FAMED BRITISH ASTRONOMER SAYS

Forms of Life Likely on Other Planets

SEATTLE (AP) — A famed British astronomer said Tuesday it is scientifically reasonable that the universe holds "many abodes" where intelligent life like that on earth would develop.

Sir Bernard Lovell, head of Jodrell Bank Observatory in England, made the statement in a talk at the University of Washington.

He didn't speculate on the forms of life which may exist elsewhere. He referred to them as "organisms."

The scientist said proof may be found when man succeeds in reaching areas near Mars and Venus, although Venus is "so hot that it now probably is inhospitable to life."

However, he said life may have existed on Venus in the past, and remains of that life theoretically could be detected.

"It would be a relatively simple thing to collect evidence, say, in the neighborhood of Venus by a number of lay-bys by space craft," Sir Bernard said.

"One could just trail some sticky tape of some sort and collect a vast amount of information about any organisms there. It isn't at all necessary to land there and contaminate the place."

Sir Bernard goes to Penticton, B.C., Thursday to visit the new Queen Elizabeth observatory, scheduled to open in 1967 at a cost of $10,000,000.

High Wire Sit-in Starved Out

SAINT ETIENNE, France (Reuters) Henri Rochatain, 39-year-old hight-wire stunt man, Tuesday abandoned his attempt to spend a week on a tightrope 540 feet above a lake in the Loire Valley.

Police had threatened to starve him down. When he returned to the ground at noon, he complained bitterly at their intervention.

Rochatain took up his position on the wire over the lake Monday afternoon, watched by a crowd of about 1,000 who thought he was going to walk the wire across the 1½-mile wide lake.

But 600 feet out on the six-ton cable he announced through a microphone:

"Here I am and here I stay for 143 hours."

Police had other ideas.

Rochatain's police permit for his high-wire performance ran out Monday. He was told to come down and informed that no water, wine or food would be passed out to him if he stayed on the wire.

Court Fines Sailor $160 On 3 Charges

A sailor attached to HMCS Qu'Appelle was fined $160 Tuesday in traffic court for three related driving offences.

Brian Jameson, 19, pleaded guilty to charges of passing on the right, failing to remain at the scene of an accident and driving while his licence was suspended.

Court was told Jameson's car was involved in an accident on Bay between Quadra and Wark Feb. 10, when he drove the car past another car while in the inside lane of the road.

He was fined $10 for passing on the right and $75 for each of the other two charges.

Lillian Radley, 957 Clent, was fined $40 on a charge of careless driving.

She admitted driving in the wrong lane of the road after making a turn at Lampson and Fernhill March 26.

Her car collided head-on with another car causing $500 damage.

U.S. Plane Downed

TOKYO (AP)—A U.S. plane was shot down Tuesday by a Chinese Air Force unit over southwest China, the New China news agency said today. It described the plane as an A-3B heavy attack craft.

THEY'RE GETTING BIGGER — Pan American Airways today ordered 25 new 490-seat Boeing 747 airliners at a cost of $525 million. The new jets will feature eight staterooms and control cabins for the crew in the two-deck aircraft. Officials in Seattle say the larger plane will reduce costs per passenger mile by as much as 35 per cent. Delivery starts in September, 1969. (AP Wirephoto.)

3 KILLED, 10 INJURED

Liner Smashed By Giant Wave

Force Twists Steel Decking

NEW YORK (UPI)—A giant wave that crashed across the bow of the Italian luxury liner Michelangelo with such force it twisted the steel superstructure claimed its third life today.

Disiderio Ferrari, a crew member from Genoa, died of injuries as the New York-bound liner steered out of a violent North Atlantic storm which also injured 10 persons.

Capt. Guiseppi Soletti, contacted aboard the Michelangelo today via radiotelephone, said there was no panic when the wave struck.

"There was no panic and the ship was never in danger," he said. "We pitched somewhat but not a great deal."

"But it was one of the worst storms I have ever been in," said Soletti, a veteran of more than 40 years at sea.

He confirmed that there had been some damage to the upper superstructure of the liner but added the vessel was experiencing no difficulty today.

"Everything aboard is secure," he said.

30 Feet High, 100 Yards Wide

An Italian Lines director in Genoa said the giant mass of water, 30 feet high and 100 yards wide, caught the Michelangelo Tuesday in the first-class upper deck cabins as it swept across the bow, smashing windows and twisting the superstructure.

The force of the huge wave knocked many of the 775 passengers off their feet. Two of them suffered fatal skull fractures: John J. Steinbach, 58, a Chicago insurance executive, and Dr. Werner Berndt, 56, of Hamburg, Germany, both first class passengers.

Umberto Nordio, co-director general of Italian Lines, said even with advance warning the Michelangelo could not have gotten out of the way of the vicious storm. He said such storms move so fast that even turning around couldn't have prevented heavy damage.

"If man had invented a system to dodge misfortune," Nordio said in Genoa, "we would not have so many ships with smashed prows every year."

The wave struck at 10:20 a.m. about 400 miles west of the Azores, when the 43,000-ton liner was two days out of New York on a run from Naples and Genoa.

Freighters Plowing Out of Area

Two merchant ships also were plowing out of the area after being battered by the storm. One reported five crewmen had been washed overboard.

The 411-foot British refrigerator ship Chuscal reported five crewmen had been washed overboard in mountainous seas 400 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

The Coast Guard cutter Barataria and 15 merchant ships in the area were scouring the area, hoping the men might have been able to cling to debris in the 57-degree seas which were running 30 to 45 feet. Coast Guard planes also circled the area.

Buddhists Call Off Boycott

SAIGON (UPI) — The Saigon government radio announced tonight that Buddhist leaders would end their two-day boycott and take seats Thursday at the national political congress which is trying to devise a constitution for the country.

Informed sources said the decision by leaders of the main Vien Hoa Dao pagoda does not mean the Buddhists are calling off their anti-government tirades and demonstrations.

The sources said the Buddhist representatives may well be planning to use the congress as a platform for denouncing the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

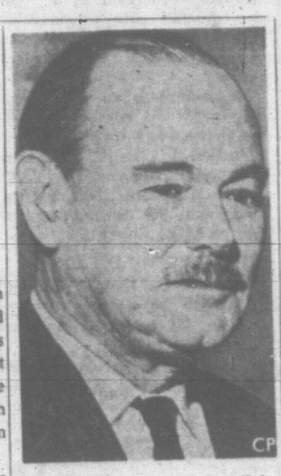

DENOUNCED CONGRESS

The Buddhists earlier denounced the congress as an effort by the "American CIA" to divert them from their avowed aim of toppling the military junta and forcing immediate election of a civilian government.

Ky's government called the conference to write a new constitution and pick its delegates. The delegates marked time today while a special seven-man delegation visited the Buddhist and Catholic leaders to plead with them to take their seats.

Chief of state Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu said his government was anxious to hand over authority to a civilian government as soon as possible and pleaded with delegates for help in accomplishing this.

But the Buddhists have demanded immediate elections.

France Scorns Russian Link

'Pullout From NATO Will Serve Best Interests Of Alliance'

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle has no intention of switching alliances and linking up with Russia and China in place of the United States, Premier Georges Pompidou said today.

He said France believes its NATO pullout will serve the best interests of the Atlantic Alliance.

Pompidou's statements on NATO and France came in a government statement he read to the National Assembly opening a three-day debate on government foreign and economic policy. The debate may end with a confidence vote demanded by the government.

His speech followed the disclosure de Gaulle had said he would not wait "forever" for the United States to decide when it will pull its troops and bases out of France.

REMAIN LOYAL

Pompidou said France will remain a loyal friend of the United States and is ready to discuss with both Washington and Bonn details of the evacuation of U.S. bases in France and withdrawal of French forces in Germany from NATO command.

The statement was approved by a cabinet meeting this morning presided over by de Gaulle.

In his National Assembly statement, Pompidou said: "By our action we believe we are serving peace and defending the true interests of the alliance just as we served them during the Cuban crisis when we informed the president of the United States that France would be at his side in a possible conflict, although Cuba was not covered by the North Atlantic Alliance."

Pompidou said France is not returning to "worn-out nationalism" but simply seeks full control over everything that belongs to it.

"Do not let anyone imagine this means a change of camps," he said. "We are hostile to any kind of hegemony. We do not intend to support a Soviet hegemony any more than our position in the Viet Nam war is aimed at favoring a Chinese hegemony in that part of the world.

"There is no change in our feelings towards the American people nor towards the importance of the interests that link us to the United States," Pompidou said.

'UNDERSTAND US'

"I am convinced the day will come when America will understand us and will do justice to Gen. de Gaulle as the far-seeing leader of her oldest and most constant ally."

Turning to Germany, Pompidou said France is convinced Germany's present leaders want peace. He said any fears of a revival of German nationalism have been touched off by suggestions that Germany should be given direct or indirect access to nuclear arms—something for which France has no responsibility, he added.

He said the situation of French troops in Germany can and will be solved if the West German government wishes to do so.

Flood Crest Passes Border Town

WINNIPEG (CP)—The flooding Red River crested on schedule in southern Manitoba today and provincial forecasters knocked another foot off their peak prediction for Winnipeg.

Agriculture Minister George Hutton said the Red should reach its high-water mark in Winnipeg Saturday at 26.5 feet above winter average ice level, well within the capacity of the diking system.

The crest passed through the border town of Emerson Tuesday and reached Letellier, about 10 miles north, today at 4.3 feet above bank level.

At Winnipeg the river stood at 25.5 feet, only one foot under the forecast peak, after a rise of eight-tenths of a foot in 24 hours.

Despite the optimistic turn of events, scattered evacuations continued in the southern valley where the Red has spilled over miles of rich farm land and forced more than 4,000 from their homes. Emerson, Morris, St. Jean Baptiste, Rosenort and Dominion City have been cleared of almost all but those needed to man dikes and maintain essential services.

Oil Tanker 'Disowned' By 2 Nations

BEIRA, Mozambique (Reuters)—The tanker Ioanna V, disowned in turn by Greece and Panama, today continued to keep alive the mystery of what it will do with its cargo of oil.

Shipping sources here said Tuesday night the tanker, moored at a quay here while Britain keeps up diplomatic pressure to prevent its 18,000 tons of oil reaching breakaway Rhodesia, would begin discharging half its cargo today.

But there was no immediate sign of the operation starting. Flexible pipe used to link tankers with the Rhodesia pipeline intakes remained piled on the dockside. Armed Portuguese police guarded the oil wharf.

The Ioanna V became a ship without a country Tuesday night when Panama followed Greece in revoking the tanker's registration only a few hours after the ship exchanged the Greek for the Panamanian flag.

The Ioanna docked here Monday after riding at anchor in the harbor for a week. The Greek government cancelled its registration because the tanker came to this Portuguese African port despite international sanctions aimed at keeping Rhodesia from getting oil.

The sanctions were ordered after the white - ruled British colony seized independence Nov. 11.

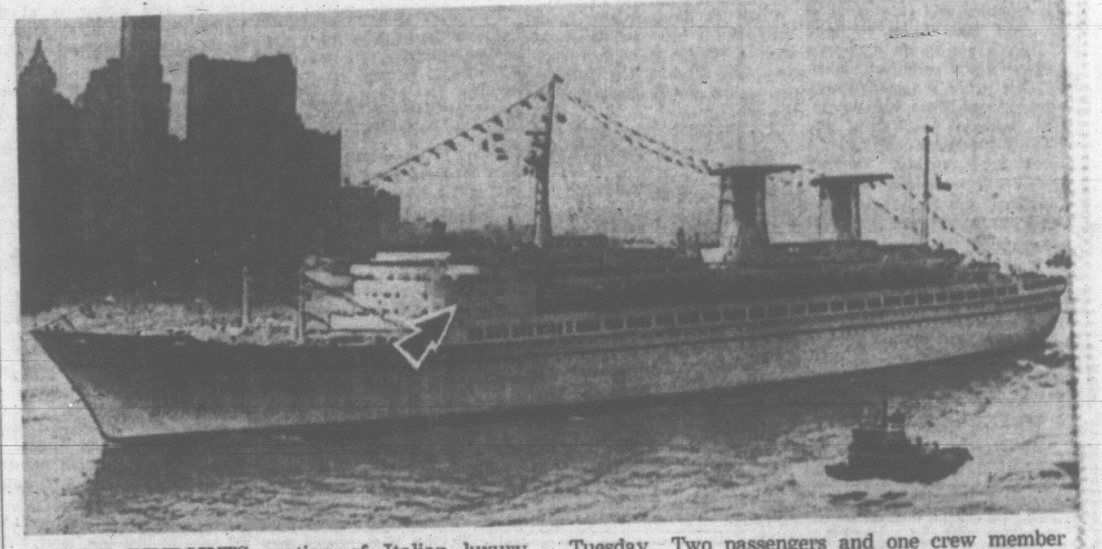

A few hours after the tanker pulled down the Greek colors Tuesday and ran up the flag of Panama, the Panama foreign ministry announced it was revoking the vessel's registration.

PUMP INTO STORAGE

Shipping sources said today the Ioanna intended to pump part of its oil into storage tanks and not directly into the 189-mile pipeline leading from Beira to Rhodesia's Umtali refinery.

In Panama, a foreign ministry spokesman said Panama always will abide by the decisions of the United Nations, which has specifically authorized Britain to bar oil from entering Rhodesia, and that Panama will co-operate in any way possible to ensure that no vessel under the Panamanian flag transports oil to Rhodesia.

The Greek tanker Manuela, carrying 15,000 tons of oil which may also be destined for Rhodesia, arrived at Durban, South Africa, Tuesday after being turned away from Beira by a British navy boarding party.

British Leave Door Open For Further Negotiations

LONDON (AP) Britain today left the door open for negotiations of new military co-operation between France and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In a note delivered in Paris the British, however, rejected President de Gaulle's claim that it would have been impossible for France and the 14 Atlantic allies to modify NATO by agreement.

The British government said it "would have been ready at any time to discuss the form of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

Britain's communication followed a U.S. statement to France Tuesday informing de Gaulle that U.S. tactical nuclear weapons will not be available for French forces in West Germany after these French troops have been withdrawn from NATO command July 1.

The Americans also indicated they are not prepared to accept the timetable laid down by de Gaulle for withdrawal of NATO headquarters from French territory.

BACKS UP U.S.

Implicitly, the British note gave support to the American position. On the subject of the proposed timetable of withdrawal, the British said:

"These proposals affect all parties to the North Atlantic Treaty.

"Her Majesty's government will, therefore, find it necessary to discuss them with their other allies in order to consider the practical implications of these proposals before entering into discussion of them with the French government."

The French had suggested that April 1, 1967, would be an appropriate date for completing the withdrawal.

On France's suggestion that new arrangements be made for co-operation between French forces and NATO forces, the British said:

"This is also a matter on which Her Majesty's government will first wish to have discussion with their other allies."

MEET FRIDAY

As an initial move U.S., British and West German envoys have arranged a meeting in Bonn Friday to consider the implications of the withdrawal of France's contingents in West Germany from NATO command.

This study is likely to provide the key to further effective military co-operation between the French and the other Atlantic allies.

Britain, the United States and France in 1954 joined with West Germany in signing a convention that changed the status of Allied troops from occupation forces to NATO forces. The convention also cleared the way for German rearmament and for a German military role in NATO. France's withdrawal from the NATO military network has had the effect of undermining the entire legal basis of that convention.

HALF BILLION IN INDIA

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's population will exceed the half-billion mark by Sept. 1. The last census in 1961 showed India had 439,000,000 then. A projection of those figures released by the registrar-general estimates the population at 495,000,000 April 1 and increasing at a rate of just under 1,000,000 persons a month.

Schools Picketed

MONTREAL (CP) — A strike by 2,000 teachers employed by the Quebec government in 100 technical, trade and normal schools all over the province went into its second day today.

The strike follows an impasse in negotiations with the provincial government over higher pay, the status of the teachers' union and time off for its officers to carry out union business.

Claude Sabourin, president of the teachers' syndicate, said the strike will continue "until the government is more reasonable."

He said picket lines have been established in front of a number of strike-bound schools in Montreal. There were no signs of an early settlement in the dispute.

IT COOKS, LOOKS LIKE RICE BUT DOES IT TASTE LIKE IT?

NEW YORK (AP)—A process which developers say could make wheat palatable to Asia's rice-eating millions — and thus be a partial answer to famine—will be tested in a pilot project beginning this week in Hong Kong.

Wheat kernels are peeled by a lye process that makes them look like rice and cook like rice. The purpose of the project is to see whether Asians decide that it tastes like rice.

One of the biggest roadblocks to easing world famine, experts say, is that some people would rather die than change their eating habits.

Millions of rice-eating people in India's Kerala State live on the verge of starvation rather than eat the wheat flowing into their country. Rioting mobs shouted at police: "Give us rice or shoot us!"

USE WURLD WHEAT

Breaking down "food prejudices" is necessary so that people can be fed the food that is available, says Melvin Myers, director of the material resources program of the Church World Service, sponsors of the pilot project.

To make wheat more acceptable to the rice-eating Keralites, the U.S. department of agriculture has come up with the new proces to make a rice-like grain from regular wheat, called "wurld wheat."

The husk is peeled from the kernel by the lye process, leaving a white grain much like rice. It can be produced for about five to six cents a pound, and on an operational basis, one company estimates that it could produce 25 tons an hour.

The process was developed at the Western Regional Research Labratory of the department of agriculture at Albany, Calif. Dr. James Pence, who heads the cereals laboratory, was in New York today to confer with Myers.

"The process also works with rice, producing a higher yield and a grain with more nutritional value," Pence said. "But more wheat is available and it is easier to increase the production of wheat than of rice."

Lawyers to Question Witnesses at Hearing

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Wishart Spence said today that at all future hearings of the Gerda Munsinger inquiry interested persons will be represented by their lawyers who will be allowed to question witnesses.

The Supreme Court of Canada justice said in an interview that he expects to decide in the next few days about further commission hearings.

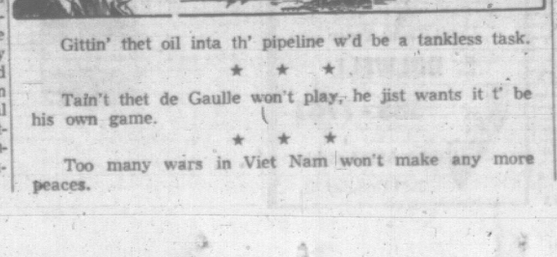

The commission opened in secret session a week ago and immediately ran into criticism from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and former justice minister Fulton that they were not notified of the hearing nor permitted to have counsel present.

"The order-in-council appointing me a one-man commission of inquiry says I may adopt any procedure I deem fit; I have done that and I'm not answerable to the press for it," he said.

Arthur Mayse

We have with us today a private of our hard-used Canadian Army (if Defence Minister Hellyer still permits us to call it that) who will become a civilian in July, and isn't happy at the prospect.

His name is Eric George Grimshaw, his age, 50. The army, first the British, then ours, has been his life since he enlisted as a boy soldier 15 years old and proud to be wearing the uniform.

At present, Private Grimshaw is on rehabilitation leave. When that ends, out he steps to join the unregimented toilers, if he can find a job.

In this endeavor, he is going to be rubbing shoulders with a daunting number of ex-servicemen his age or younger.

Some of these men are time - expired like George Grimshaw, their service careers ended by defence department regulations while they were still in their working prime. Others found themselves no longer happy in the service, and chose not to wait until pushed.

They didn't like Mr. Hellyer's ways or works, including the proposed universal uniform which by all accounts is going to be the most effective morale-buster since Delilah's shears. Further, they had no wish to be hunting jobs in their middle years, as not-so-old soldier Grimshaw is doing this spring.

★

I didn't much want to talk to George when he phoned me. I'd already told you about another military type who found himself released, too young, to a civilian world that offered a cool welcome.

But Private Grimshaw of the Royal Canadian Postal Corps, the Princess Pats, the Royal Hussars (infantry), the Royal Scots Greys (cavalry) and the East Surrey Regiment turned up at the Times next morning.

His education is limited to about grade eight on the outside, but within the army his skills are many and varied. He is sturdy, merry when he forgets that he must shape a new life after July 2, and carries the scar of a considerable wound on one shoulder.

He has a 12-year-old daughter, Judy, in a Victoria school, and a wife named Fuji whom he met in Japan during the Korean war. Add to Korea, service in British India, the Sudan, China, Malaya, Singapore, Germany and North Africa, and you have the tale of Private Grimshaw's army years.

You also have a man unused to "hanging around the house, doing nothing . . . thinking and thinking some more . . . going out to hunt a job and being kissed off by the post office, the provincial government and civilian employers all down the line."

★

Private Grimshaw's pension will amount to about $210, he expects. When the family returned to Victoria, a city George liked when stationed here from 1957 to 1961, he put his savings into a duplex at 617 Admirals Road. The rent from the other half will jack his income to around $300 a month.

The private—he never wanted rank—is a vigorous and persevering fellow, and will probably find at least a part-time job.

What concerns him more right now, in his transitional stage, is the state of the army which has no further place for him.

"You see," says he, "the army was a profession to me. It was a way of life. D'you think anyone ever went in because of the money? Most of us joined up because we wanted to be in, we took pride in the uniform and the fact that we were soldiers.

"It was because of that, when Rommell's bunch took me wounded in North Africa, that I tried three times to escape from a POW camp, and made it the third try.

"The way things are now, it's all boom and bust. They want men, they don't want them. You can't be a professional any more."

As to what Canada should do about the situation, his notions are vague, although he does suggest that we are far behind most countries in our treatment of the soldier ejected into civilian life.

Private Grimshaw, barred from his trade at 50, only knows that the Canadian army isn't what it used to be, and that inside, he hurts.

Whitbread's Salary 'Up to City'

Health Minister Eric Martin has informed the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health the level of the senior medical health officer's salary can only be established by Victoria city council.

Mr. Martin was replying to a letter from health board chairman Reeve R. G. Lee, asking the government to pressure Victoria into increasing Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread's salary from $1,220 a month to $1,415 a month.

The letters were made public this morning.

Reeve Lee's letter to the minister claimed that Victoria had failed to meet its obligations so far as Dr. Whitbread's salary was concerned.

LOST $195

"The senior medical health officer has lost $195 per month over the past year, and in spite of discussions and efforts with the Victoria city council, no action has been taken on their part," the letter states.

Mr. Martin replied there was no legal agreement whereby Victoria promised to pay $1,415 a month to Dr. Whitbread.

Mr. Martin asked Reeve Lee "to endeavor to reconcile the situation . . . rather than ask this department to dictate to the city the salary that they will pay their employee."

ANOTHER 'HABITUAL' CHARGE

City police said today habitual criminal proceedings will be instituted against another city man.

Steven Remington, now serving a term at Oakalla for a charge of breaking and entering at the premises of Clark and Cordick, 2503 Douglas, may appear in court next week.

Magistrate J. A. Byers ruled Tuesday that John Norman Lawrence Smith is a habitual criminal and will be sentenced to indefinite preventive detention.

FIRST SINCE 50s

Smith's hearing was the first held since the early 1950's. One man was found to be a habitual criminal in 1953 and another in 1954 in Victoria. Both men are now out of prison.

A person found to be a habitual criminal can be sentenced to prison for an indefinite period, although he can appeal the finding every seven years.

Although Magistrate Byers delivered his judgment in the Smith hearing Tuesday, he heard a further submission by defence counsel Ian Stewart this morning.

Stewart said he understood that having found a man a habitual criminal, a second phase of the judgment, to be spoken to by himself, ought to concern the nature of the judgment.

Magistrate Byers did not agree.

"The expediency of the matter was canvassed at the time of hearing," he said.

'DON'T CALL THEM ARTISTS!'

By DESMOND BILL

A well-known city artist said today painting on the fence around the museum site is "good for kids" but any adult who does it is just being childish.

Robert E. Wood said it is ridiculous for newspapers to describe the fence paintings as "an art exhibition."

"The fence offers the same kind of outlet for art as is provided in the men's room of one of the downtown hotels," he said. "There the owner has put up a large blackboard and provided chalk for persons who think they have artistic leanings.

"I suppose some people would describe these daubs on the fence as paintings but, for God's sake don't describe people who did them as artists."

Mr. Wood said he'd shoot any of his students who went near that fence.

"It makes a mockery out of painting."

Mr. Wood admitted he has not closely inspected the paintings on the fence but only seen them as he drove past.

"I wouldn't go near it to have a closer look. What would be the point?

"I see enough to upset me when I look at the work of some of my students.

"These paintings may send thrills up (Public Works Minister) Chant's spine but their effect on me would be very different, I'm afraid."

Mr. Wood, who has a studio at 1121 Vancouver Street, has just returned from Vancouver where he had a successful one-man exhibition. He is now preparing for an exhibition in Victoria in June.

APPALLED

He said he was appalled when he got back here to discover that Victorians were following Vancouver's lead in fence painting. The fad started here after Vancouverites began painting on the fence around the site of a government fountain in front of the Vancouver courthouse.

Mr. Wood said that when he objected to the "hullabaloo" over the fence he was told that "it will be good for the tourist trade."

'MAKE A BUCK'

That apology for the fence painting enrages him.

"It is so typical of Victoria. Everything for the bloody tourist trade. Anything to make a buck.

"We'll try anything to entertain the tourists. Well, perhaps the fence is a good idea for tourists. But please don't call it art."

Mr. Wood said the only reason he is speaking out about the fence is because he thinks "all the publicity about this nonsense lowers public regard for art and artists Some people will think it really is serious work.

"If ever there was a pot of paint thrown in the face of the public it is the sort of stuff to be seen on the museum fence."

Man Drowns After Fall From Boat

An elderly Ahousat Indian was drowned late Tuesday night off the reserve on Flores Island, 10 water miles west of Tofino on the west coast.

George Sye, 81, apparently fell overboard from a fish boat he and four others were bringing from Tofino.

Mr. Sye was not discovered missing until the boat reached Ahousat.

Capt. Cosmos Frank immediately returned over the route and the body was found in the water.

They attempted artificial respiration in relays without success until they reached Tofino Hospital.

Mr. Sye was a pioneer Indian of the west coast and was one of the first pupils to attend the Christies Residential School near Tofino.

NEW APPROACH to local matters of federal concern is being taken this week by rival politicians representing Greater Victoria in the House of Commons. Liberal David Groos, right, and Conservative George Chatterton, centre, visited William Head and Veterans' Hospital Tuesday and today, later were shown the Chapin method of soil-less agriculture by superintendent Harry Anderson at Saanichton experimental farm. Experiments prove that tomatoes grown in sand or sawdust and fed by semi-automated water-borne nutrients yield three times the normal crop and give two crops a year under glass. First Draft Ready Monday On City's $5 Million Urban Renewal Scheme

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Victoria's planning department is burning the midnight oil these days as staffers go into the final stretch in preparing a detailed report on the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal scheme.

City planner Geoffrey Greenhalgh says he he hopes to have the first draft of the $5 million scheme ready for study by Mayor A. W. Toone and council by next Monday.

That is the day Mayor Toone returns to the city after an Easter vacation.

DRAFT REPORT

"The report we hope to have ready for next Monday will be a draft report only," Mr. Greenhalgh said. "I'm sure people will understand that every detail must be checked out before the city commits itself to spending such a large sum of taxpayers' money."

The detailed planning gobbled up Mr. Greenhalgh's Easter break — he worked Good Friday and Easter Monday while other city hall staffers relaxed — and will probably occupy all his time next Saturday and Sunday.

STAFF SHORTAGE

Adding to the department's problems is a three-man staff shortage which has existed since the planning staff resigned en masse months ago.

"We are still looking for an economist, a physical planner and a draftsman," Mr. Greenhalgh said. "The competition is pretty fierce — for example Ontario has 100 vacancies for qualified planners."

The shortage of trained planners hit the city hard last week when three men on the short list advised Mr. Greenhalgh that they had accepted offers elsewhere.

"But we are optimistic that we shall get at least one man next week," the planner said.

In the meantime, though hampered by a staff shortage, the survey of the Rose-Blanshard area has been completed.

If the city approves the plan it will mean the relocation and re-housing of 160 families in the area.

Ground rules for such a scheme are laid down by the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation.

Before the scheme can qualify for federal grants it must also have provincial approval.

"There's a lot to be done before such a scheme can be instituted," said Mr. Greenhalgh. "First the city must satisfy what you might call CMHC's check list. Then with the consent of the provincial government it must enter an agreement with CMHC in order to obtain federal funds."

On the CMHC check list is a request for the boundaries of the scheme and the physical characteristics of the area, complete data on blighted and substandard conditions, the social condition of the area and a complete cost analysis.

But that is only the start.

CMHC also wants to know in detail what plans the city has for re-housing present inhabitants of the area, what site preparation plans are and what methods of private and public rehabilitation will be proposed.

DEFINITION OF BLIGHT

Blight is described by the CMHC as "overcrowding, lack of community facilities such as schools, parks, playgrounds and community centres, inadequacy of traffic patterns and a use no longer reasonable within the context of economic or social pressures."

The rough boundaries of the over-all scheme run from Blanshard to Kings, along Kings almost to Quadra then over to the northern boundary of Hillside with Rose Street forming the western anchor.

SCHOOL TO GO

Included in the scheme will be the demolition of North Ward School with a new school to be built with adequate playing fields in the Kings-Wark Street area.

It is expected that even with all problems cleared away the scheme will take at least two years to complete.

FOUNTAIN YIELDS OVER $90

A total of $90.81 worth of "good luck" coins from the fountain in Centennial Square was turned over to the United Appeal for the Community Chest of Greater Victoria today.

City officials "raided" the fountain Tuesday under an agreement made a year ago in which all proceeds from the fountain would be turned over to the United Appeal.

Big Berry Crop Due in Saanich Predicts Manager

Saanich loganberry and strawberry crops this summer may be the heaviest in years, Gill Rumley, manager of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association, told an annual meeting Tuesday.

Berry plants, he said, are in excellent condition.

The meeting re-elected Tom Michell as president.

Directors are: Geoff Vantreight, Albert Bean and Frank Doyle.

Member of Pioneering Family Clifford Alexander Dies at 72

Clifford Leslie Alexander was the native son of a native son of Victoria. And his grandfather, Charles, came here from San Francisco in a sternwheeler in 1857.

Mr. Alexander died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Saturday at the age of 72. To the end he was proud of his pioneering family.

Grandfather Charles Alexander and his wife migrated from a Negro colony in Missouri. They travelled out to California in a covered wagon and after a stay in San Francisco boarded a sternwheeler for Victoria.

In 1860 they bought land in Saanich and moved out there to develop a family farm which ultimately exceeded 100 acres.

Thomas Alexander was born on the farm in 1859 and his wife, Corinthia, was also born in Victoria. They were married here in the 1880s.

Their eldest son, Clifford, who died Saturday, spent all his life in Victoria and was employed as a machinist. He is survived by two daughters, Ellen and Barbara; a son, Thomas; three brothers, Chester, Barton and Norman, and nephews and pieces.

Rev. Samuel Parsons, DD, minister of Centennial United Church, will conduct funeral services at Sands Mortuary, 1803 Quadra, Friday at 3 p.m. Interment will follow in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Pay Hike Expected For Mayor

Edgelow Heads Drive For $10,000 Stipend

Mayor A. W. Toone will be $2,500 a year richer when he returns from his vacation next Monday.

At a special meeting of city council called this afternoon in the mayor's absence city aldermen were expected to give unanimous approval to a new by-law which would increase the mayor's stipend from $7,500 a year to an even $10,000.

It is understood Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow spearheaded the lobbying for the increase.

$2,500 EXPENSES

At present the mayor receives $5,000 a year plus $2,500 for expenses.

When starting the campaign for the increase in the mayor's pay some weeks ago Ald. Edgelow said he did not expect to run into any opposition from other aldermen.

"I think we all know that $7,500 a year isn't enough for the mayor to come close to breaking even during his term in office," he said. "Even $10,000 a year isn't exactly a princely sum."

STEEL WAREHOUSE

Yarrows To Build New Unit

By AB KENT
Times Business Reporter

An $800,000 structural steel warehouse to serve heavy industry on Vancouver Island will be started next month in Esquimalt by Yarrows Ltd. shipbuilders.

General manager John Wallace said the building on Esquimalt Road at Canteen Road will be the most modern steel-handling facility in western Canada and employ a type of machinery built to order for the company.

Dominion Bridge Ltd. has a $290,000 contract to erect a building of prefabricated steel sections starting May 15, with completion set for October.

The sections will be assembled at the Dominion Bridge plant in Vancouver and trucked to the site now being prepared with removal of an old warehouse and parking area.

Footings for a concrete slab floor will rest on bedrock that is being prepared as part of a $50,000 contract.

Overall dimensions of the warehouse, facing Esquimalt Road, will be 360 feet by 160 feet with a height of 45 feet.

TWO BAYS

Steel trusses will provide for a clear-span interior allowing for two storage bays, one 90 feet wide and provided with two 10-ton overhead gantry cranes having magnetic grabs, and one 70 feet wide having a one-ton hook crane and a five-ton stacker crane, the first of its kind in the west.

Value of the machinery is about $250,000.

One man will be able to operate the machinery to put up an order of steel from a storage area having nine runs of "tree racks" which will contain steel of various dimensions in one-sixth the floor space formerly required.

Eventually, the layout could be converted to an automated system of storage and selection of steel as required.

At present, Yarrows employs about 26 persons in its steel servicing division and no staff changes are contemplated, Mr Wallace said.

The Esquimalt facility services two Yarrows warehouses up-Island, at Nanaimo and Campbell River and studies of further expansion are being considered.

A 40-by-80-foot office building will adjoin the warehouse.

All steel services are being consolidated in the one structure which will permit inside storage of a $1.5 million inventory.

Shipments will arrive and depart via truck, tractor-trailer units and barges or ocean-going vessels.

By storing and supplying steel from under cover, stock will arrive on site in prime condition and be an improvement to customer servicing and internal shipyard production, Mr. Wallace said.

A novel feature of the storage area is the "pigeon-hole" type of rack with stock-supporting bars only 11 inches apart that will permit stacking steel up to 22 feet high.

The custom-built stacker crane servicing this bay will operate much like a fork-lift truck, having access to the entire inventory without having to move other material first.

Pilot's Body Flown Here For Funeral

The body of Victoria pilot Jim McLellan, who died Monday when his plane crashed 30 miles northeast of Port Hardy, was to be flown to Victoria this afternoon.

The body was recovered from the half-submerged plane Tuesday, along with the bodies of Mr. McLellan's three passengers.

It was released for burial this morning after opening of an inquest in Port Hardy.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced by the 25-year-old pilot's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan H. McLellan, 2836 Inez, Victoria. Mr. McLellan leaves a widow, Carole, in Port Hardy.

Funeral services will be handled by McCall Bros.

(See earlier story Page 33.)

Woman's Body Still Isn't Identified

The body of an elderly woman found floating off Dallas Road near Beacon Hill Park Tuesday, still hasn't been identified.

Police have received no reports of a missing woman matching the description.

The woman was five feet, four inches tall, weighed 120 pounds and wore a gold wedding band.

Police say it is likely the woman was from the Victoria area, as her body had not been in the water long.

Ex-Victorian Dies In Fire At Toronto

The body of a former Victoria man, burned to death in a rooming house fire in Toronto overnight Tuesday, will be returned here for burial.

Robert Bell Woods, 43, had been employed by the National Employment Service in Toronto for the past 10 years.

Born at Carroll's Landing in the Kootenays, he attended Qualicum Beach High School and later Victoria College. He was an arts graduate from UBC.

During the Second World War he served in Europe with the Canadian Armored Corps.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Irene Dora Woods, 1058 Davie Street, and cousins on the lower mainland, Nelson and Crescent Valley.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by McCall Brothers.

Governors Of Exchange Here Tuesday

Vancouver Stock Exchange governors will meet in Victoria for the first time in exchange history Tuesday in the Union Club.

The exchange has never met anywhere but in Vancouver since it was established early in the century.

Chairman Alan Thompson of James Richardson & Sons, and president John A. Van Luven will meet the press in the morning, followed by a luncheon at which Mayor A. W. Toone, cabinet ministers and key departmental superintendents will be guests.

The board will meet in the afternoon, and between 5 and 7 p.m. Victoria businessmen will be invited to attend a reception at the Union Club.

The meeting is being held here in recognition of the capital in centennial year, and to permit directors to meet local businessmen and elect representatives.

Ask The Times

Q. How many of the players in the Victoria Maple Leaf Hockey Club grew up in Victoria; are Canadians, and who owns the club?—W.G.

A. All are Canadians, but none grew up here, although Andy Hebenton is a resident of Victoria.

The team is owned by Toronto Maple Leafs Hockey Club, of which Stafford Smythe, John Bassett and Harold Ballard, all of Toronto, are major shareholders.

Q. Where can I obtain information on rules and regulations of Vancouver Island Track Racing Association?—B.K.

A. Secretary of the club is Ron Mayell, 911 McKenzie.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

FASHION DESIGNER EDITH HEAD, GISH

MONEY WENT INTO THE BANK

She's Not a Museum Piece!

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lillian Gish neither looks nor acts like a museum piece.

Her history would indicate that she should be put on display at some repository of movie history. After all, she appeared in her first film in 1912 and starred in such D. W. Griffith classics as Birth of a Nation, Intolerance, Broken Blossoms.

Yet the soulful Gish eyes remain as alert as a teen-ager's, and she has an outlook to match.

"I don't believe I had more than two weeks off in the last year," she remarked. "I did a season of Shakespeare up in Stratford, Conn. Then I came right out here for Follow Me, Boys at the Disney studios.

"After that, I went back to New York to begin rehearsals for Anya, which George Abbott directed. It was a beautiful play which lasted only a month in New York because of three bad reviews."

Miss Gish flew here from an Italian vacation to appear in The Warning Shot with David Janssen. If there is any time left, she may do some more on the memoir she is writing about her great mentor, Griffith.

"But that is terribly hard work for me," she admitted, "and I usually have to hole up in a room in Switzerland to get anything written."

Her schedule may seem remarkable for a 69-year-old, but it doesn't seem so to Miss Gish. She asked about a star who had been a contemporary of hers and has recently been ailing.

"That is too bad, but then, it has been years since she has worked," observed Miss Gish. "It's a mistake, I think. When you have been working since the age of five, as I have, it is wrong to quit. You remain more attuned to life when you work."

Fortunately for her, she is not required to maintain an income. During her heyday on the screen, from age 12 to 30, she managed herself well. She never succumbed to the grand living that consumed the assets of many stars.

"I never even bought a home in California," she explained. "New York was always my home and still is. The money I made went into the bank, not into acquisitions."

And it was big money. She pooh-poohed the suggestion that huge salaries for stars are a recent development.

"Does anyone get 15 per cent of the gross nowadays?" she asked. The answer is no, although Elizabeth Taylor, Marlon Brando and a few others have been able to draw 10 per cent of the gross—meaning 10 cents for every dollar accruing to the distributor.

"I received 15 per cent of the gross of The White Sister," said Miss Gish, recalling it fondly. "And the picture (co-starring Ronald Colman) made many millions of dollars."

Mannering Scores Once Again In Fresh Showing of Old Tale

By AUBREY JOHNSON

How is it that we never grow too old to be charmed by a fresh presentation of an old favorite fairy tale?

There is no doubt the grown-ups in the audience were just as enchanted as the bug-eyed youngsters when Bastion Theatre opened its Easter week run of Hansel and Gretel at McPherson Playhouse on Tuesday.

It is a colorful, lively variation on the Grimm Brothers' original.

It has a perkily tuneful musical setting by Vancouver's Marge Adelberg who is also the adapter and lyricist, and attractive setting and costumes by Art Penson.

Lawrence Eastick, Jennifer Chaster and Bill Hosie play several roles but are especially effective as the Rooster, the Duck and the Cat.

Barbara Dunn, one of Bastion's most pleasing young actresses (why don't we see her more often?) is an ideal Gretel. She moves and dances well and is blessedly audible without straining. She also has that "top o' the morning" charm which is altogether rare.

If one was going to be hypercritical about such an appealing show it would be to say that Art Penson, despite his clear talent, is not entirely right as Hansel and that Margaret Martin as the Witch, despite her many attributes, is not convincing.

We were seeing Karen's (The Red Shoes) grandmother in reprint. Maybe the author is at fault for making her too much the bumbling — and therefore, lovable — old lady.

USUAL FLARE

Peter Mannering has directed this show with his accustomed flare for the world of childhood fantasy. Musical direction and piano accompaniment is by Merlisse Hill.

Hansel and Gretel will play two shows a day at McPherson Playhouse starting at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

FINAL BULLETINS

Refs Fled Fire Before NHL Game

DETROIT (CP)—Referee Bill Friday and linesmen Matt Pavlich and John D'Amico fled down a smoke-filled fire escape during a fire in their downtown hotel before Tuesday night's Stanley Cup semi-final game, it was learned today.

The three National Hockey League officials were preparing to leave the Pick Fort Shelby Hotel for the third game of the best-of-seven semi-final series when the fire broke out on the ninth floor, claiming the life of one hotel guest.

Castellani Bail Set at $25,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—Property bail of $25,000 was set in B.C. Supreme Court today for Rene Castellani, charged with capital murder in the arsenic death of his wife Esther last July.

Defence lawyer Al Mackoff had asked for $15,000 bail but City Prosecutor Stewart McMorran asked Mr. Justice H. W. McInnis for the higher figure.

Mr. McMorran said Castellani was charged with premeditated murder and that the case against him would be entirely circumstantial and difficult.

'Poisoned Candy Dropped by U.S.'

HONG KONG (Reuters)—The Viet Cong guerrillas have accused the United States of dropping poisonous candy and medicine over South Viet Nam to kill children, the official North Vietnamese news agency reported from Hanoi today.

The agency, quoting Viet Cong's press agency, said nine children in Binh Dai and Thu Thua districts died after eating poisoned candy dropped by U.S. planes.

Sonji Calls Cassius Back to Court

MIAMI (AP)—Cassius Clay's divorced wife, Sonji, petitioned today to have the boxer held in contempt for failing to post a $25,000 bond to guarantee alimony payments.

Circuit court Judge Harold Spaet set April 26 for hearing on the contempt request.

HALF BILLION IN INDIA

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's population will exceed the half-billion mark by Sept. 1. The last census in 1961 showed India had 439,000,000 then. A projection of those figures released by the registrar-general estimates the population at 495,000,000 April 1 and increasing at a rate of just under 1,000,000 persons a month.

Lawyers Allowed At Gerda Probe

Witnesses to Be Cross-Examined

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice Wishart Spence said today that at all future hearings of the Gerda Munsinger inquiry interested persons will be represented by their lawyers who will be allowed to question witnesses.

The Supreme Court of Canada justice said in an interview that he expects to decide in the next few days about further commission hearings.

The commission opened in secret session a week ago and immediately ran into criticism from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and former justice minister Fulton that they were not notified of the hearing nor permitted to have counsel present.

"The order-in-council appointing me a one-man commission of inquiry says I may adopt any procedure I deem fit; I have done that and I'm not answerable to the press for it," he said.

"Counsel for interested parties and persons will have the fullest opportunity to be present in future."

Asked whether they would be allowed to examine witnesses in the same way as the commission's lawyers, he replied: "Oh, yes."

"This is not a coroner's inquest where everyone must put his questions through a crown attorney."

As to hearings being open to the press and public, he said:

CLASSIFIED NATURE

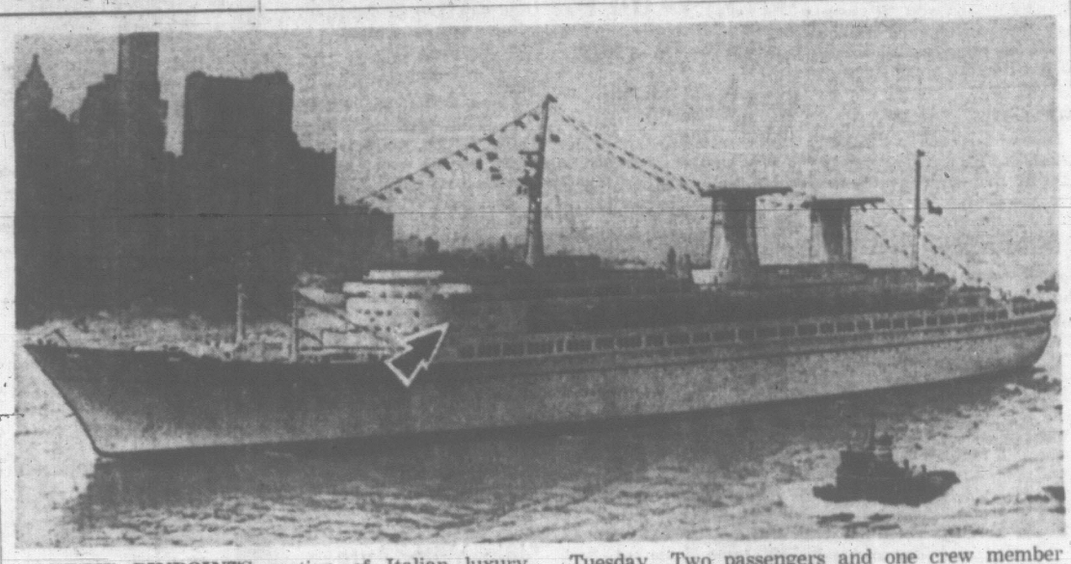

"Hearings of this commission would have to be governed by the paramount nature of national security. Hardly a thing we take up wouldn't be of a classified nature and it would be impossible to hold that in public."

"I make myself public with a document known as a report. It is given to the Privy Council."

Mr. Justice Spence said it is impossible to estimate how long it will take to complete his inquiry, established after allegations by Justice Minister Cardin involving sex and security.

"This is going to be a task which I will perform with all the rapidity of which I'm capable."

He said that the reason for this is two-fold: "The government and Parliament are entitled to an early report. The Supreme Court of Canada begins sittings later this month and I should be there."

France Scorns Russian Link

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle has no intention of switching alliances and linking up with Russia and China in place of the United States, Premier Georges Pompidou said today.

He said France believes its NATO pullout will serve the best interests of the Atlantic Alliance.

Pompidou's statements on NATO and France came in a government statement he read to the National Assembly opening a three-day debate on government foreign and economic policy. The debate may end with a confidence vote demanded by the government.

His speech followed the disclosure de Gaulle had said he would not wait "forever" for the United States to decide when it will pull its troops and bases out of France.

REMAIN LOYAL

Pompidou said France will remain a loyal friend of the United States and is ready to discuss with both Washington and Bonn details of the evacuation of U.S. bases in France and withdrawal of French forces in Germany from NATO command.

The statement was approved by a cabinet meeting this morning presided over by de Gaulle.

In his National Assembly statement, Pompidou said: "By our action we believe we are serving peace and defending the true interests of the alliance just as we served them during the Cuban crisis when we informed the president of the United States that France would be at his side in a possible conflict, although Cuba was not covered by the North Atlantic Alliance."

Pompidou said France is not returning to "worn-out nationalism" but simply seeks full control over everything that belongs to it.

"Do not let anyone imagine this means a change of camps," he said. "We are hostile to any kind of hegemony. We do not intend to support a Soviet hegemony any more than our position in the Viet Nam war is aimed at favoring a Chinese hegemony in that part of the world.

"There is no change in our feelings towards the American people nor towards the importance of the interests that link us to the United States," Pompidou said.

'UNDERSTAND US'

"I am convinced the day will come when America will understand us and will do justice to Gen. de Gaulle as the far-seeing leader of her oldest and most constant ally."

Turning to Germany, Pompidou said France is convinced Germany's present leaders want peace. He said any fears of a revival of German nationalism have been touched off by suggestions that Germany should be given direct or indirect access to nuclear arms—something for which France has no responsibility, he added.

He said the situation of French troops in Germany can and will be solved if the West German government wishes to do so.

Door Left Open By U.K. Gov't

LONDON (AP) Britain today left the door open for negotiations of new military cooperation between France and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In a note delivered in Paris the British, however, rejected President de Gaulle's claim that it would have been impossible for France and the 14 Atlantic allies to modify NATO by agreement.

The British government said it "would have been ready at any time to discuss the form of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

Britain's communication followed a U.S. statement to France Tuesday informing de Gaulle that U.S. tactical nuclear weapons will not be available for French forces in West Germany after these French troops have been withdrawn from NATO command July 1.

The Americans also indicated they are not prepared to accept the timetable laid down by de Gaulle for withdrawal of NATO headquarters from French territory.

BACKS UP U.S.

Implicitly, the British note gave support to the American position. On the subject of the proposed timetable of withdrawal, the British said:

"These proposals affect all parties to the North Atlantic Treaty.

"Her Majesty's government will, therefore, find it necessary to discuss them with their other allies in order to consider the practical implications of these proposals before entering into discussion of them with the French government."

The French had suggested that April 1, 1967, would be an appropriate date for completing the withdrawal.

On France's suggestion that new arrangements be made for co-operation between French forces and NATO forces, the British said:

"This is also a matter on which Her Majesty's govern-

3 KILLED, 10 INJURED

Giant Wave Smashes Liner

NEW YORK (UPI)—A giant wave that crashed across the bow of the Italian luxury liner Michelangelo with such force it twisted the steel superstructure claimed its third life today.

Disiderio Ferrari, a crew member from Genoa, died of injuries as the New York-bound liner steered out of a violent North Atlantic storm which also injured 10 persons.

Capt. Guiseppi Soletti, contacted aboard the Michelangelo today via radiotelephone, said there was no panic when the wave struck.

"There was no panic and the ship was never in danger," he said. "We pitched somewhat but not a great deal."

"But it was one of the worst storms I have ever been in," said Soletti, a veteran of more than 40 years at sea.

He confirmed that there had been some damage to the upper superstructure of the liner but added the vessel was experiencing no difficulty today.

"Everything aboard is secure," he said.

Oil Tanker 'Disowned' By 2 Nations

BEIRA, Mozambique (Reuters)—The tanker Ioanna V, disowned in turn by Greece and Panama, today continued to keep alive the mystery of what it will do with its cargo of oil.

Shipping sources here said Tuesday night the tanker, moored at a quay here while Britain keeps up diplomatic pressure to prevent its 18,000 tons of oil reaching breakaway Rhodesia, would begin discharging half its cargo today.

But there was no immediate sign of the operation starting. Flexible pipe used to link tankers with the Rhodesia pipeline intakes remained piled on the dockside. Armed Portuguese police guarded the oil wharf.

The Ioanna V became a ship without a country Tuesday night when Panama followed Greece in revoking the tanker's registration only a few hours after the ship exchanged the Greek for the Panamanian flag.

The Ioanna docked here Monday after riding at anchor in the harbor for a week. The Greek government cancelled its registration because the tanker came to this Portuguese African port despite international sanctions aimed at keeping Rhodesia from getting oil.

The sanctions were ordered after the white - ruled British colony seized independence Nov. 11.

A few hours after the tanker pulled down the Greek colors Tuesday and ran up the flag of Panama, the Panama foreign ministry announced it was revoking the vessel's registration.

PUMP INTO STORAGE

Shipping sources said today the Ioanna intended to pump part of its oil into storage tanks and not directly into the 189-mile pipeline leading from Beira to Rhodesia's Umtali refinery.

In Panama, a foreign ministry spokesman said Panama always will abide by the decisions of the United Nations, which has specifically authorized Britain to bar oil from entering Rhodesia, and that Panama will co-operate in any way possible to ensure that no vessel under the Panamanian flag transports oil to Rhodesia.

The Greek tanker Manuela, carrying 15,000 tons of oil which may also be destined for Rhodesia, arrived at Durban, South Africa, Tuesday after being turned away from Beira by a British navy boarding party.

30 Feet High, 100 Yards Wide

An Italian Lines director in Genoa said the giant mass of water, 30 feet high and 100 yards wide, caught the Michelangelo Tuesday in the first-class upper deck cabins as it swept across the bow, smashing windows and twisting the superstructure.

The force of the huge wave knocked many of the 775 passengers off their feet. Two of them suffered fatal skull fractures: John J. Steinbach, 58, a Chicago insurance executive, and Dr. Werner Berndt, 56, of Hamburg, Germany, both first class passengers.

Umberto Nordio, co-director general of Italian Lines, said even with advance warning the Michelangelo could not have gotten out of the way of the vicious storm. He said such storms move so fast that even turning around couldn't have prevented heavy damage.

"If man had invented a system to dodge misfortune," Nordio said in Genoa, "we would not have so many ships with smashed prows every year."

The wave struck at 10:20 a.m. about 400 miles west of the Azores, when the 43,000-ton liner was two days out of New York on a run from Naples and Genoa.

Freighters Plowing Out of Area

Two merchant ships also were plowing out of the area after being battered by the storm. One reported five crewmen had been washed overboard.

The 411-foot British refrigerator ship Chuscal reported five crewmen had been washed overboard in mountainous seas 400 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

The Coast Guard cutter Barataria and 15 merchant ships in the area were scouring the area, hoping the men might have been able to cling to debris in the 57-degree seas which were running 30 to 45 feet. Coast Guard planes also circled the area.

The 669-foot Liberian tanker Rokos V, with a crew of 43 aboard, apparently weathered the storm after radioing early Tuesday it was being flooded and was in danger of sinking. A Coast Guard cutter today was escorting the Rokos V to Saint John, N.B., where it had been bound with a cargo of crude oil.

Capt. Soletti shifted course early today to avoid the centre of the furious storm. He said he expected to arrive in New York Friday, 24 hours behind schedule. The vessel sailed from Italy April 6.

Injured passengers were identified as Mrs. Geitlud Berndt, wife of one of the victims, and Mrs. Silvia Borini of Naples.

The injured crew members were Staff Capt. Claudio Cosulich, second ir command of the Michelangelo, two stewardesses and three stewards.

The Italian Line said preliminary repairs would be made to the Michelangelo while it was in New York, and other less urgent repairs made on its return to Italy.

Buddhists Call Off Boycott

SAIGON (UPI) — The Saigon government radio announced tonight that Buddhist leaders would end their two-day boycott and take seats Thursday at the national political congress which is trying to devise a constitution for the country.

Informed sources said the decision by leaders of the main Vien Hoa Dao pagoda does not mean the Buddhists are calling off their anti-government tirades and demonstrations.

The sources said the Buddhist representatives may well be planning to use the congress as a platform for denouncing the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

DENOUNCED CONGRESS

The Buddhists earlier denounced the congress as an effort by the "American CIA" to divert them from their avowed aim of toppling the military junta and forcing immediate election of a civilian government.

Ky's government called the conference to write a new constitution and pick its delegates. The delegates marked time today while a special seven-man delegation visited the Buddhist and Catholic leaders to plead with them to take their seats.

Chief of state Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu said his government was anxious to hand over authority to a civilian government as soon as possible and pleaded with delegates for help in accomplishing this.

But the Buddhists have demanded immediate elections.

Schools Picketed

MONTREAL (CP) — A strike by 2,000 teachers employed by the Quebec government in 100 technical, trade and normal schools all over the province went into its second day today.

The strike follows an impasse in negotiations with the provincial government over higher pay, the status of the teachers' union and time off for its officers to carry out union business.

Claude Sabourin, president of the teachers' syndicate, said the strike will continue "until the government is more reasonable."

He said picket lines have been established in front of a number of strike-bound schools in Montreal. There were no signs of an early settlement in the dispute.

PEELED BY LYE

Looks Like Rice, But Really Wheat

NEW YORK (AP)—A process which developers say could make wheat palatable to Asia's rice-eating millions — and thus be a partial answer to famine—will be tested in a pilot project beginning this week in Hong Kong.

Wheat kernels are peeled by a lye process that makes them look like rice and cook like rice. The purpose of the project is to see whether Asians decide that it tastes like rice.

One of the biggest roadblocks to easing world famine, experts say, is that some people would rather die than change their eating habits.

Millions of rice-eating people in India's Kerala State live on the verge of starvation rather than eat the wheat flowing into their country. Rioting mobs shouted at police: "Give us rice or shoot us!"

USE WURLD WHEAT

Breaking down "food prejudices" is necessary so that people can be fed the food that is available, says Melvin Myers, director of the material resources program of the Church World Service, sponsors of the pilot project.

To make wheat more acceptable to the rice-eating Keralites, the U.S. department of agriculture has come up with the new proces to make a rice-like grain from regular wheat, called "wurld wheat."

The husk is peeled from the kernel by the lye process, leaving a white grain much like rice. It can be produced for about five to six cents a pound, and on an operational basis, one company estimates that it could produce 25 tons an hour.

The process was developed at the Western Regional Research Labratory of the department of agriculture at Albany, Calif. Dr. James Pence, who heads the cereals laboratory, was in New York today to confer with Myers.

"The process also works with rice, producing a higher yield and a grain with more nutritional value," Pence said. "But more wheat is available and it is easier to increase the production of wheat than of rice."

Yemen Minister Shot

SAN'A, Yemen (AP) — An assassin killed Abdullah el Airiny, minister of local administration, with five shots in the head and chest Wednesday. The gunman then jumped from a third-floor window, breaking his leg, and killed himself with his last bullet as ministry guards closed in.

Flood Crest Passes Border Town

WINNIPEG (CP)—The flooding Red River crested on schedule in southern Manitoba today and provincial forecasters knocked another foot off their peak prediction for Winnipeg.

Agriculture Minister George Hutton said the Red should reach its high-water mark in Winnipeg Saturday at 26.5 feet above winter average ice level, well within the capacity of the diking system.

The crest passed through the border town of Emerson Tuesday and reached Letellier, about 10 miles north, today at 4.3 feet above bank level.

At Winnipeg the river stood at 25.5 feet, only one foot under the forecast peak, after a rise of eight-tenths of a foot in 24 hours.

Despite the optimistic turn of events, scattered evacuations continued in the southern valley where the Red has spilled over miles of rich farm land and forced more than 4,000 from their homes. Emerson, Morris, St. Jean Baptiste, Rosenort and Dominion City have been cleared of almost all but those needed to man dikes and maintain essential services.

SPENCER WROTE:

'Top B.C. Communist' Only One Who Helped

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Victor Spencer believed nobody ever helped him except a man —and his son—he identified as an executive of the Communist Party of Canada.

Spencer felt his life was a nightmare of bureaucratic red tape. And aside from the man and his son "I cannot remember anyone giving me a helping hand," he wrote shortly before his death.

Spencer's handwritten notes were disclosed Tuesday by E. Jervis Bloomfield, a postal employee here who was collaborating with Spencer to produce a booklet.

Spencer, 61, an accused spy, was found dead in his house Saturday night only four days before a judicial inquiry was to open into his dismissal from the post office here.

SPENCER
. . . taken while in army

20-YEAR BATTLE

The booklet was to be a document of what Spencer called his 20-year battle with government red tape, and was to be distributed through labor unions and on newsstands, said Bloomfield.

The only time Spencer said he ever got help was during the Second World War, when the son of a union leader described as a top B.C Communist helped Spencer in his efforts to get a discharge from the army on compassionate grounds.

Spencer, assigned to a tank repair depot with the Canadian Army in England, wrote that his mother was ill and unable to care for herself, his father had died, and that he had tried unsuccessfully for months to get compassionate leave.

A young recruit, Craig Pritchett, "suggested that when I return to Vancouver, to speak to his father, a well-known unionist who was closely connected with the war effort.

"His father, Mr. Harold Pritchett of the IWA (International Woodworkers of America), was, as I eventually discovered, also a member of the Labor Progressive Party, which later changed its name to the Communist Party of Canada.

". . . Soon after returning home (I) had talks with Harold Pritchett.

"He prepared a letter and sent it to Gen. (F.F.) Worthington, who was in command of District 11 with headquarters in Vancouver.

"The general had a thorough investigation conducted into my case, and a few days after I was discharged on compassionate grounds."

Spencer said in the notes that he later discovered compassionate leave had been granted but had been lost in the mass of red tape in London.

"Outside of Mr. Pritchett and his son, I cannot name anyone else who came to my help, and this includes many from all walks of life who also knew the situation, who knew at first hand the plight of my mother, but from indifference or ignorance never lifted a voice.

"Even after discharge, when I was totally broke, and faced with the job of, not only taking care of my mother . . . but also getting back into civilian life, I cannot remember anyone giving me a helping hand.

"Many knew, but practically all said words such as 'well, Vic, that's life.'"

Meanwhile, medical examiners today were still examining Spencer's body.

An inquest is due to open Thursday but is expected to be adjourned after medical evidence, not as yet complete.

Deputy Police Chief John Fisk, questioned about the continuing police investigation of what was originally described as a "routine death," said considerable pains were being taken because of the national notoriety of Spencer.

He said there was no indication there was anything amiss, but no chances were being taken. He added that the RCMP, which had been under order to keep watch on Spencer, had nothing to do with the death investigation as such.

NOT A SPY

Meanwhile, Harry Rankin, lawyer for the spy-ring suspect, said he did not think Spencer was a spy.

"I suppose he has done something in some field, but it seems to me that if it had been very serious he would have been charged," the lawyer said. "He may have given something to the Russians — a picture or something else—but this doesn't make him a spy."

He said there was no mystery about Bill Ranta, previously described as Spencer's companion-bodyguard who had dropped from sight after the suspect's death. He said Ranta had been to see him twice since and was a 70-year-old violin-loving friend of the dead man and nothing else.

But Mr. Rankin said nothing about a black notebook which newspapers said police took from Spencer's home and which contained "a series of numbers and letters arranged in code form." A tape recorder and tape recording had also been taken by police, the newspapers said.

ment will first wish to have discussion with their other allies."

As an initial move U.S., British and West German envoys have arranged a meeting in Bonn Friday to consider the implications of the withdrawal of France's contingents in West Germany from NATO command.

This study is likely to provide the key to further effective military co-operation between the French and the other Atlantic allies.

Britain, the United States and France in 1954 joined with West Germany in signing a convention that changed the status of Allied troops from occupation forces to NATO forces. The convention also cleared the way for German rearmament and for a German military role in NATO. France's withdrawal from the NATO military network has had the effect of undermining the entire legal basis of that convention.

'U.S. Won't Open N-arm Umbrella'

PARIS (Reuters)—A leading French general, defending his country's decision to withdraw its forces from NATO, said today he believes the United States and Russia already have agreed not to attack each other with nuclear weapons if a nuclear war erupts in Europe.

Gen. Pierre Gallois, a former staff member of S.H.A.P.E. (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe), gave his views in an interview in the weekly magazine Paris-Match.

He declared that in his opinion the Americans would never open their protective nuclear umbrella over Europe if war came.

The same issue of Paris-Match presented a divergent viewpoint from French Gen. Paul Stehlin, a NATO commander for the last six years, who said the Atlantic alliance might well lose its effectiveness as a result of the planned French withdrawal from NATO.

Hovercraft Shipment

THORNEY ISLAND, England (CP)—The first of two RAF planes transporting a British-built hovercraft for Canadian arctic trials took off from this south coast Hampshire airfield Wednesday bound for Tuktoyaktuk in the Northwest Territories.

The big C-130 plane carried the hovercraft's centre section. A second aircraft will take off Thursday carrying the side sections, propeller and radar.

Only scheduled refuelling stop for the two planes is at the United States military base at Thule on the northwest coast of Greenland.

The hovercraft will be reassembled at Tuktoyaktuk, on the mouth of the MacKenzie River, and tested for all-season use as a general transport vehicle in arctic coastal areas and river basins.

Arts Student Wins Award

A fourth-year arts student at the University of Victoria has won a scholarship to study in Germany this summer.

Dafeny Horne, 2088 Brighton, will spend July and August at the Goethe Institute in the Bavarian Alps, studying German language and culture.

The scholarship, offered by the Goethe Institute, covers the cost of two months study.

Miss Horne will spend most of her time in the German town of Kochel, but will also visit Frankfurt, Berlin and Munich.

A graduate of Oak Bay Senior High School, she has specialized in modern languages, majoring in German and French.

Red Jet A Major Prize

BERLIN (UPI) — A Soviet mystery jet plane that crashed into a lake in West Berlin last week was identified today as the new Yak 28 which never before had been examined by western experts.

It was considered a major prize.

Parts of the plane salvaged from the lake were turned over to the Russians today after British experts photographed and studied them.

The aircraft was identified by Royal Air Force experts flown here from Britain to study it. Informed sources disclosed their findings.

The Yak 28, an improved version of the Yak 25, is a two-engine, all-purpose, all-weather jet fighter with a crew of two.

The jet was said to have unusual equipment not seen before in the west and new electronic navigational aids.

One report said it had a new anti-radar device to allow it to evade detection while in flight.

PREMIER KY TELLS STUDENTS

U.S. Must Attack China

SAIGON (UPI) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky believes the U.S. must attack China if the Viet Nam war is to be won.

It was learned that Premier Ky, fighting to save his government in a Buddhist-inspired political crisis, told the Saigon student council during a recent two-hour conference that he believed the war must be pushed to the Chinese mainland.

"Why doesn't the United States bomb Red China and destroy the root of the war?" the student council spokesman asked. "And why is it that many U.S. military operations are launched without consulting the Vietnamese high command?

"I disagree about one point," Ky was quoted as answering. "Every U.S. operation has been agreed upon by the armed forces of the republic of Viet Nam, but I agree that Red China is the root of the war, and I have told the Americans that some day soon they will have to have a face-to-face confrontation with Red China, and to solve the war in Viet Nam they will have to attack Red China."

Record . . . Of Human Tragedy; Girl in Coma for 25 Years

By IRENE ALBERT

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Thirty-one-year-old Elaine Esposito has set a world record—one of human tragedy.

For the last 25 years she has been in a coma—the longest period of human unconsciousness known to medical science.

On Aug. 6, 1941, the six-year-old daughter and only child of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Esposito was given anesthesia during surgery for a ruptured appendix. She never regained consciousness, and since has alternated between deep sleep and open-eyed unawareness of the world about her, knowing neither her mother nor father.

Medical opinion has been divided as to whether the child had incipient encephalitis at the time of the appendectomy or whether oxygen to the brain was insufficient while she was on the operating table.

Surgeons were closing the incision when their patient went into convulsions and her temperature soared to 107.6.

'MOMMY . . . DON'T WORRY'

"At first the doctors told us Elaine wouldn't live through the night. I waited for her to open her eyes and speak to me . . . but she never did," Mrs. Esposito recalled as she adjusted the coverlet around the shoulders of her dark-haired, dark-eyed daughter whose last words had been, "Mommy, I'm not afraid. Don't worry."

The tenacity with which the young woman has clung to life has baffled medical science. Attending physicians attributed the fact that she is still alive to the meticulous and devoted nursing she receives from her mother.

Kept as immaculate as a baby, she is fed eight ounces of special formula through a nazal tube four times a day. Medication also is administered through the tube.

The Espositos have been told over and over by specialists that there is no hope for Elaine, that she can never recover from such extensive brain damage and can never be normal.

"But I always hoped they were wrong," said the mother, who has also nursed her daughter through other serious illnesses.

1-TO-1,000 CHANCE

Two years after the appendectomy she had further major abdominal surgery and was given a 1-to-1,000 chance of pulling through. She has survived several bouts of pneumonia and an attack of measles.

About 16 years ago the girl's right lung colapsed and doctors said that a lower rib growing to the hip bone is causing her body to curve as she grows. Although she has gained a few pounds and added a few inches since childhood—she now weighs 85—her hands and feet are still those of a six-year-old.

When the Espositos realized that medical science could offer them no hope, they made a last desperate effort to rescue their daughter from her living death.

In 1956 they took her to the grotto at Lourdes in southern France in search of a miracle. Today, their lives absorbed by the unstirring figure in a pink bed with the blue bows, they are still waiting for the miracle.

Public Viewing Of New Ferry Next Wednesday

The public will be given a chance to view the new government ferry, Queen of Prince Rupert, next Wednesday.

The showing will follow official acceptance of the $6 million vessel by Premier W. A. C. Bennett at the Black Ball ferry wharf at 1:30 p.m.

After the three-hour viewing period she will return to Victoria Machinery Depot where she will remain until her maiden voyage between Kelsey Bay and Prince Rupert, May 20.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Cold air still dominated the province this morning but is now showing signs of moderating. Skies were mainly clear over the interior Tuesday night and below freezing temperatures were quite general with frost warnings still in effect in parts of southern B.C. Along the coast skies were mostly cloudy with snow showers in the north coast area and rain showers along the west coast of Vancouver Island.

With high pressure building into the province, lower mainland skies will clear and allow temperatures to reach near the 55 range. A Pacific disturbance now approaching the coast will spread cloud, milder air and gale force winds into coast areas tonight with rain expected Thursday morning.
